BREACH WIDENS IN HOUSE GROUP ON U.S. PAY CUT

Members Seem Further From Accord Than at Any Previous Time.

BYRNS SEES NO NEED FOR HURRIED ACTION

Appropriations Bill, to Be Reported Monday, May Carry Rider.

The House economy committee yesterday wound up another retrenchment conference knee deep in pay-cut proposals, but lacking agreement on any one plan for slashing Federal salaries.

Decision will be delayed until tomorrow at earliest. Sixteen plans have evolved since the full committee held its first pay-cut session Monday. Yesterday members appeared further from agreement than at any time since the step was sponsored by House leaders.

Appropriations Chairman Joseph W. Byrns was still of the opinion that a bill will be reported, though there has been no poll of committee sentiment on the plans put forward. Nor is there any urgency, he said, for immediate action, as the legislative appropriations bill, which may carry the pay-cut rider, will not be reported until Monday. It was scheduled for report tomorrow.

Rainey Foresees Passage.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, House Democratic whip, said last night he has a clear majority of his side committed to the pay-cut principle. He said he thought he could muster enough votes to put through any bill reported by the committee. Members of the committee, however, seem to have lost savor for their task. Daily their offices are deluged with protestations of workers, by mail and phone. Opponents of pay slashing arrange them in the corridors.

"Since this thing started," said Representative John McDuffie, chairman of a subcommittee that brought in the first four reduction proposals, "I have been about as popular as a polecat at a picnic."

Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, who has doggedly insisted on Federal salary cuts, said he was ready to vote for any one of the plans; that it is only the "principle" he is contending for.

Others Vary in Views.

Sentiment of other members varied from Expenditures Chairman John J. Cochran, who is against any pay cut of any kind, to the views of Appropriations Chairman Byrns, who seeks a steep graduated scale.

The largest sum that could be realized from any of the graduated schedules put forward would not total more than $80,000,000, Representative McDuffie said.

One of the new proposals laid before the committee yesterday would slash all Government salaries 11 per cent, with a $1,000 exemption. Bureau of Efficiency Director Herbert D. Brown said it would net $67,000,000. Although this plan had its advocates, Chairman Byrns said there was no tentative approval.

No Consistency in Exemptions.

Some plans contain slash schedules "ranging from zero up to 10, 15 and 20 per cent," Representative McDuffie said. There has been no consistency in exemptions proposed. Some would embody no exemptions at all, striking at the lowest paid civil and military employes. Other plans propose $1,000, $1,200, $1,500 and $2,000 exemptions, Representative McDuffie said. No percentage cut over 20 per cent has been suggested.

Director Brown, who said he personally was opposed to any reduction, was present yesterday with his charts

Honolulu Flight By Akron Likely

April 19 Set for Trip to West for Maneuvers on Pacific Coast.

(Associated Press.)

The Naval Airship Akron is expected to leave Lakehurst Air Station about April 19 or 20 for a flight to the west coast. The ship, which recently figured in an accident at Lakehurst that caused postponement of the Western trip, may proceed to Honolulu before returning after operations with the fleet in the Pacific.

Lieut. Comdr. Charles E. Rosendahl will command the vessel. Comdr. Rosendahl recently was ordered to sea duty, but will command the ship under the original plans for the Western flight. He will board the West Virginia for sea service after the airship returns.

The itinerary for the West Coast trip has not been fixed, but naval officers said tonight it would probably be over a Southern route.

Tornado Relief Work Gathers Momentum

Red Cross and Legion Lead Efforts to Help Survivors in Southern Disaster That Left 7,000 Homeless.

Birmingham, Ala., March 23 (A.P.).—The grim combat against the suffering and need that follows in the wake of major disasters gathered momentum in the South's tornado-devastated areas today under the leadership of the American Red Cross and the American Legion.

Governors of two States are cooperating in relief efforts and civic bodies are assisting individuals in the burial of more than 300 dead and in caring for thousands left injured and homeless by the storms that struck widely separated communities in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, South Carolina and Kentucky last Monday night.

Additional reports trickling in from communities cut off by littered roads and broken communication lines brought the death figure in the five States today to 329. Unofficial estimates placed the injured in excess of 2,500 and the homeless at 7,000.

The deaths were divided by States as follows: Alabama 269; Georgia 37; Tennessee 18; South Carolina 3, and Kentucky 2.

In Alabama, where the greatest death and destruction was wrought, Gov. B. M. Miller began a personal inspection tour of the stricken communities. He planned first to visit Chilton County, where more than two score lost their lives. The governor yesterday appealed to the people of the State in a formal proclamation for contributions for the needy.

While rescue crews search debris for bodies, relief workers at strategic points are feeding and housing in temporary shelters those made homeless by the storm.

Army tents, cots, blankets, food and clothing have been moved into the several stricken communities by the Alabama National Guard, which also mounted guard in Tuscaloosa and Talladega Counties to prevent looting. Patrols were established in other centers and trucks were held ready in Montgomery to supply demands.

Relief headquarters were established here today following the arrival of

NICARAGUA DICTATOR PLAN STOPPED HERE

Moncada Refused Permission to Change Constitution and Keep Office.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The State Department yesterday nipped an incipient dictatorship in the bud by refusing to permit President Moncada of Nicaragua to change the constitution of his country. The change in the Nicaraguan constitution would have enabled him to remain in office for two years more at the expiration of his term. The present tenure of office is four years but Moncada wished to extend it to six.

The negotiations were carried on with Francis White, an Assistant Secretary of State for Latin America, by President Moncada's two personal representatives, Dr. Carlos A. Morales and Dr. Horacio Arguello Bolanos. Secretary Stimson personally followed every stage of the discussions on account of his keen personal interest in Nicaragua, where he brought peace and averted bloodshed in 1927, when he was the special emissary of the President.

It became known late yesterday that the Moncada representatives had not only endeavored to secure American official approval of their unconstitutional intent, but they had even gone so far as to suggest that the Bryan-Chamorro Treaty by

Graf in Brazil on First Of Spring Trip Series

Pernambuco, Brazil, March 23 (A.P.).—The long, gray bulk of the Graf Zeppelin floated over Pernambuco this evening, dipped and wheeled while thousands watched from the streets and tied up at her mooring mast at 6 o'clock, completing the first of a series of trips she will make this spring to South America.

This time she brought passengers and mail on a nonstop flight from Friedrichshafen. The trip was uneventful for this veteran which has made the voyage several times before.

WORLD COURT WINS PRAISE OF STIMSON

Avers Reservations Sought by Senate Have Been Fully Accepted.

Secretary Stimson undertook yesterday to clarify the situation with regard to the protection of American interests in the matter of World Court advisory opinions and succeeded in arousing mingled sentiments of surprise, resentment, contradiction and some praise, in the Senate foreign relations committee. He was unable to accept Senator Borah's invitation to discuss the adequacy of the Root compromise to the Senate's reservations; he was suffering from a severe cold and sent an open letter to the chairman of the committee instead.

In his letter the Secretary asserted "The protocol fully accepts the five reservations of the Senate resolution of 1926, and thereby imposes the jurisdictional restriction upon the World Court as to advisory opinions which was sought by the five reservations of the Senate.

"Apparently some confusion of thought has been engendered by failing to recognize that the Senate reservation itself does not seek to impose a veto upon the request for an advisory opinion, but solely upon the entertainment of such a request by the court. From its language it is perfectly clear that it does not. What we did ask for was a limitation upon

Mother in $40 Car Goes To Aid Son at Vicksburg

Manitowoc, Wis., March 23 (A.P.)—Driving an automobile she purchased for $40, and with a small amount of money in her purse, Mrs. Frank Howard today started for Vicksburg, Miss., to be with her son, who is held there on a kidnaping charge.

The youth, who left his home about a year ago, recently was arrested on a charge of holding a Vicksburg boy prisoner in a hotel room.

Morgan Broadcasts Plan To Give Aid by City Blocks

Financier Makes First Radio Speech to Acquaint Nation With New York's Unique Move for Relieving Suffering of Unemployed.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—J. Pierpont Morgan, sitting in the old-fashioned living room of his town house surrounded by pictures of his illustrious ancestors, delivered his first radio speech tonight.

For six minutes he faced the blazing coals in a huge fireplace and talked into two small microphones on his flat-top walnut desk.

He broke his record of not having delivered a public address since the war to describe a unique relief plan he expects "will prove in large measure to be the much desired solution of the most pressing problem of our country today."

Technicians said his voice carried well. The 64-year-old financier gave particular emphasis to one sentence:

"We have reached a point where the aid of governments or the gifts of individuals, no matter how generous, are insufficient to meet the conditions which have come upon us."

In calling upon everyone to "do his bit," Mr. Morgan said:

"I must remind you that many people are too proud and too brave to reveal their necessities to charitable organizations or to State and city relief agencies. These people suffer in silence; often they suffer until parents and children are seriously ill."

The plan he outlined, he said, would also go far toward solving that problem. It is the "block-aid plan" under the general direction of the emergency unemployment relief committee, which Mr. Morgan said has raised and is now distributing over $18,000,000 for relief.

The financier told how ten "block-aiders," in each of New York City's 16,000 blocks, will start out Monday on a canvass of their sections, seeking out those who need relief and asking contributions from others.

"In collecting these funds," he said, "the block-aiders will not ask for large sums which would be embarrassing to those who earn moderate salaries. Most people will be asked for

IRELAND MUST PRESERVE OATH, BRITAIN WARNS

De Valera Will Be Told Annuities Also Will Be Expected.

STAND IS IN ANSWER TO ABOLITION PLAN

Revealed in Commons After King and MacDonald Are Consulted.

London, March 23 (A.P.).—Great Britain took a decisive stand today against the announced intention of Eamon De Valera, president of the Irish Free State, to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British crown and to withhold payment of the Irish land annuities.

Speaking in the House of Commons, J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, asserted that the oats is an integral part of the treaty which established the Irish Free State ten years ago and that payment of the annuities constitutes a bargain between two peoples and England is determined that it shall not be violated.

A formal communication to this effect will be sent to Dublin immediately. It will be published as soon as possible thereafter.

The Irish treaty provides the form of an oath to be taken by all Free State office holders. De Valera contends that, although the form is stipulated, the treaty does not make an oath mandatory. During the recent Irish campaign which ended with his election as president, he asserted that one of his first official acts would be to abolish the oath.

Repayment of Loans.

The land annuities amount to £3,000,000 a year. It is money collected from Irish farmers in repayment of loans made on their behalf so that they could buy out their landlords when the Free State was set up. Under President Cosgrave, the collections were remitted to London. De Valera says he will withhold those payments, although the collections will continue until England establishes the justice of her claim to the money.

Cheers from most of the members during and after the stern declaration by Mr. Thomas indicated that the government has a majority behind it to support its Irish policy. However, George Buchanan, one of the left wing Labor members, interrupted the secretary when he asserted that there must be no violation of the Irish treaty with the shout, "Is that a declaration of war?"

There were shouts of protests from the ministerial benches and Buchanan cried as he resumed his seat, "It is a declaration of war, a declaration of war for £3,000,000."

Confers With King.

The statement by Mr. Thomas followed upon the delivery yesterday of the Free State government's official announcement that it intended to abolish the oath and the annuities. Before he went before Parliament Mr. Thomas talked the issue over with King George and then met other members of the cabinet at Prime Minister

Bucharest Student Riot Injures Many

Two Police May Die After Clash Before Roumanian Senate.

Bucharest, Roumania, March 23 (A.P.).—Two policemen received injuries which may prove fatal, 18 soldiers and policemen and 27 men and women students were sent to hospitals today after a riot precipitated by the students.

Three thousand of them had gathered in front of the Senate Building to portest changes in the curricula which, they said, made the work of medical, legal and technical students more onerous.

The students stormed the Senate Building. The Senate doors were locked and barred. The firemen came, but the students took the hose away form them and turned it on the police. Soldiers were brought up and attacked with tear bombs, gas bombs and bayonets.

Nanking Audience Riots At Nippon Army Film

Nanking, China, March 23 (U.P.).—A serious riot broke out tonight at the National Theater because of the showing of Japanese troops in action in Shanghai as part of a newsreel.

A capacity crowd objected to the scenes, smashed seats, broke windows and stormed the manager's office. One theater employe was hurled to his death from the second floor. Troops were called to restore order.

RASKOB AGREES TO PAY $70,000 DISPUTED LOAN

But Insists He Indorsed Notes as Favor to 2 Other Donors.

CHARGES OF FRAUD IN PARTY FUND HIT

Declares Neither Smith Nor Trust Company Knew of Transactions.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—John J. Raskob today pledged himself to "make good on my indorsement" of the $70,000 in notes Timothy J. Mara and Patrick F. Kenny signed as their share of the $1,000,000 fund to underwrite the deficit from the 1928 Democratic presidential campaign.

Saying he "personally indorsed these notes purely as a matter of accommodation to these gentlemen," Mr. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said in a statement he would pay any amount the County Trust Co. is unable to collect from them.

His statement was issued simultaneously with a denial by Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck of an application of the trust company for a bill of particulars setting forth certain points in the defense of Mara, sports promoter. The company is suing Mara for payment on a $50,000 note and Kenny on a $20,000 note.

Fraud Is Charged.

In their answers to the suits, Mara and Kenny, a Yonkers contractor, asserted they signed the notes as an accommodation to the County Trust Co. in furtherance of what they termed a fraudulent scheme by the trust company to conceal contributions to the 1928 Democratic campaign fund.

The trust company asked the court to order Mara to disclose the names of those who induced him to make the note, with whom he made the agreement, and the time and the place. Mara's attorneys opposed the application as an attempt to obtain Mara's evidence and also on the assertion the accompanying affidavit was made by the trust company's attorney and not by an officer of the company.

Mr. Raskob denied the charges, saying the County Trust Co., of which former Gov. Smith is chairman of the board, knew nothing whatever of the underwriting agreement to wipe out the Democratic party deficit. The company, of which Mr. Raskob is a director, he said, contributed nothing to the $1,000,000 fund.

Holds Statement Untrue.

"If Messrs. Mara and Kenny, in their answers have said that even one dollar of County Trust Co. funds was contributed or given in aid of the Democratic national committee in any way, shape or form, that statement is entirely untrue and sworn to under oath constitutes perjury, which is a criminal offense in this State," Mr. Raskob's statement said.

He asserted the agreement to underwrite "something over $1,000,000 of the deficit which the committee was forecasting at that time," was agreed

Dahlberg Files Suit for Divorce

Charge of Desertion Made by Manufacturer, Named in Senate Inquiry.

Chicago, March 23 (A.P.).—Bror G. Dahlberg, manufacturer, filed suit for divorce today from Mrs. Mary Dahlberg, the former Mary Alexander of San Saba, Tex. The charge was desertion.

Dahlberg, head of the Celotex Co., was mentioned in a Senate investigation last November when a witness charged that he paid $100,000 to unnamed senators in an effort to obtain a high duty on sugar. He was exonerated.

The Dahlbergs were married in 1921 and Dahlberg charged that his wife deserted him in January, 1931. Reports that Mrs. Dahlberg obtained a Paris divorce were never verified.

Murray Will Make Tour Of Oregon and Nebraska

Oklahoma City, March 23 (A.P.).—An April speaking tour that will take Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray's personal campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination to Oregon and Nebraska was announced today by George A. Henshaw, Murray-for-President manager.

Eight speeches, including Lincoln and Omaha, will be made from April 5 to 8, prior to the Nebraska preferential primary. Murray then will go to Oregon for addresses between April 11 and 16.

Roosevelt Triumphs In Georgia Primary

Garner Supporter Swamped As New Yorker on First Returns is Assured 398 of 410 County Unit Votes.

Atlanta, March 23 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt won a smashing victory in the Georgia presidential preference primary today over Judge G. H. Howard, of Atlanta, who was running for Speaker John N. Garner.

The returns late tonight placed 398 of the 410 county unit votes in the Roosevelt column, with five counties missing. Judge Howard, with half of the precincts reported in Catoosa County, had a vote of 57, to 50 for Roosevelt. A newspaper correspondent at Ringgold, county seat, said the four remaining precincts were expected to go for Roosevelt and to put the county in his column.

Gov. Roosevelt had a lead of almost 10 to 1 in the popular vote over Howard. The vote so far reported was 51,498 for Roosevelt and 5,541 for Howard.

From Rabun Gap to Tybee Light the Georgia Democrats declared their preference for the New York Governor as the man to head this ticket when the Democratic hosts meet the Republicans at the polls in November.

The Roosevelt tide started as soon as the first precinct reported and it rose as the returns piled in from all parts of the State.

Soon after 7 p. m. (Central standard time) he had amassed 29,224 popular votes to 2,110 for Howard.

The county unit system in Georgia is unique. Under it each county has in the Democratic State convention twice as many delegates as there are members in the State House of Representatives. Of the total unit vote of 410, it requires 206 to control the Georgia delegation.

Warm Springs, where Gov. Roosevelt came for treatment after he was attacked by infantile paralysis, gave the New York governor 218 votes to one for his opponent. Mr. Roosevelt has a home at Warm Springs where he comes for rest whenever his duties permit him to get away from Albany, N. Y.

DRIVE IN MANCHURIA ON REBELS PLANNED

Japanese Shock Troops Will Hurl Full Strength Upon Chinese Insurgents.

Harbin, Manchuria (Thursday), March 24 (A.P.).—The entire strength of Gen. Jiro Tamon's Japanese shock troops soon will be hurled against the insurgent Chinese forces of Gen. Ting Chao in an effort to clear the rich basin of the lower Sungari Valley of elements menacing the new Manchurian regime in Kirin Province.

Despite recent peace overtures by Ting Chao, he has failed to come to Harbin to surrender formally and has continued hostile operations against the Japanese. Hence the Japanese command decided today to eradicate his army, which has concentrated in the District of Pinhsien, Fangcheng and Sanshin.

Headquarters of Gen. Tamon announced that in addition to the brigade of Maj. Gen. Hsebe, which moved in the direction of Fangcheng by motor yesterday, a brigade under Maj. Gen. Amano, which has been operating in the Hailin and Ninguta District, was returning by rail to Imienpo. From that point, headquarters said, they would advance overland toward Fangcheng, which is 105 miles east of Harbin, on the Sungari river.

Gen. Tamon's headquarters are

Claudel Denies France Lined Up With Japan

St. Louis, March 23 (A.P.).—Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States, denied here today false reports which, he said, had been spread, that France had sided with Japan in the recent Chinese-Japanese situation in Shanghai.

His country, he said, has been in complete accord with the other powers. He also denied what he termed "another canard," which had created an impression that a militaristic spirit prevailed in France. The Ambassador spoke before the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and other organizations.

BILL ON INJUNCTIONS IS SIGNED BY HOOVER

Organized Labor Wins Fight to Limit Use of Writs in Controversies.

(Associated Press.)

The long fight of organized labor to limit the use of injunctions in labor disputes ended in victory yesterday, with President Hoover signing the Norris-LaGuardia bill.

Refraining from comment, the President nevertheless made public a letter from Attorney General Mitchell questioning the clarity of some of its sections and declaring other parts had been debated as unconstitutional. He recommended, however, that it be signed.

The measure, among other things, outlaws permanently the "yellow dog" contract and recognizes in law the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively. It grants the right of defendants in contempt suits to a trial by jury and a transfer of judges.

It contains also a specific provision for protecting the freedom of the press, allowing editors, charged with contempt for criticizing a judge, to demand a jury trial and ask for transfer of the case to another judge.

In its rigid limitation of injunctions in labor disputes, the bill prohibits the issuance of such writs without prior hearings and findings of fact unless unlawful acts have been committed or substantial injury to property is in prospect.

The Attorney General, in his letter, issued through the White House, was

Mellon to Celebrate 77th Birthday Today

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 23 (A.P.).—Andrew W. Mellon will quietly celebrate his seventy-seventh birthday tomorrow with his family in their Woodlawn home.

The former Secretary of the Treasury, who recently became Ambassador to England, came to Pittsburgh last week to be with his brother, R. B. Mellon, on the latter's seventy-fourth birthday.

Ohio Coal Strike Spreads To 2 Eastern Field Mines

Snipers Fire on General During Survey of Trouble Area; Operator Sees Labor Dispute as Death Blow to Industry in That Section.

Columbus, Ohio, March 23 (A.P.).—A new field was added today to the districts where bituminous coal miners are on strike in Ohio.

The protest strike against wage cuts in the Hocking Valley and Sunday Creek fields, involving some 7,000 miners, spread to the Eastern field during the day, where more than 1,000 coal diggers threw down their tools and walked out. The owners of two Eastern field mines ordered the workings closed down when the men refused to accept the wage cut.

Returning late today from an airplane trip to Nelsonville, where he conferred with Maj. Gen. L. S. Conelly relative to "sniping" which occurred in the unsettled coal mine area last night, Brig. Gen. Frank D. Henderson reported to Gov. White that he saw no immediate reason to send National Guard troops into the Hocking Valley district.

"The situation remains the same," Gen. Henderson said. He said he does not anticipate any more serious disturbances until effort is made to reopen mines. Operators, he said, have promised they will notify him before attempting to reopen.

The adjutant general said his official observers were unable to determine whether shots had been reported to have been fired last night at one of the observers had actually been intended for him or whether some person was "just firing at random to hear the gun crack."

The officers met at Athens after Gen. Conelly had inspected several mines, including Millfield No. 6, where two recent bombings occurred.

The strike situation in this field was quiet during the day, but early in the morning a sniper attempted to pick off a guard at the Lick Run mine near Nelsonville, and the guard answered with fire from a submachine gun. No one was injured.

The Eastern District strike came after the Hanna Coal Co. had an-

SALES TAX BILL IS FACING TEST IN HOUSE TODAY

LAGUARDIA CLAIMS EXEMPTIONS "JOKER"

Doughton Says Vote Will Be Sufficient to Wipe Out Entire Provision.

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

Whether the runaway House is to be brought down to a controlled jog is to be decided today when consideration of the manufacturer's sales tax is resumed.

The sales tax provision of the $1,000,000,000 tax bill sponsored by leaders of both Democratic and Republican parties is to be taken up immediately after the routine of opening the session is completed at noon and the battle will be on.

The decision is expected to be a close one and last night found leaders on both sides of the question claiming victory when the votes came to be counted. There were those, however, who seemed to find a greater assurance in the claims of those who are seeking to wipe the entire sales tax provision out of the bill, despite the amendments offered by the ways and means committee exempting food, clothing, medicines, farm implements and other articles.

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, protested that the exemptions, although offered in good faith by the committee, would not be as effective in relieving necessaries of the 2.25 per cent sales tax as would seem apparent at first glance. There was a "joker" hidden in the bill, he said, inasmuch as materials which entered into the production of the exempted articles would be left subject to the sales tax.

Only Partial Exemption.

He absolved the committee of any intent, but said he believed it had been imposed on by "some one who tried to slip over a joker." The committee proposal, he said, "is only a partial exemption of the necessities of life, only shifting the tax one step back. I want particularly to call this to the attention of the textile manufacturer in New England and the South, also to the leather industry of the country."

Representative Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, ways and means committee member, who is leader of the fight against the sales tax, claimed enough votes to wipe the entire tax out of the revenue bill.

Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, joined with Mr. Doughton and Mr. LaGuardia in predicting victory for the opponents.

After a meeting of the leading Democrats of the House who are opposing the sales tax he issued a statement, saying:

"We are confident that we can strike the sales tax provision from the revenue bill tomorrow. Our forces are equally as strong today as they were yesterday, and become more determined as the protests against the sales tax pour in from every State in the Union.

All Parts of Nation.

"As was said by Representative Connery, of Massachusetts, the Democrats opposing the sales tax are not confined to any particular section of the country. They come from the North, the South, the East, and the West. In fact, there is not a State that has Democratic representatives in the House but that some of them are opposed to this provision.

"The amendments we have added, together with those yet to be proposed, will be amply sufficient to

G.O.P. ATTACK BALKS ROAD RELIEF ACTION

(Associated Press.)

A determined Republican attack prevented Senate action yesterday on the Democratic-sponsored House bill for a $136,000,000 emergency road construction program.

Time allowed for consideration of the measure expired as Senators Bingham, of Connecticut, and Vandenberg, of Michigan, launched a barrage of criticism at it.

Bingham called the bill a "hokus-pocus" and a "bribe to the States," which the Treasury could not afford.

Vandenberg said the proposal would "wipe out in one stroke at least eight times all the economies of the Senate in recommitting appropriation bills to the committee" for reductions of 10 per cent in their totals.

Hoping to save time, the sponsors of the measure did little talking, but Chairman Oddie, of the roads committee, said it would give employment to 800,000 men.

Senator Hayden (Republican), Arizona, who called the bill, said it was the same kind of a measure that Congress passed at the recommendation of President Hoover last session.

Bingham cited statistics to show that the bill would afford many times as much money for each jobless person in the rural States as for each unemployed in the thickly populated sections.

He proposed to make the allocation of funds on the basis of the extent of unemployment instead of population.

His chief complaint, however, was that it was "extremely bad policy" to go ahead with a road program at this time.

Representative Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts, yesterday told the House rules committee that "Americans are dying of starvation by the hundreds," in appealing for legislative right of way for his bill to provide $700,000,000 for loans to States for relief purposes.

"Their bodies are found in their rooms and pneumonia or something else is given as the cause," he said.

Connery, chairman of the labor committee, explained his bill would provide that cash be advanced to States on securities and promises to pay.

"The purpose is to grant emergency relief by cooperation of the Federal Government with the several States in relieving the hardship and suffering caused by unemployment," he said.

The rules committee took it under consideration.

The Senate yesterday discharged its military affairs committee from further consideration of a bill by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, to permit the use of War Department equipment for the needy.

The effect of its action, which was asked by Thomas, was to place the bill on the Senate calendar for action.

479,934 Families to Get Aid From Grain Requests

(Associated Press.)

The needy have called for more than 3,250,000 bushels of wheat from the Farm Board's grain bin.

The Red Cross announced yesterday the new law opening the Government-owned store of wheat to those in need has brought requests which will aid an estimated total of 479,934 families with flour, and 35,612 with feed for live stock.

Requisitions from 607 local Red Cross chapters—to whom the applicants make their requests—call for a total of 400,307 barrels of flour. From 289 chapters have come requests for 66,190,660 pounds of feed.

Headquarters here assembled the figures from chapters addressing them direct, and from those addressing St. Louis and San Francisco. By areas, the applications were as follows:

Eastern, 305 request for 206,114 barrels of flour to aid 214,246 families. Midwestern, 229 applications for 120,869 barrels of flour to help 127,641 families; and 282 requests for 78,320,000 pounds of feed for live stock, benefiting 30,524 stock-owning families; Pacific, 79 applications for 50,212 barrels of flour for 124,277 families; and seven applications for 3,769,660 pounds of feed for stock owned by 1,413 families.

ROOSEVELT WINNER IN GEORGIA PRIMARY

national committman from Georgia, tonight wired the New York governor congratulations.

"In all of Georgia's political history no candidate has ever before received such a smashing majority in all sections as being reported for you at this time," the major's telegram said.

The campaign in Georgia for Roosevelt was managed and directed by W. E. Page, publisher of the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun, the Columbus Ledger, the Bradenton (Fla.) Herald and the Wilmington (N. C.) News and the Wilmington Star.

In a statement tonight he made the following comment on the election:

"No campaign was ever won in Georgia with less money expended. Aside from our payment of Roosevelt's entrance fee of $1,000, our total expenses, including mail and everything else, was less than $1,000. On the other hand, no more aggressive campaign was ever fought in Georgia than that conducted under the direction of William Randolph Hearst to defeat Roosevelt.

"Tons of mail were sent out, paid workers were engaged throughout the State and advertisements were inserted in almost all of the newspapers. We estimate that not less than $20,000 has been expended in the effort to 'stop Roosevelt' in Georgia, this State being regarded as a keystone State for all this section. Reports show that when a great issue of national importance is involved, people can not be weaned away from duty either by the lure of money or by fanciful appeals for support of phantom candidates."

L. Thomas Gillen, in charge of the Howard-Garner headquarters, issued a statement in which he said:

"If Mr. Roosevelt is nominated in the national convention at Chicago he will not have a more ardent supporter than Judge Howard or myself, as we have always been and always will be true Democrats."

Louisville, Ky., March 23 (A.P.).—The Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Co. announced today that 800 former employes would be recalled April 1 to be used in the company's enameled iron plant, increasing its operations from two days a week to four.

The lower picture, taken in the heart of the storm area near Cartersville, Ga., shows a home cut in two by a tree blown against it by the storm which cost the lives of hundreds. CUMMINGS EXPECTS ROOSEVELT ON FIRST Declares Governor Will Have Almost Two-thirds as Balloting Starts.

(Associated Press.)

While Georgia voters were lining up for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the South's first presidential primary yesterday, the prediction was made here by Homer S. Cummings, of Connecticut, legislative contact man for the Roosevelt forces, that the New Yorker would be nominated on the first ballot at Chicago.

Cummings, a former national chairman of his party, made his forecast while sitting in the office of Representative Rainey, of Illinois, House majority leader, where he sounded out House Democrats from nearly every State on the national convention situation.

Several weeks ago he discussed Roosevelt prospects with senators from more than 20 States. After yesterday's talks, he said he found sentiment for the governor stronger than ever.

"The average experienced politician," he said, "has made up his mind that Roosevelt's nomination is inevitable."

Claims Neary Two-Thirds.

Cummings claimed Roosevelt would go into the convention with 680 of the 1,154 votes, or 90 less than the required two-thirds, and that the remaining delegates needed would line up for him before the first roll call was over.

"Any man with a lead of that kind can not be defeated," he said. He described Roosevelt's popularity as "Nation-wide," and said he was first choice in 35 States and second choice in most of the others.

He counted Kentucky's 26 votes for the New Yorker, now that Senator Barkley, of that State, has eliminated himself, and also put Kansas in the Roosevelt column.

"Republican leaders are hopeful of another Madison Square Garden fiasco," he said, adding, "The only chance Hoover has of being elected is in the Democratic convention."

G. O. P. Keynoter Sought.

Confident of President Hoover's renomination, Republican chieftains are still casting about for a convention keynoter. Chairman Fess, of the national committee, said yesterday this was "still up in the air," but would be definitely settled at a meeting of the arrangements committee in Chicago April 16.

It was understood in some national committee circles yesterday that informal overtures had been made to Calvin Coolidge to sound the party battle cry, but that the former President was unreceptive to the idea.

Although Senator Watson, of Indiana, is favored in Senate ranks, national committee members were said to be looking for someone else.

Several prospective keynoters have been mentioned for the Democrats. The party has yet to select its convention arrangements committee.

William G. McAdoo, supporter of Speaker Garner for the Democratic presidential nomination, will leave here today for New York. The former Treasury Secretary said Tuesday the Texan had an "excellent chance" for the nomination and would win California's delegation in May in a three-way contest with Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith groups.

H. C. Byrd to Address Club.

H. C. Byrd, director of athletics at the University of Maryland, will be principal speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Rockville Rotary Club today at noon. He will speak on the University of Maryland.

TORNADO RELIEF JOB GAINS MOMENTUM

Dr. William De Kleine, general medical adviser of the American Red Cross, and C. Wade Downing, of the Washington office.

C. H. MacFarland, field representative, will be in charge of the office here and Dr. De Kleine will direct medical work. Eight relief centers were designated in the storm areas.

Dr. De Kleine left for Northport shortly after his arrival to make a survey of the damage there.

Following a conference it was announced between $150,000 and $200,000 would be needed to care for the immediate needs of the storm sufferers. An appeal for contributions was broadcast tonight.

Stone J. Crane, general field representative of the Red Cross, passed through Atlanta today en route to Comer, to make a survey of the damage there and in other stricken North Georgia communities. He said Miss Annette McClaren, another Red Cross representative, has gone to Cartersville, Ga., to assist in relief work.

In Athens, Ga., organized and volunteer relief forces cooperated in assisting the injured and homeless. Mayor A. G. Dudley and civic organizations formed a central relief committee to direct rehabilitation. At the Union Baptist Institute for Negroes in Athens, students and faculty members prepared food and are caring for injured Negroes.

In South Carolina, relief workers were sent into the Berry Shoals and Fairmont communities of Spartanburg County, where three persons were killed and more than a score hurt by Monday night's tornado. The Red Cross, Salvation Army and the National Guard are working jointly in the relief of some 30 families left homeless there.

The same measures are being taken in the Pulaski and other stricken communities in Tennessee and in the storm area in Kentucky.

Everywhere is expressed the determination to rebuild. Billy Smith, editor of the Chilton County (Ala.) News, expressed the note of the stricken communities when he said: "Those who suffered the storm ravages are going to rebuild their homes and take up life where it was interrupted."

Red Cross May Dispatch Special Relief Directors

(Associated Press.)

Scattered reports from tornado-ripped territory in six States yesterday indicated the Red Cross may have to send special relief directors to Georgia and to Tennessee.

Officials here were seeking complete information on the number of dead, injured and homeless in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, South Carolina and Ohio.

From Clay County, Ala., came a report that at least twelve were dead "and an emergency hospital had to be opened to care for 100."

Charles H. McFarland, in charge of central relief headquarters, reported from Birmingham, saying indications were that emergency relief has proceeded "at top speed from the moment the storms passed over."

McFarland was trying to communicate with Faunsdale and Stevenson, Ala., both of which were in the stricken area.

Alabama Governor Off To Inspect Storm Ruins

Montgomery, Ala., March 23 (A.P.).—Gov. B. M. Miller left here today for the tornado areas to inspect the damage and aid in rehabilitation.

ROOSEVELT BACKERS ARE CONFIDENT HERE

See Election of Costello by League of Clubs as Sign of District Support.

Supporters of the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt last night confidently added the six District votes in the Democratic national convention to the credit of the New York Governor, when John F. Costello, District national committeeman, was elected president of the Roosevelt League of Clubs.

Sponsors of the organization saw the march of the Roosevelt supporters as a swelling march of triumph which would carry the New York Governor into the national convention with such a strength that his quick nomination could not be gainsaid.

They jubilantly referred to the announcement by Senator Alben Barkley, of Kentucky, of his support of Gov. Roosevelt as assuring the Kentucky delegation on the bandwagon. The Kentucky delegates may be more numerous but they will not be more enthusiastic the local Rooseveltians claimed.

Confident of Victory.

How accurately they foresee developments in the Democratic campaign in the next few months remains to be seen. Mr. Costello and his cohorts launched a local Roosevelt for President Club some time ago but became quiet and resumption of their public campaign for their favorite means that they are completely confident that they shall not be upset locally nor vote for a loser in the national convention.

Mrs. Rose Yates Forrester, secretary of the National Woman's Democratic Club, was elected vice president; John B. Colpoys, chairman of the local Democratic central committee, was elected second vice president. Other vice presidents elected were J. V. Buyer, Russell Balderson and R. A. Dickson, president of the Central Labor Union, of Washington.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, District national committeewoman, was not among the officers of the Roosevelt Club.

Friendship of Several Years.

Behind the sponsorship of the leaders of the club is a friendship between Mr. Costello, Mr. Colpoys and Gov. Roosevelt conceived several years ago when Mr. Roosevelt went to a Democratic national convention as a delegate for the first time. Then the District delegation offered him as a vice presidential candidate. Now the Rooseveltians want to vote for him as a presidential candidate.

Roosevelt Club headquarters are to be opened today at 729 Fifteenth street northwest. There are to be no dues levied on members, Mr. Costello said, in extending a public invitation to all persons over 21 years of age in the District to write in and become members.

A public meeting of the club is planned for next week, at which it is hoped to have a nationally prominent Democrat address the gathering, Mr. Costello said.

Resale Price Measure Is Reported to Senate

The Senate interstate commerce committee yesterday reported without recommendation the Capper-Kelly bill to permit resale price agreements. Attached to the report were summaries of the evidence presented by opponents and proponents of the measure.

BROWN IS WARNED ON AIR MAIL STAND

House Committee Head Says Law May End Charges of Discrimination.

(Associated Press.)

A hearing on air-mail contracts yesterday resulted in a warning to Postmaster General Brown that unless he changed his attitude a law might compel him to do so.

Chairman Mead of the House post-office committee told the Postmaster General that unless he stopped granting extensions of air-mail contracts to companies without competitive bidding that a bill taking away Brown's discretionary powers would probably be passed.

The reply from the Postmaster General was the flat asseriton the existing system was in the public interest.

"I don't myself believe in competition in the public service," he said, adding that he favored some central control over air mail such as the Interstate Commerce Commission has over railroads, but that the time was "not yet ripe" for it.

Complaint by Independents.

Back of the clashes between Mead and the Postmaster General was the complaint by air operators described as independents that they were discriminated against and no attention was paid to their offers to carry the air mail for less than it is being handled now.

Mead complained during the hearing that he had been "deserted" by E. L. Cord, an "independent" operator who tossed into the air mail situation an offer to carry the mails for half what the Government is paying.

The postoffice chairman said he "found a significance" in the methods of Cord, who first "electrified" the committee with his 50 per cent offer and then "failed to show up" for the rest of the hearing."

This "startling entrance and demise," Mead said, would seem to indicate Cord was going to "buy into" the air mail scheme and that he was not so interested in "carrying the mails for half as he was when he was on the outside looking in."

Nevertheless, Mead said, he intended to continue his own fight for air mail at curtailed costs and that he considered it the duty of his committee to reduce to a minimum the complained of discrimination that had been brought by independent operators.

Of the proposed 50 per cent cut, Brown said:

"That's ridiculous. It's too absurd to talk about."

On the complaints of the independent operators that their lines were being killed by parallel mail lines and that such favoritism obtained that they got no chance at contracts, Brown countered:

"The essence of these complaints is that those complaining have no air mail contracts. Nothing but contracts will stop these complaints."

Asked if Cord were buying American Airways, Brown pronounced that rumor "not well founded."

View on Stock Deal.

"But I have reason to believe Cord has bought a substantial block of stock in Aviation Corporation," the Postmaster General added. "I believe his present purpose is to get into American Airways through Aviation Corporation (holding company for American Airways)."

Representative Kelly (Republican), Pennsylvania, said the testimony showed Cord's idea was to make a profit by cutting pilot's wages.

"We have a very definite notion as to the kind of men who should be employed as pilots, and they can't be had for $150 a month," Brown said.

BILL SEEKS LOANS DATA FROM DAWES

Also Asks for Report Upon Employes and Salaries They Receive.

(Associated Press.)

President Dawes of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was asked in a bill yesterday by Representative Bachmann (Republican), West Virginia, to submit to the House within ten days a report showing the names of persons and concerns receiving loans and the amount of the advances.

The measure also asked for a report of the officials and employes and the salaries they receive.

Off the floor Bachmann said:

"There has been so much secrecy about the finance corporation, I think this information should be made public. Congress is trying to economize and I think Congress should know to whom this $2,000,000,000 is being loaned and whether the salaries paid to officials and employes are excessive."

The Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad yesterday was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to borrow $2,500,000 from the Reconstruction Corporation.

At the same time the commission authorized the Kentucky & Indiana Terminal Railroad Co. to borrow $800,000.

The Denver & Rio Grande Western loan is to be used to pay semiannual interest on bonds of the Rio Grande Western Railway Co. and the Denver & Rio Grande Western and to pay taxes for the second half of 1931 which will be due July 31.

The Kentucky & Indiana Terminal loan is to be used to pay advances made by proprietary lines; to pay short-term notes and to settle debts for materials and supplies.

RASKOB PROMISES TO PAY PARTY NOTES

to by "certain gentlemen" in October, 1928. The following April the committee called for and received full payment of the subscriptions.

At that time, the late James Riordan informed Mr. Raskob, the chairman said, that Messrs. Mara and Kenny and some others were "hard pressed for funds and asked whether they could be given a little time in which to make their payments."

Says Smith Not Informed.

He said they discussed the matter and "I agreed as a pure accommodation to these gentlemen I would personally indorse their notes if that would be of any help." The notes were signed by him later, he said, and the funds obtained by discounting them at the County Trust Co. used to meet the underwriting obligations of Mara and Kenny.

"Gov. Smith," Mr. Raskob's statement continued, "knew nothing whatever of the underwriting agreement, nor of these note transactions, nor did he know anything about it until several months later." Mr. Smith had no connection with the County Trust Co. at the time, he explained. He also disclaimed that the trust company knew anything about the underwriting agreement.

Mr. Raskob's statement, which he said he issued "in response to inquiries and editorial comment," included a list of persons who helped underwrite the deficit. The list included three persons who gave $150,000—Mr. Raskob, William F. Kenny (no relative of Patrick F. Kenny), and Herbert F. Lehman. Patrick F. Kenny's note originally was for $25,000 but later was reduced to $20,000.

SENATORS REJECT JONAS NOMINATION

Carolinian First Appointee of Hoover Turned Down at Present Session.

(Associated Press.)

Charles A. Jonas yesterday was denied the approval of the Senate for the post of Federal attorney for the Western District of North Carolina, the first presidential nominee to be refused confirmation at this session.

Without a record vote, the Senate rejected him a few minutes after Republican Leader Watson, of Indiana, had said he could not vote in favor of the nominee because Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, said he was personally obnoxious to him.

Jonas, a former Republican member of the House, had been serving for nearly a year under a recess appointment. An unfavorable report on his nomination was made by the Senate judiciary committee largely on the ground he had criticized the Nye campaign funds investigation committee.

Reed Scores Court Attack.

A statement attributed to Jonas charging justice could not be had in North Carolina State courts cost him the support of Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, a Republican stalwart, who had held throughout the debate criticism of the Nye committee was not sufficient grounds for rejecting him.

Asserting Jonas had denied the integrity of the courts and "had admitted that he had no evidence to sustain it," Reed added:

"If that statement were made about the court of my State, I'd say that the nominee was wholly obnoxious to me and ask the support of the Senate against his confirmation."

Because of that view and the statement, Reed continued: "I feel justified in voting against the nominee."

The following assertion from Bailey led to Watson's failure to support Jonas:

Watson Explains Stand.

"When he said justice could not be had in the court of the Commonwealth, that is personally obnoxious to me. I resent it and it moves me to throw everything I can against the elevation of the man."

Watson explained he had always adopted the policy of voting against any nominee if personally obnoxious to the senator from the State in which he lived, and continued:

"I believe this man is perfectly competent, that he is an honest man and that the President was perfectly justified in appointing him, but because the senator from North Carolina has made the statement that the appointment is personally obnoxious to him, I can not vote for his confirmation."

Senator Morrison (Democrat), North Carolina, joined Bailey in the move to reject the nomination. Morrison opened up a long attack with this assertion:

"Jonas seems to have become such a reckless partisan, so wholly unfair, that he is totally unqualified to help administer justice."

The Nye committee, he said, came to North Carolina at the invitation of those opposing Senator Bailey, then seeking election, continuing:

"Jonas and his associates wanted some campaign material to fan the flame that was dividing the State."

State Declared Aspersed.

Jonas was angered, Morrison charged, because witnesses gave testimony that made it impossible "for Jonas and his crowd to attack Senator Bailey."

Senators Robinson (Republican), Indiana, and Schall (Republican), Minnesota, defended Jonas, the Indianan declaring "everyone knows of charges of widespread fraud in North Carolina," while Schall termed him "a two-fisted fighter," and said his ability and honesty had not been questioned.

(Associated Press.)

The doctrine of "to the victor belongs the spoils" was preached to a Senate committee yesterday by the representative of the district in which Andrew Jackson grew to manhood.

Representative Lovett (Republican), Tennessee, whose district comprises Greene County, where the originator of the doctrine grew up, argued that four postmasters appointed by his predecessor in office should not be confirmed.

MISSOURI STUDENT SEIZED IN SHOOTING

One of Three Victims Near Death Following University Faction Clash.

Columbia, Mo., March 23 (A.P.).—Burnis Frederick, University of Missouri law student, was under bond of $1,000 tonight on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon pending the outcome of serious wounds suffered by Frank Luckey, an engineering student, in an outbreak of a feud between the engineering and law schools here last night.

Meanwhile two investigations of the fracas—one by civil authorities and another by university officials—were under way. The shootings grew out of the "kidnaping" of Miss Mary Butterfield, of Kansas City, Saturday night, just before she was to be crowned queen of St. Pat's ball, an engineers' function.

Two other students, Jerry Cebe, St. Louis, and Charles Love, Jefferson City, were shot and wounded, not seriously, and Frederick was slugged.

Victim Is Near Death.

Today Luckey hovered between life and death and while the attending physician said his condition had been satisfactory, he still held only fair hopes for his recovery. Luckey was shot through the abdomen.

Frederick told Prosecuting Attorney Franklin E. Regan that he fired six shots when a group of engineering students attacked him and a companion as they were leaving a private home to enter a taxicab. Frederick is also in the University Hospital with a head wound.

The university, through Dean Albert K. Heckel and the university disciplinary committee, launched an investigation today, although it was at a standstill tonight pending the outcome of Luckey's wounds.

Rapped By School Head.

Dr. Walter Williams, president of the university, declared in a statement that "college pranks are indefensible when they degenerate into lawlessness."

"The incidents culminating in the tragic occurrence of last night are most regrettable," Dr. Williams said. "The university will not tolerate, either as manifestations of college spirit or collegiate rivalry, such actions on the part of its students. Those guilty of transgressing the laws of the university will be summarily dealt with."

Miss Butterfield was held captive nine hours Saturday night by Frederick and three fellow law students and was returned to the campus too late for her coronation as St. Pat's queen.

Normalcy appeared to prevail on the campus today, with the university's 3,800 students preparing to leave tomorrow noon for the Easter holidays.

Last night's fight was not the first between the two schools. The feud has been traditional at Missouri and in a number of other universities and colleges in the country having similar schools.

CAPONE IS REFUSED PLEA FOR REHEARING

Is Allowed, However, to Stay in Cook Jail Until Action of Supreme Court.

Chicago, March 23 (A.P.).—"Scarface Al" Capone lost another decision today in his long battle to keep out of a Federal penitentiary.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals refused a rehearing on the conviction under which the gang chief was sentenced to eleven years and fined $50,000.

A few hours later the underworld czar was granted a stay which in effect permits him to remain in the Cook County Jail until the United States Supreme Court has ruled on his case.

The appellate court decided quickly against rehearing the appeal it had already denied. The Government's answer to the Capone arguments for a second hearing was filed only yesterday.

With the gangster incarcerated in the county jail, where he gets no credit on his long sentence, his case has been rushed through the courts with a speed never shown before in cases involving violations of income tax laws.

The appellate court made sure the case would continue its rapid progress when it stipulated, in granting a stay today, that Capone's lawyers must file their writ of certiorari with the high court at Washington within 30 days. The filing of the writ will automatically give Capone a further stay until the case has been disposed of.

The Capone lawyers asked for 60 days, saying they expected a new attorney to enter the case. United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson opposed any delay, saying Capone's incarceration at the county jail, where the Government is maintaining a special 24-hour guard over him, is costing the Government too much money.

It was five months ago tomorrow that Capone entered the county jail after Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson had given him the biggest sentence ever recorded in an income tax case. Both Judge Wilkerson and the appellate court refused to release him on bail.

Walker Plays Baseball With Youths in Virginia

Hot Springs, Va., March 23 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker, vacationing here after a recent nervous attack, joined a group of college students on the hotel lawn today for a snappy baseball practice. After batting out fly balls for a half hour the mayor retired with the admission that "the old gray mare ain't what she used to be."

He took his afternoon walk as usual, however, and later dined with Mr. and Mrs. Jay O'Brien. He refused to talk politics, saying, "I am enjoying a perfect rest and intend to turn my attention to administration affairs only after I get back to my desk at the City Hall."

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE CASTLE.

WILLIAM R. CASTLE, JR., is the symbol of the nearest thing to permanency in the Department of State. Since 1919 he has been probing the contents of black dispatch boxes and getting as close as official correspondence will permit to the mind of his majesty's permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs, the secretaire generale des Affaires Etrangeres and the directors of other European chancelleries.

He is scholarly, urbane and profound. He owes his encyclopedic knowledge of world politics to a passionate devotion to humanistic trivia and a psychologist's appreciation of the imponderables.

He was born in Honolulu. That may have been responsible for his remarkable success in persuading the Japanese government to accept the London Naval Treaty in 1929. He remained in Tokyo while negotiations for the treaty were being carried on by Secretary Stimson in London. His diplomatic "assist" is the longest on record since he seconded the American thesis while almost 13,000 miles away.

Harvard remembers him as assistant dean back in 1908 when he was only 30 years old and an alumnus of only eight years. After editing the Graduate Magazine there, he signed up with the Red Cross at the outbreak of the war and worked with them until after the armistice.

He is generally credited with being the author of the phrase applied to foreign service officers: "Out damned spat." Since he has been taking such an interest in the diplomatic and consular service, the "white spat" brigade has either resigned or taken to wearing long underwear.

American Sheep Are Still Waiting for Leadership

By JOHN J. DALY

BAA, baa, baa!

We are all sheep.

Furthermore, sheep without a leader.

What this country needs is leadership—and plenty of it. That is the urgent cry of the hour, the clarion call for a leader.

And there is no leader.

Where can that leader be?

Somewhere, hiding his head some place, there must be a bell-wether, quietly grazing, living on the fat of the land, unconcerned with the abandoned flock, looking for some one to show them the way out. Not looking, y'understand, for a way out, but for some one to show them the way out of the morass.

There is a difference.

'Twas a grand old Nation before it lost leadership.

* * * *

LIKE little Boy Blue, who lost his horn, when the cows were in the meadow and the sheep in the corn, one hundred million souls are just standing around, sort o' helpless, tallow-tails all, waiting for some one to lead the herd somewhere—anywhere, nowhere in particular—but just to lead. It matters not, so there is movement. Anything but this supine standstillishness.

A pathetic sight, so many dumb animals standing around, forlorn-like, crying, bleating, blah-blahing, whining for leadership—and no leader.

What is going to happen?

Well, if the sheep stand around long enough, just looking at each other, the wolves—maybe in sheeps' clothing—will get 'em.

That is what will happen, all right.

A great big pasture, this country, and not all fenced in; so there is certainly a way out of the predicament—but no one to lead, no one to show the way. Even where there is a fence there might be a hole in it, but no one to find the hole—no one to lead.

* * * *

SO we just stand around and wait. Watchful waiting!

Some day, some scared sheep with an idea is going to jump a fence, or something, and then all the other sheep, looking for leadership, will spring right behind him—a stampede of the sheep.

It matters not where the leader leads—to safety or destruction—the sheep will follow; for sheep are that way.

All any leader has to do is start something, and we'll all get in line.

Baa, baa, baa!

That's what the sheep say.

MORE HOT TIPS FAIL IN LINDBERGH CASE

Ten Suspected Houses Are Investigated Without Tangible Results.

Hopewell, N. J., March 23 (A.P.).—"Hot tips" that the kidnaped Lindbergh baby was being held in some house in New York City or north Jersey poured in to the famous flier's home at the rate of nearly one an hour today.

Groups of investigators sped through the barriers surrounding the estate in rapid procession, but they returned always with the report that "nothing of importance was disscovered."

Late in the day Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, State police head, announced:

"We have investigated more than ten houses variously reported as containing the baby, or harboring suspicious characters, or being involved in suspicious circumstances. No information of any value in connection with the case developed."

A few minutes later Brooklyn police received an order from Schwarzkopf to investigate at two more addresses where "tipsters" had said the infant Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., was being held. But the new leads proved as fruitless as the others.

Spitale's Trips Fruitless.

Only negative information was contained in the bulletins that came from the Sourland estate.

Various underworld characters also seemed to have failed in their efforts to make progress in the hunt for the child stolen 22 days ago from his crib.

Salvatore ("Salvy") Spitale and Irving Bitz, the pair named by Col. Lindbergh as his "go-betweens," were convinced from the work they had done on the case that the kidnapers were not members of an organized gang.

Bitz, in an interview with the Brooklyn Eagle, said Spitale had gone to Detroit on a "hot tip," that it had turned out to be worthless and that he was on his way back home.

"The only thing we are certain of," Bitz said, "is that no so-called organized gang did the job."

Rosner and Madden Fail.

Morris Rosner, who announced ten days ago he had definite reason to believe the child alive and well, was seen coming from the Lindbergh estate today and it is known he has made frequent trips to and from the Sourland region, but there has been no indiaction he has been making progress.

Owney Madden, who once ruled by terror a district in Manhattan called Hell's Kitchen, has been working on the mystery for twenty days without result.

Col. Schwarzkopf's last bulletin of the afternoon said:

"A report was received that Abie Wagner and Harry Fleischer and their gang had been located in a house at Greenport, Long Island. This house was supposed to be barricaded and the occupants heavily armed and prepared to resist arrest or a raid.

Caldwell Returns to Chicago.

"Investigators from these headquarters, together with New York State police, went to Greenport and searched several houses. Our investigators found nothing of importance in connection with this case and did not locate either Wagner or Fleischer."

He said H. Wallace Caldwell, former president of the Chicago Board of Education, who has made two trips to the Lindbergh home with what he considered valuable information, left Hopewell yesterday and no arrangement had been made for another conference with him.

Ralph Shenton, 20, of Schenectady, N. Y., who said he overheard "New York racketeers" talking about the kidnaping on the Albany night boat, March 10, was turned away from the Lindbergh estate by officers on guard, who doubted his story.

BILL ON INJUNCTIONS IS SIGNED BY HOOVER

outspoken in his criticism. He said it would be impossible to settle many of the points by executive act and that the validity of some sections could be set at rest only by judicial decision.

Many of the objections, however, he asserted, were based upon "extreme interpretations which are not warranted by the text of the bill."

Maintenance of Suits.

"It is inconceivable," he said, "that Congress could have intended to protect racketeering and extortion under the guise of labor organization activity and the antitrust division of this department, having carefully considered the measure, has concluded that it does not prevent injunction in such cases and that it does not prevent the maintenance by the United States of suits to enjoin unlawful conspiracies or combinations under the antitrust laws to outlaw legitimate articles of interstate commerce.

"It does not purport to permit interference by violence with workmen who wish to maintain their employment, and, fairly construed, it does not protect such interference by threats of violence or that sort of intimidation which creates fear of violence."

The Attorney General referred to the section dealing with "yellow dog" contracts as one objected to because of alleged unconstitutionality.

Cabinet Crisis Held Averted by Japanese

Tokyo (Thursday), March 24 (A.P.).—Japanese newspapers said today that a breach in the ranks of the Seiyukai (government) party had been averted by an agreement between leaders of opposing factions on a program for reorganization of the cabinet of Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai.

Political differences which threatened the premier's administration were amicably settled at a meeting last night of Kisakuro Suzuchi, minister of justice, and Fusanosuke Kuhara, former communications minister, who are the leaders of the rival factions, the newspaper said.

which American canal rights in Nicaragua were solemnly recognized should be abrogated. Assistant Secretary White declined to verify this, but he did admit that the American reply yesterday was in answer to two different memoranda which had been presented him by the Moncada delegates.

The political maneuvering of the Moncada government to suspend constitutional guarantees in Nicaragua followed shortly after the resignation of the former Nicaraguan minister here, Dr. Juan B. Sacasa. Dr. Sacasa, at the instances of his political friends in Nicaragua, resigned his diplomatic post here to present himself for the presidential elections this year. When he arrived in Nicaragua, he discovered that the president was planning to subvert the constitution by extending his term of office two years and the terms of offices of other officials proportionately. This would naturally have obviated a presidential election.

First Proposal Mitigated.

Since the United States has been supervising the elections since 1927, President Moncada determined to secure American approval for his designs. The two Nicaraguan delegates have been preparing their theses, although their second proposition presented March 10 mitigated considerably the "astounding" pretensions of the first.

The delegates had been trying to take advantage of an obscure provision of the Nicaraguan constitution relative to conditions of revision. Three different modes of revision are specified in the present constitution, but the State Department pointed out that considerations of pure expediency would not enable a regular assembly to dissolve itself and function as a controlling board to certify the result of the presidential elections in November.

Inauguration of the president is automatically fixed for January 1 next year and Moncada's intention of calling a constituent assembly to reform completely the Nicaraguan constitution would have prevented the ceremonies from being fulfilled.

Elections to Be Held.

The Nicaraguan elections will be held as provided, next November, and will be supervised in the name of the United States by Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward. The leading candidate is the former minister here, Dr. Sacasa, and it is believed this check to the plans of President Moncada will have an important effect on the outcome. The statement of the department is as follows:

"The Secretary of State has informed Messrs. Morales and Arguello that the amendment of the Nicaraguan constitution is of course a question for determination by Nicaragua alone. It has been pointed out to them that the present Nicaraguan constitution contains provisions for partial amendment which make it possible to amend the constitution without resorting to the extraordinary procedure of electing a constituent assembly and effecting a complete reform of the constitution. It was further pointed out that a situation might be created through the election of a constituent assembly and the dissolution of the regular Congress which would jeopardize the induction into office on January 1, 1933, and the constitutional authority of the president elected at the same time.

"No way has been indicated as to how this difficulty—which frankly appears insurmountable—can be overcome. Moreover, it appears to be somewhat doubtful whether, in view of the pertinent provisions of the Nicaraguan constitution, a constituent assembly could legally be chosen during the present year. The Secretary of State is therefore confirmed in his view of the unwisdom of considering such action at this time.

"Nicaragua has made admirable progress through the holding of free and fair elections in 1928 and 1930, and the Secretary of State believes that the course of wisdom would be to consolidate this progress and to add another step to it through holding the regular and normal elections as scheduled in 1932 for president, vice president, one-half the membership of the Chamber of Deputies and one-third of the Senate of the regular Congress. The United States is prepared to supervise such elections, but it is not prepared to supervise the election of a constituent assembly."

2 Missouri Motorists Held in Lindbergh Quiz

Lebanon, Pa., March 23 (A.P.).—Two Missouri motorists who carried a picture of a baby said to resemble the missing Lindbergh child were arrested at Hershey, Pa., by State highway patrolmen today.

The men, who said they were William White, 23, of Macon, Mo., and Joseph Jones, 19, of Hannibal, Mo., said they were on their way to Philadelphia to visit Jones' sister. The picture, they said, was that of White's niece in Missouri. They are being held in the county jail while authorities here and in Missouri investigate their story.

Employment Trend Shown on Upgrade

Increase in Joblessness Is Halted, Heads of Work Campaign Report.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—An upward trend of employment was noted tonight by headquarters of the united action campaign to put 1,000,000 unemployed Americans to work.

"The curve showing unemployment has stopped going down at last," said a joint statement issued by Mark T. McKee, executive director, and Carl Byoir, director of organization.

"Checking our own conclusions with the statistics of the United States Department of Labor today, we find it true that the trend is now upward. The upward lift is only slight, to be sure, but it is upward and no longer downward."

AID OF SLAIN UNION 'CZAR' IS MURDERED

Chicago Racketeers Blamed in Killing of Driver for Timothy Lynch.

Chicago, March 23 (A.P.).—Otto "Dutch" Hill went the way of his boss today, waylaid by nocturnal assassins and shot to death. The police debited another life to the racketeers among the union teamsters and chauffeurs.

From 1903 until 1927, Hill breezed in and out of big city police cells in the lowly calling of pickpocket. His aliases were known through nearly 100 arrests in Chicago, Louisville, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Portland, Oreg.

Then he became private chauffeur to Timothy J. Lynch, west suburban "czar" of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union. Racketeers ambushed Lynch in the yard of his Maywood home last November. Today it was Hill's turn.

Perhaps Hill had betrayed his boss and was slain by friends of Lynch in retribution, police theorized. Or perhaps the same men who assassinated the union boss were carrying the war on further.

Twisted wires garroted him, and wires bound together his mutilated hands. Three bullets had killed him. The revolver was found in the road nearby. Old fingerprint records taken during his pickpocket career told who the victim was.

Six attaches of the suburban union were arrested in a raid and taken to the police station for questioning.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 23 (A.P.).—Cleveland gangs chalked up another victim today, when the body of Fred Capillo was found shot to death in his automobile on the East Side.

Capillo, police said, was a known bootlegger and racketeer. The body was found near Woodland avenue and East Fifty-fifth street, where a number of gang slayings have been committed in recent years.

Motorist Killed As Building Falls

Auto Crashes Into Store in Philadelphia Following Collision.

Philadelphia, March 23 (A.P.).—Imprisoned under tons of debris when a building collapsed after his automobile crashed into it, James F. Meaker, 36 years old, died early today a few minutes after police and firemen dug him out.

His skull was fractured when nearly half of the two and a half story brick building at Fifty-second and Arch streets tumbled on the automobile. The collapse followed a collision between his car and that of Julian W. Smith, Negro chauffeur for Benjamin Jaffe, of Cynwyd, a suburb. Smith suffered fractures of two ribs and other injuries.

The collision caused Meaker's car to swerve across the street and crash through a plate glass window in the drug store of David A. Kingstone. It struck a pillar supporting the upper part of the building and that portion caved in.

Norfolk Man Is Still Missing From Cruise

Naples, March 23 (A.P.).—Ernst Gunther, 64-year-old Norfolk, Va., merchant, was still missing today, police announced, although it was reported last night that he had been found aboard the Steamer Conte Biancamano.

He was a passenger on the liner for a Mediterranean cruise, but disappeared from the ship on March 10 at Phaleron, Greece. Yesterday police were informed that he had rejoined the vessel at Naples before it sailed for Genoa. Today they discovered that this person was another man of the same name who had been at Sorrento since October.

STUDENT OBSERVERS OF STRIKES WARNED

New Yorkers Told to Beware of "Chivalry" as They Go to Kentucky Fields.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—Warned at a mass meeting to beware of "Kentucky chivalry," 40 New York students, including 12 women, climbed into buses today and set out for a visit to the coal strike districts of eastern Kentucky, to do "sociological research."

A request for police protection telegraphed ahead to County Attorney Walter B. Smith at Pineville, Ky., brought reply that his "advice to these rattle-brained college students is for them to stay out of eastern Kentucky."

Allen Taub, counsel for the International Labor Defense, addressing the mass meeting on the Columbia University campus, warned the group to beware of "Kentucky chivalry," and reminded them that Waldo Frank, writer, was beaten and ejected from the State.

Forest Bailey, counsel for the Civil Liberties Union, told them they "would be lucky if they stayed out of jail." Joseph Lawson, Kentucky miner, accused mine operators of "starving miners to death and killing their children."

Students from Columbia University, the College of the City of New York, New York University, Hunter College, Union Theological Seminary and Sarah Lawrence College comprised the group. They are to be joined at Knoxville, Tenn., Friday by about 75 students from other colleges.

The national college committee of the National Student League arranged the excursion. Donald J. Henderson, president, and instructor in economics at Columbia, explained the purpose is purely sociological research.

County Not to Tolerate Communistic Speeches

Pineville, Ky., March 23 (A.P.).—Warning that no Communistic activities and no incendiary speeches will be tolerated during the visit of students to the southeastern Kentucky coal fields was issued by city and county officials here today.

The students, representing a dozen or so colleges and universities, are expected to meet in Knoxville, Tenn., Friday, drive and reach the Bell County coal fields late that afternoon.

The visiting students will be "accorded the freedom of the county," Walter B. Smith, county attorney, said today, "but the moment they identify themselves with the 'Red' movement, they will be filed with other exhibits we have in jail here. We will not tolerate any Communistic activities in Bell County."

Mrs. M. E. Broughton, the sheriff, said: "We will not tolerate any incendiary speeches."

Fascism Birthday Observed in Italy

Imposing Exercises Attend Thirteenth Anniversary of Ruling Party.

Rome, March 23 (A.P.).—There were concerts in the downtown squares tonight, and the public buildings were bathed in electric lights, for on this day thirteen years ago Benito Mussolini, a newspaperman from Milan, launched the Fascist party.

He and a band of others, determined to wipe out Communism in Italy, met in San Sepolcro Square at Milan and laid the foundations of the party which now covers the country.

All Fascist Italy celebrated today with imposing ceremonies, and every man left from that first group in Milan received a document from Il Duce certifying his part in the formation of the party. Churchs bells rang in all the cities and villages; battle flags were consigned to the young Fascists of combat, whose ages run from 18 to 21; Fascists met in full uniform at their local headquarters to hear the premier's offficial message, and in the afternoon Mussolini presided at a meeting of the national council.

OHIO COAL STRIKE SPREADS TO EAST

nounced a wage reduction from $4.30 to $3.20 a day and the Ohio-Pennsylvania company had announced a 15 per cent slash.

More than 1,000 miners went on strike at the Dillonvale mine, No. 1; the Piney Fork mines, Nos. 1 and 2, and a working near Bergholz. Some 800 men prepared to strike at Unionvale. Hanna officials announced the Dillonvale and Piney Fork mines would be closed, and workers started at once to dismantle the Dillonvale and Piney Fork, No. 1, workings. The threatened strike at Unionvale mine, however, did not materialize today.

In the Tuscarawas field the Wolford mine near Newport, idle for a month because of a wage dispute, was reopened. The owners said 55 men went to work, but union leaders placed the number at 25. County officers, a National Guard observer and 75 union pickets were at the mine for the reopening, but there was no disorder.

R. L. Ireland, vice president of the Hanna company, late today issued a statement in which he said the United Mine Workers of America were attempting to reorganize the union, using the strike as a weapon. Mr. Ireland said he saw the present strike as "a death blow to the industry in eastern Ohio."

"JESSE JAMES" ON WAY TO WESLEY HEIGHTS

Blood and thunder and good old-fashioned melodrama was the program last night when the thriller, "Jesse James," was presented by the Wesley Heights Players at the Community Club. This marked the fiftieth anniversary of the play, which is second only to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in the number of times produced. Left to right, kneeling—Lawrence Jones, Melvin R. Hildreth, Ethel Gawler and Lynn Edminster. Standing—R. M. Arundel, Henry D. Ralph, Mae Gwehr, J. A. Stone, Margaret Stone and Douglas Rollow.

TROOPS AND POLICE CLASH IN MINE AREA

Larksville Chief Says One of His Men Was Clubbed in Routing of Strikers.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 23 (A.P.).—State troopers, policing the rich Pennsylvania anthracite area, clashed today with Larksville Borough police at an insurgent miners' meeting, while a sniper further tempted martial law in the bituminous fields of Ohio by firing on National Guardsmen protecting property in the Hocking Valley.

In Pennsylvania, a group of anthracite miners defied union officials ten days ago and went on strike to force equalization of work at mines. In Ohio, soft coal workers are out to compel resognition of the United Mine Workers of America and to resist a uniform wage scale cutting pay to $3.20 a day and the tonnage rate to 38 cents.

The Ohio strike spread today to the Eastern field. One thousand men around Steubenville joined 7,000 previously striking in the Hocking Valley and Sunday Creek fields.

1,800 More Walk Out.

Anthracite strikers in the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton area closed down the Loomis colliery of the Glen Alden Coal Co., which employes 1,800 men. This balanced losses to their ranks by the return of miners to the Pine Ridge, Delaware and Laurel collieries of the Hudson Coal Co.

The lower region, around Shenandoah and Pottsville, was tranquil. All mines scheduled to operate there were in production except packers 2, 3, 4 and 5 of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co. Raven's Run, closed yesterday, worked today.

George Bialek, chief of police of Larksville, declared tonight that State troopers rode into that borough, routed a meeting of 300 strikers planning picket patrol and clubbed Patrolman Andrew Cumack and High Constable Peter Bushinsky. He said troopers invaded the town in spite of the fact that he and the burgesses of Larksville and Plymouth had asked Sheriff Luther M. Kniffen not to send aid unless requested.

Disorder Reports Denied.

Capt. William A. Clark, commanding the Wyoming Barracks, called the affair "greatly exaggerated." He said he had no reports that borough officials were clubbed. He added:

"We have received complaints of disorder in both boroughs. The complaints were made by a stripping company operating along the borough line and the wives and families of men employed there. We moved merely to prevent disturbances."

Martial law hung more closely than ever over the Hocking Valley of Ohio tonight. A guard patrolling the Lick Run mine of the Manhattan Coal Co., near Nelsonville, was fired upon several times by a sniper who apparently escaped 40 rounds of machine-gun fire sent in this direction. No one was hurt.

The shooting was the second overt act since Gov. George White threatened martial law for the area if strike leaders failed to control the miners. A railroad switch was dynamited near Athens earlier.

Another Escape Tunnel Dug in Missouri Prison

Jefferson City, Mo., March 23 (A.P.).—An escape attempt was foiled by Missouri Penitentiary officials today when they discovered a short tunnel which had been dug to within a few feet of the main sewer leading from the institution. The sewer empties into the Missouri River. Prison officials said they had not determined the names or number of prisoners involved in the plot.

The tunnel is the second found within the prison walls within recent weeks. Officials also recently thwarted a plot of four inmates of the "hard boiled" cellhouse who had fashioned single shot pistols and dirks from scrap iron and secreted the weapons in their cells.

Jury Disagrees in Case Of Alleged Illinois Ponzi

Belvidere, Ill., March 23 (A.P.).—For the second time the prosecution failed today to convict Albert D. W. Banham, the Midas of Belvidere, on charges of operating a confidence game through the lure of large interest rates.

A jury reported after 43½ hours' deliberation that it was unable to agree on a verdict and was dismissed.

Gandhi's Adopted Daughter Arrested.

WORLD COURT WINS PRAISE FROM STIMSON IN LETTER

action of the court in entertaining such a request and that we obtained."

Senator Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, was inclined to differ with the Secretary, when he said:

"The revised protocol, drafted under the leadership of Elihu Root, effects a modification of the Senate's reservation insofar as requests for advisory opinions in noncontentious cases are concerned, but, in my opinion the change is not of great importance."

More vigorous comment was made by opponents of the court. Senator Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, called the Secretary's letter a "fine stump speech." He said:

"Considering the manner in which it came to us and was released for the press, I remarked it was rather a shabby trick. His statements are diametrically opposed."

The senator was evidently referring to previous remarks by Col. Stimson on the subject of the court. Senator Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, although he is an earnest advocate of the international tribunal, declared in the executive session yesterday that there was "an apparent contradiction" between the present Stimson opinion and the news he expressed in a note to President Hoover in 1929.

Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, who has occasion to clash with the Secretary on the privileged nature of State Department documents, said the Stimson letter was "at variance" with his previous views.

Defenders of the Stimson point of view came forward after Senator Thomas Walsh (Democrat), of Montana, disagreed with both Senator Pittman and Senator Johnson and said he failed to see the "necessary inconsistency" in the Stimson declarations.

Senator Borah announced that he intends to invite Secretary Stimson again to appear before the committee. He said:

"Many members of the committee were not satisfied with the Secretary's letter. Indeed, it was contended that it led to confusion. It was decided to await the pleasure of the Secretary to ask him some questions. He will proceed as soon as he is able."

The Secretary's letter declared:

"May I refer to certain other considerations which, in my opinion, go far to remove the original objections which the Senate had to the statute of the World Court and which even without the portocol which I have discussed make adherence on the part of the United States unquestionably safe. When the subject was first discussed, there was evidently fear in this country lest the use of advisory opinions might be so handled as to turn the World Court into a private adviser of the council or the assembly of the League of Nations, and that under this procedure the nations of the world might find themselves suddenly faced by decisions which had been rendered in private and in the discussion of which all parties interested had not been heard. Such a situation is no longer possible. The ten years during which the court has been in existence and the amendments to its charter which have been made in the proctocol of revision have removed such a situation beyond the realm of possibility. By the rules adopted by the court itself and the protocol of revision, which has frozen these rules into statute law, procedure in respect to advisory opinions has been assimilated entirely to the procedure which governs the regular procedure of all courts in the hearing of litigated cases. Not only must advisory opinions be rendered in public after due notice to all states and after public hearing, or opportunity for hearing, to every state concerned, but under the rule adopetd by the court in the Eastern Carelia case, the court will not entertain a proposition for an advisory opinion in any dispute unless the parties to that dispute submit it to the jurisdiction of the court.

In his conclusion, the Secretary said:

"The further I have examined this question of advisory opinions, and the longer I have reflected upon these protocols, the more clear I am that not only have the conditions originally imposed by the Senate reservations been fully met, but that additional machinery has been provided for preliminary negotiations which greatly enhances the efficacy of the reservations themselves. By the ready willingness of our fellow-signatories to these statutes our utmost precautions have been more than met. Our views as to the necessities and proprieties of judicial procedure have been adopted, and we are offered the opportunity by adherence to throw the great influence of this country into a development of this court along the lines which have made American judicial procedure cherished and famous.

"By joining we incur absolutely no liabilities, except the insignificant liability to pay our share of the court's expenses, while on the contrary we gain a power to exercise our influence not only in the choice of the judges of the court but in its methods of procedure as well, which we do not now have. Never before was the world in greater need of the orderly development of international rules of conduct by the wise method of judicial decision, which we Americans are so well acquainted with in the development of the common law of this country. We have delayed long in availing ourselves of that opportunity. I sincerely hope that we will now assume the privilege and the responsibility of taking a part in that growth in the future.

"Very sincerely yours,

IRELAND MUST PRESERVE OATH, IS BRITISH WARNING

MacDonald's house to prepare his statement.

In the House he announced that the communication to Dublin "will make the British standpoint clear beyond the possibility of a doubt." He explained that the Irish communication announced that the Fianna Fail government considers the oath of allegiance not mandatory. The British view, he said, is that the oath is an integral part of the treaty.

There has been no commuication from Dublin with regard to the land annuities, Mr. Thomas said, "but judging from the statements reported to have been made by Mr. De Valera in the Free State Senate, we understand that his government proposes to retain the Irish land annuities."

Says Pact Demands Payment.

The British government, he declared, considers that the Free State is bound "by the most formal and explicit understanding to continue paying these annuities to the national debt commissioners."

Failure to pay "will be a manifest violation of an agreement which is binding in law and in honor on the Irish Free State, whatever administration be in power, in exactly the same way as the treaty itself is binding on both countries."

He refused to be drawn into discussion by opposition questioners, and begged the members to say nothing in debate which might make the situation more difficult.

With the policies of both sides thus clearly defined, the attitude in political circles tonight was one of tense expectancy as to the next development.

There was a suggestion in some quarters that the dispute might be referred to the World Court or the League of Nations.

After today's developments, however, the opinion in informed circles was that the British government never would permit outside jurisdiction in a matter in which the points at issue seemed to her to be so crystal clear.

Party Backs De Valera.

Dublin, Irish Free State, March 23 (A.P.).—President De Valera's action in notifying England that the Free State intends to abolish the oath of allegiance and the Irish land annuities has caused jubilation among the Finna Fail members of the Dail.

There was a divergence of opinion in the press which followed the usual party lines. The Irish Press, a Fianna Fail organ, said: "We owe no allegiance to the British Crown and we will yield none."

The Irish Times, organ of the Southern Unionists, demanded an immediate session of the Dail to meet the "national emergency," and asserted that De Valera had issued a challenge to England to which the reply "must be of the sternest kind."

At the same time there was some concern over the possibility of disorders during the week-end at commemorations of the Easter week uprising of 1916. Free State troops will be confined to barracks over the week-end.

Fireman Shot to Death After Flare Halts Train

Vicksburg, Miss., March 23 (A.P.).—A signal flare halted a freight train of the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railway near here early today and a few moments later Wilbur Anderson, Negro fireman, was shot to death in the second mysterious attack on Negro railroad men within a week.

Engineer F. W. Behrnes stopped the train as soon as he saw the flare's red glow. The light was extinguished suddenly and an unidentified man with a shotgun climbed into the cab. Anderson leaped to the ground and started running, but was shot down beside the locomotive.

CHARGES ON 6 REDS SCORED IN GEORGIA

Prisoners Had Right to Ask Rescue From Police, High Court Is Told.

Atlanta, Ga., March 23 (A.P.).—Georgia's sovereignty is not at stake when a prisoner not proved guilty of crime tries to persuade bystanders to rescue him from policemen, it was contended in superior court here today by attorneys for six reputed Communists. The State seeks the death penalty for the defendants under an old law against attempts to incite insurrection.

The attorneys attacked the constitutionality of the law itself. In a demurrer they also questioned the validity of the indictment on the ground that it failed to set forth in sufficient detail the nature of communistic propaganda the defendants were alleged to have distributed as a part of their campaign for the overthrow of government.

The demurrer was presented as soon as the case of Joe Carr, M. H. Powers, Mary Dalton, Ann Burlack, Gilmer Brady and Henry Story was called. None of the defendants was present in court, counsel for the State and defense having agreed to settle the law of the case before bringing it before a jury.

W. A. McLelland, of Macon, and Oliver C. Hancock, of Atlanta, defense attorneys, said they expected to appeal if Judge E. E. Pomeroy rules against them on the demurrer. Therefore, there is little prospect of an early trial of the case on its merits.

The six were arrested here in 1930 after a series of meetings at which police said communistic propaganga was distributed. Carr and Powers, after being arrested, were alleged to have appealed to bystanders for rescue. It was largely on that ground that the charges of attempting to incict insurrection were filed.

South Africa Reports Deficit of $6,000,000

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, March 23 (A.P.).—The Union of South Africa has an estimated budget deficit of £1,200,000 ($6,000,000 at par) for the current fiscal year, the finance minister reported today, introducing his budget in the assembly.

With last year's deficit the total will be £2,100,000 at the end of March, he said, and a further drop in revenue is expected for the 1932-33 fiscal year.

CENTRAL EUROPE AID PROGRAM IS READY

League Financial Group to Act for Defeat of Crisis Threat.

Paris, March 23 (A.P.).—A series of recommendations of vast importance in the central European economic crisis will be made tomorrow in the report of the League of Nations financial committee.

It was understood that the report would urge:

1. A loan to Austria.
2. A loan to Greece.
3. Temporary reduction of Bulgarian payments on foreign loans.
4. Continuation of the Hungarian moratorium for the present.

The loan to the Austrian government, which has been urgently sought by Vienna for months, is necessary to permit the nation to survive the present crisis without suspending service on foreign loans, the committee was said to have decided.

In Greece a cabinet crisis, which has led Premier Eleutherios Venizelos to threaten to resign, has made the question of a loan doubly important.

In regard to Bulgaria, the committee suggested that the government be authorized to make a 50 per cent reduction of service on foreign debts during the present difficulties in connection with transfer of large sums of money from one country to another.

The committee suggested, in connection with the situation in Hungary, that the present moratorium on foreign debts be maintained pending improvement of the situation which would permit plans for an arrangement with the creditors of Hungary.

Funds Lacking to Run Opera Another Season

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—The possibility of a suspension of grand opera in New York was raised today when the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company met and converted it from a stock corporation to a membership corporation.

The company's capital of $500,000 and most of its reserves virtually were wiped out during the current season, an announcement said, because of reduced receipts. This "leaves it with insufficient funds to assure another season."

Havana Police to Avoid Strikers.

Havana, Cuba, March 23 (A.P.).—Havana police will be held in quarters tomorrow to guard against possible disorders in connection with the 24-hour general strike called by the National Labor Confederation and affiliated organizations. Police authorities said they believed arrest of some leaders had broken the backbone of the strike.

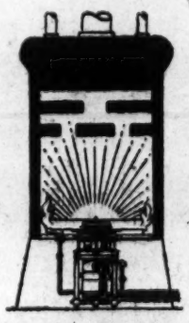
CUT COST OF HEATING YOUR HOME NOW

1. ON PUBLIC SERVICE PLAN: Small monthly payments including service for as long as 5 years.

SAVE ON FUEL COST



Petro-Nokol users commonly heat their homes for as much as ⅓ less than formerly. Yet the comfort, ease and cleanliness is so great that few would give up their burners even if oil heat cost more.

RADIANT HEAT SAVES MONEY

It's the radiant flame that saves you money. For penetrating, radiant heat is the ideal form of heat. The same intense heat you feel from the summer sun. Just pure heat rays. No smoke. No odor. No sound.

Your own boiler was designed to take advantage of radiant heat. Nearly 50% of all the heat your boiler absorbs should be radiant heat energy just from the brilliant, luminous flame itself. That's why Petro-Nokol's radiant flame saves on oil. This is in addition to the normal heat energy absorbed from the hot gases of the flame "scrubbing" all the interior surface of your boiler. And with this radiant flame right at the grate level...it cuts fuel costs even lower.

SAVE ON THE EXTRAS

Remember . . . the cost of fuel is not the cost of heating. With your present method you are paying for a lot of extras that do not show on your fuel bill. With Petro-Nokol Oil Heat you save the cost of the furnace man or your own labor; the cost of ash removal. Its cleanliness reduces the high cost of housecleaning, dry cleaning and redecorating. It prevents waste of overheating.

HELPS PREVENT COLDS

By conditioning the air . . . keeping soot, dust and grime out of the air you breathe . . . and maintaining an absolutely uniform temperature that prevents drafts, it is conducive to better health . . . fewer colds. In this way it reduces doctor bills, and loss of time from your daily tasks. Think what these extras are costing you now.

We supply the oil too.

SAVE ON DOMESTIC HOT WATER

At a lower cost than with any other automatic system, you can enjoy oceans of hot water for kitchen and bath . . . summer and winter. A special heating element provided by Petro-Nokol enables you to enjoy the luxury of all the hot water you can use . . . day and night . . . year around . . . absolutely automatically.

CHOOSE EITHER PLAN

No matter what method you are now using . . . you are probably paying for a Petro-Nokol installation without having its advantages. By trying to wash dishes in luke warm water . . . doing without hot water half the time . . . never having enough for the whole family to take a bath the same night . . . trying to keep the little fire going . . . or having to go down and light the heater. End all this now. While you are heating your house for less money, save on the cost of domestic hot water, too. Choose either plan that suits you best.

BARUCH LEADS MOVE FOR SILVER PARLEY

Proposed World Conference Indorsed as Aid to Open Oriental Markets.

(United Press.)

The United States Government is testing sentiment among officials and financial leaders of eight foreign countries toward holding an international conference directed to devise means of restoring silver prices.

Chairman Somers, of the House coinage committee, made this announcement yesterday as the committee met to hear Bernard F. Baruch, New York financier, who indorsed the proposed conference and said firmly that the United States should assume the initiative.

American financiers who have been asked to give an opinion on the project include S. Parker Gilbert, former director general of reparations; Owen D. Young, author of the Young plan, and Otto H. Kahn, New York banker.

Letters also were sent to the Bank of International Settlement at Basel, Switzerland; to Montague Norman, head of the Bank of England; Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank in Germany, and to financial authorities in Mexico, India, China, France and Canada.

In his testimony before the committee, Mr. Baruch agreed with two major observations of a subcommittee that has been considering the silver problem. They are:

1. That influence which depreciated the exchange value of Oriental stocks of silver impaired the buying power of those nations.

2. That after the war, the demonetization and revaluation of silver resulted in gold coverage in India and China and threw great quantities of silver on the market, depressing the price of silver.

Mr. Baruch said cooperative action among the interested powers toward purchase and segregation of silver as a commodity would increase the market price of the metal and also the buying power of oriental wealth affected.

Oil Cut Law Case Before High Court

Validity of Oklahoma's Statute to Regulate Output Argued.

(United Press.)

The Supreme Court yesterday considered the validity of Oklahoma's oil curtailment act. The act, which was enforced by the Oklahoma State militia by direction of Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, was carried to the high court by the Champlin Refining Co., operators of wells, pipe lines and wholesale and retail distribution systems in Oklahoma.

The company claims the law is invalid as it violates the due process clause of the Constitution, the interstate commerce provisions and the antitrust laws. Representative James M. Beck, solicitor-general in President Harding's Cabinet, questioned the wisdom of regulating "basic industries" in an effort to meet falling prices.

Bill Changing War-Time Espionage Act Approved

(Associated Press.)

A favorable report on a bill by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, to repeal the stringent provisions of the war-time espionage act was sent to the Senate yesterday by the judiciary committee.

The committee noted in its report "it would seem as though Congress might safely be relied upon, in the deplorable event of the occurrance of another war calling for legislation of an extraordinary character, to meet the emergency as it may arise. There seems to be no sound reason for anticipating such a contingency."

Louise Brooks Engaged To William Howard 3d

Palm Beach, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, tonight announced the engagement of her granddaughter, Miss Louise Brooks, to William Ross Howard 3d, of Baltimore. The couple arrived here last week to be guests of the Stotesburys.

Miss Brooks is one of the most popular debutantes of the season. Mr. Howard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ross Howard, prominent in Baltimore society.

HOUSE GROUP BREACH WIDENS ON PAY CUT

and tabulations computed to fit the manifold proposals put forward. He expects to spend the better part of today working out "one or two" of the more recent plans advanced.

The Bureau of Efficiency chart, to which committee members constantly referred in discussing their plans, showed the great bulk of Federal employes draw below $3,000 a year.

According to the chart, 345,000 employes receive under $1,000; 340,000, between $1,000 and $2,000; 300,000, between $2,000 and $3,000; 30,000, between $3,000 and $4,000; 11,000, between $4,000 and $5,000; and $4,000, between $5,000 and $6,000. From here the chart tapers off to the vanishing point, above $15,000.

The House pay cut opposition continued attack on the program off the floor of the House. Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, on whose shoulders has fallen the leadership of this group, declared strikes and general disorder comparable only to the panic of 1873 will follow enactment of Federal pay-cut legislation.

SALES TAX MEASURE FACES ITS TEST IN HOUSE TODAY

balance the budget, even after the sales tax provision is eliminated from the bill."

Representative Henry T. Rainey (Democrat), of Illinois, who has been unwavering in his predictions that the House leaders would win their fight to retain the tax, said the provision would be retained.

"The sales tax will be approved and, though there probably will be a fight on the beer amendment and some lesser fights over other provisions, the bill will be passed without much trouble," he said.

Garner Maintains Silence.

Speaker John N. Garner, who has been urged by leaders of his own and the Republican party to step into the fight in favor of the sales tax, continued to stand on his past public statements, the first of which was interpreted as a desertion of the sales tax and the second of which was not satisfactory to sponsors of the tax.

What other taxes would be substituted if the sales tax is wiped out remained a subject for speculation. Opponents of the sales tax said they would have substitutes to offer, but the general disposition was to put the job up to the ways and means committee.

Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, acting chairman of the committee, has announced that the alternative will be adoption of the tax program recommended by the Treasury Department which the committee rejected as much more objectionable than the sales tax. Substitutes which would be considered, he said, included increases in postage rates, cigarette taxes, special taxese on automobiles, radios, phonographs, real estate transfers, stamp taxes on bank checks and a tax on gasoline. Worn from the strain of the battle he has conducted, almost deserted by his committee, Mr. Crisp remained at home gathering strength for the battle today, while the House was considering miscellaneous bills on the calendar yesterday.

Several Amendments Attached.

Several amendments already have been attached to the bill by the opponents of the sales tax, but how much revenue these will produce remains a matter of wide disagreement. The Ramseyer inheritance tax amendment, adopted Monday, was estimated by its author and his supporters to produce between $70,000,000 and $80,000,000 in the next fiscal year. Representative C. William Ramseyer (Republican), of Iowa, its author, estimated the eventual annual yield of his graduated estate tax with a maximum of 45 per cent, would be $500,000,000.

These estimates were all wrong so far as they concerned balancing the budget, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills informed the House in a letter sent yesterday to Representative Willis C. Hawley (Republican), of Oregon, ranking minority members of the ways and means committee.

The Ramseyer amendment, Mr. Mills said, would not yield much more than $20,000,000 in the fiscal year 1933 and not more than a total of $135,000,000 in 1933 and 1934.

"This is a liberal estimate," the Secretary wrote.

"So far as the fiscal year 1933 is concerned, for which the House of Representatives is now budgeting, the amendment will not, in all probability, yield much in excess of $20,000,000. It is obvious that the proposed tax bill can not became law before the first of May, if then. The new rates would only apply to the estates of descendants dying after the new law goes into effect."

1929 Returns As Basis.

The estimate of a return between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000 from the estate tax, he said, obviously was computed on the basis of returns for 1929.

"It is well known," he continued, "that values during most of 1929 were grossly inflated. Any estimates based on 1930 returns, therefore, reflect grossly inflated values and can not, in the very nature of things, represent a fair basis on which to forecast future returns.

"The important fact to be noted in connection with the revenue bill now pending before the House and intended to furnish adequate revenue for the fiscal year 1933, is that increased estate tax rates can not be made effective in time to have any real influence on 1933 revenues."

The differences over the prospective revenue yield of the Ramseyer amendment are indicative of the wide divergence in estimates on other proposals, some of which have already been included in the bill. When the bill has got through the House only an expert actuary will be able to give a competent forecast of its total revenue possibilities and even his estimate will be subject to economic factors.

Loss In Original Estimate.

There are differences over the amount which would be lost by the committee exemptions to the sales tax. Representative Crisp estimated the exemptions would mean a loss of $140,000,000 from the $595,000,000 total the sales tax was expected to produce. Representative La Guardia estimated yesterday that the amendments would cut the original estimated total by $250,000,000.

When the fight is resumed today the first paragraph of the sales tax section will be formally under consideration, but it is generally agreed that what happens in the fight over that shall decide.

Representative Crisp has offered an amendment to exempt food, clothing, medicines and other things. Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach (Republican), of New Jersey, has offered an amendment to exempt American merchant vessels and their equipment when construction is helped by Government loans. Other members are prepared to offer other amendments.

Doughton Amendment.

Representative Doughton has offered an amendment to strike out the whole business. Representative Thomas Cullen (Democrat), of New York, has offered a substitute for the sales tax. It provides for a tax of 3 cents a pint on anti-Volstead beer in States which permit its manufacture. That will be beaten, but it will afford another test of prohibition strength.

Incidentally, the revenue bill is being considered by the House in committee of the whole House sitting on the state of the Union. What it does in the committee of the whole will have to be approved by the House sitting as the House. This may seem an involved procedure, but it is according to the rules, and an important aspect of the votes in committee of the whole is that there are no roll call nor record votes to worry a man when he goes back home for more votes.

Senate Wet Move Is Joined by Davis

Signs Tydings Petition to Force Vote on Modification Step.

(Associated Press.)

The Tydings petition asking the Senate judiciary committee to report out a resolution for repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment was signed yesterday by Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania. His signature made 25 names to the petition.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, its author, will seek a vote March 30.

Senate prohibition leaders expressed confidence yesterday in the outcome. Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, predicted there would not be more than 25 or 30 votes for consideration of a repeal resolution.

This number is less than a third of the Senate. A majority is necessary to obtain the discharge of the committee from consideration of legislation. Two-thirds is necessary for submission of a repeal resolution to the States.

Students Crowd Offices Of Planes for Passage

Scores of college students, homeward bound for the Easter holidays, yesterday swamped the reservation office of the Ludington Air Line to obtain passage on planes leaving Washington Airport for the North and West.

Gene Vidal, executive vice president of the line, ordered four extra ships placed in service to care for the rush. Two planes were given over entirely to girls from Trinity College, while the remainder of the students were from Georgetown and Catholic Universities. More than 200 persons booked passage during the day, it was said.

expected to be removed from Harbin to Imienpo in a day or two.

Ting Chao is reported to have 2,000 men concentrated at Pinhsien and Fangcheng, where they are cooperating with large irregular bands in the nearby regions.

The only Japanese forces remaining at Harbin are a mixed brigade under Maj. Gen. Murai.

Shanghai, March 23 (A.P.).—A threat of new fighting arose today as the peace parley between the Chinese and Japanese broke up over a difference in rank between the negotiators.

The Japanese said the Chinese troops were edging back toward Shanghai, inside the 12½-mile safety zone, and that the Japanese were preparing to take strong measures to prevent any encroachment upon that limit.

Gen. Chiang Kuang-Nai, the Chinese delegate, walked out of the peace parley and said he would not come back until Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, the Japanese spokesman, had been replaced by a full general.

Chinese soldiers crossed Soochow Creek at Chiawangmiao, Japanese observers said. This point is inside the zone of evacuation laid out by Gen. Uyeda in his ultimate of February 20.

The Japanese asked the British authorities to request that the Chinese withdraw south of the creek.

As for the peace parley, it was generally expected that it would be resumed tomorrow, possibly with Gen. Tao Chi, commanding the Chinese garrison at Shanghai, in place of Gen. Chiang Kuang-Nai.

A new municipal council, chosen in a vote which continued through the past two days, has been elected to govern the International Settlement. Joseph W. Carney, one of the two American members, failed of reelection and the only American on the new council is Frank J. Raven, banker and real estate operator.

Changchun, Manchuria, March 23 (A.P.).—A new battle, in which 5 Japanese and 40 Chinese were killed, broke out today in the widespread revolt in Kirin Province against the new Manchurian state.

Nanking, China, March 23 (U.P.).—Gen. Wang Ken, the Chinese militarist who was educated in the United States, has been convicted by a court-martial and executed, it was learned from a reliable source tonight.

Gen. Wang was commander of an independent brigade which fought against the Japanese at Miachangchen in the Shanghai warfare, but he was involved in a strange incident that occurred in the International Settlement.

King George to Donate 'Maundy Money' to Poor

London, March 23 (U.P.).—King George will revive an ancient English tradition tomorrow, when, accompanied by Queen Mary, he will go to Westminister Abbey to distribute "Maundy money" as alms to the aged people of the parish.

The king probably will carry posies and wear a linen sash, symbolizing the towels with which the monarch washed the feet of the poor on Maundy Thursday in the fourteenth century.

ANN HARDING TELLS PLANS FOR DIVORCE

Says Films Have Made Couple's Position Untenable; Mate Confirms.

Hollywood, March 23 (A.P.).—In two brief letters delivered to the press, Ann Harding, beautiful blonde star of the films, and Harry C. Bannister, film player, announced plans today to seek a divorce.

The plans of the couple came as a shock to Hollywood, which always had believed "Ann and Harry" to be among the happiest of the married set.

Upon the film colony, where Miss Harding has attained the greatest degree of her success, the couple placed the blame for the breaking up of their home. They said that motion pictures had placed them in a position which no longer was "tenable."

Miss Harding is under contract at RKO studios. Bannister recently announced he had purchased his contract from the same organization and intended to free lance.

Miss Harding's Letter.

A letter bearing Miss Harding's name, a stylish blue sheet of stationery with her name embossed at the top and dated "March 21," read:

"The following statement, together with a statement from Mr. Bannister, is being delivered simultaneously to the general press:

"We, Harry Bannister and Ann Harding Bannister, are getting a divorce, because, during the three years in the motion picture industry, we have been placed in a position which is untenable.

"Due to Harry's constant and generous effort to forward my interests, often at the expense of his own, he is gradually losing his identity, becoming a background for my activities, and looked upon as 'Ann Harding's husband.'

"We have decided that the only way for Harry to reestablish himself in his profession is to cut the Gordian knot, to set forth on his own—quite apart from me—and win his way back to the standing he enjoyed in the theater, before this unfortunate situation in pictures has a chance to reach us, and destroy the love and respect we have for each other.

"We have found courage to preserve the thing we have in the way that seems best to us. (Signed), Ann Harding Bannister."

Husband Declares Love.

A shorter letter was inclosed bearing Bannister's name:

"The following statement, together with a statement from Mrs. Bannister, is being delivered simultaneously to the general press:

"During the five and one-half years I have been married to Ann Harding I have had the love and respect and devotion of the very great and lovely person who is my wife.

"Therefore, in order to preserve this in its entirety, we find the apparently drastic course of divorce the quickest and best solution to our eventual complete happiness.

"There is nothing further that I can add to Mrs. Bannister's statement. (Signed), Harry C. Bannister."

The couple have a daughter about 2 years of age.

MORGAN BROADCASTS PLAN TO HELP NEEDY

10 cents a week for 20 weeks. Those who feel they can afford it without undue hardship may give 25 cents, 50 cents or $1.

"It is not a plan to raise a great sum of money from comparatively few people. But it is the only plan that I have seen or heard of by which a great sum may be raised over a period of months and without undue hardship on any giver; and a sum coming from a far greater number of people than has ever before been brought into one common effort for the good of the community. * * *

"The block-aid idea is the right idea—it involves going to everybody—to those who have little and to those who have much—and asking for help for relief work in such small amounts that no one who has seen with his own eyes or heard from others of the greatness of the need will hesitate to give the sum asked."

He emphasized that there is no "red-tape" connected with the scheme and "nothing bureaucratic about it; it is purely neighborly in its intent."

"It is my earnest hope," he said in concluding, "and I fully expect that hope will be realized; that this great block-aid organization, starting on its work next Monday, will prove in large measure to be the much desired solution of the most pressing problem of our country today."

Caruso's Widow Loses Guardianship of Gloria

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—The American says Mrs. Dorothy P. B. Caruso Ingram, widow of Enrico Caruso, the tenor, has been removed as general guardian for her daughter, Gloria, 12, because she neglected to file the annual accounting of the estate as demanded by law.

The accounting was due in January, 1931, for the previous year. On September 30 Mrs. Ingram was ordered to show cause why she should not be removed. She never answered the action.

BROTHER OF NURSE KILLS HER SLAYER

Tragedy Follows Spurning of Attention by North Carolina Woman.

Raeford, N. C., March 23 (U.P.).—Frank Russell, 35 years old, tonight shot to death Carrie Wright, 25-year-old graduate nurse, who refused to accept dates with him, and in turn was killed by Tierce Wright, 22, the girl's brother.

Tierce Wright was exonerated in connection with Russell's death on grounds of self-defense, Dr. G. W. Brown, coroner, announced after an inquest late tonight.

According to evidence at the inquest Russell entered the Wright home and found Carrie Wright preparing supper in the kitchen. As she walked toward him he suddenly drew a .38 caliber pistol and shot her three times. She fell forward on her face.

Russell then was said to have made an attempt to shoot Tierce and Viola Wright, brother and sister of Carrie. Viola secured a pistol while running through the house to escape Russell, gave the gun to her brother who shot and killed Russell.

Mrs. Wright, widowed mother, also was said to have been threatened with death by Russell.

Tierce surrendered immediately to Sheriff B. H. Hodgen, who organized the inquest with the help of Dr. Brown.

FACING ITS DUTY.

Today the House of Representatives faces its most crucial test of the present session. In spite of the riotous temperament which has characterized the debate on the tax bill thus far, the issue is clearly drawn. Will the House vote to balance the budget, or will it succumb to the ballyhoo of "soaking the rich" and leave the credit of the United States in jeopardy?

The insurgents and fanatics have had their fling. They have voted to boost income taxes in the highest bracket to 72 per cent. Inheritance taxes under which the Government would claim 45 per cent of all estates worth more than $10,000,000 have been written into the House bill. These drastic measures encountered little opposition in the House. No one objects when heavy taxes are laid on the fortunes of multi-millionaires. It is right that they should contribute to the maintenance of government in proportion to their means. But that is not the question at issue.

The responsible leaders of both parties recognized from the beginning that no plan to "conscript wealth" would yield sufficient to plug up the hole in the Treasury. Hundreds of fortunes have disappeared in the last two years. Others have been reduced by half, two-thirds or more. The coffers of the wealthy can not be made to yield all the revenue needed to balance the budget even when surtaxes are boosted to the point of confiscation.

Representative LaGuardia brought forth a program of taxing luxuries and "soaking the rich" to replace the sales tax. But Secretary of the Treasury Mills informed him that these items would raise only a fraction of the sum required. The House rebels have nothing to offer in place of the sales tax. Uncle Sam's $2,250,000,000 deficit causes them no worry. Their only purpose is to defeat the tax bill by a gesture of deference to the common people. Will the House cower behind this flimsy pretense and thus attempt to evade the responsibility of passing on to the people the burden of its own past extravagance?

Leaders of the ways and means committee have eliminated the most controversial items from the sales tax. Foods, clothing, medicine, farm equipment and other essentials are on the proposed list of exemptions. Even though this concession will take away a large slice of revenue, and may necessitate the enactment of special imposts, it is well to eliminate the basic necessities of life from taxes. As it stands the tax project of the ways and means committee is no longer vulnerable to the chief arguments of the insurgent forces. The House can not refuse to pass it without imperiling the financial stability of the Government.

Virtually every member of the House has recognized the advisability of balancing the budget. If the House should prove incapable of accomplishing that objective, it would be a severe blow to the country. Any tax measures that it might enact would be unpopular, but a large new source of revenue is imperative. Both the House and Senate must face the music, or the people whom they represent will suffer more serious consequences than those arising from higher taxes.

CUBA WEATHERS THE STORM.

Cuba has felt the depression keenly, and is nevertheless setting an excellent example in stability. President Machado has announced that Cuba will ask for no moratorium on any of her internal or external debts. In spite of the difficulties arising from the low price of sugar, Cuba's foremost crop, the government is in a position to meet all of its financial obligations when they fall due. No bonds will be issued. President Machado's government has set its hand to the task of holding down expenditures within the revenues.

Steps are also being taken to broaden Cuba's economic interests so that the island will be more self-sustaining. One of the first projects is to encourage cattle breeding. Cuba may soon furnish its own meat supply. Similar enterprises will be introduced to supplement the sugar industry. President Machado is convinced that the growing of sugar cane must be curbed, because the world supply exceeds the demand. At present he is leaving this problem of adjustment to the sugar producers, while making long-range plans to relieve the situation.

On the whole, Cuba has withstood the effects of the depression with remarkable fortitude. An abortive revolution was put down. The government maintains stability in the face of serious economic odds. This record stands out in sharp contrast to what has happened in most South American and some Central American capitals. Cuba's economic welfare is closely allied to that of the United States. It is gratifying to Americans to learn that the island is meeting its problems with courage and constructive measures.

AN UNIMPAIRED ASSET.

There has been no depreciation in the greatest asset of this country—the American spirit. The severe and prolonged depression has again served to demonstrate that the Nation has reserves of courage and faith sufficient to meet any emergency. The demands of lean years and unemployment are often harder to bear than the sacrifices imposed amid the patriotic enthusiasm of war times. The American people have been repeatedly tested in the fires of both crises and never have been found wanting.

When the history of this last depression is written it will reveal that astonishing resources of cooperation were developed in comparison with other periods of economic and financial distress. Three major features will distinguish the present era—the spirit of cooperation between capital and labor, the organized efforts to alleviate conditions and the better regulation of production.

Equally commendable has been the cheerful disposition with which States, cities, communities and individuals have accepted the responsibility of caring for the unemployed and unfortunate. Attempts to stampede the Government and Congress into disastrous dole policies of one kind or another have, almost without exception, been as resolutely decried by local as by Federal authorities. That the plight of millions of citizens without work has been deplorable is true, but conditions, except in rare instances, are not as bad as extremists would have them appear. The working people of the United States are not allowing their workless neighbors to starve. Only one governor among all the 48 claims that starvation conditions exist in his State, and his picture of the situation in Pennsylvania is repudiated by many responsible citizens and organizations.

The tide has turned. Deflation and stagnation have done their worst, and business has begun the gradual ascent. These encouraging conditions were presaged by a widespread improvement in sentiment throughout the Nation. The Nation and industry in general emerge from the depression with some heavy losses charged off, but with basic resources unimpaired, and with the American spirit militant and confident.

CARNEGIE MEDALS.

A dispatch from Pittsburgh calls attention to the fact that it is 25 years since the first distribution of hero medals by the Carnegie commission. At the time the press brimmed with notices on the subject. Today, however, the fund is so much a matter of course that it is given little publicity.

Andrew Carnegie's original thought was that heroism might be stimulated by recognition and reward. He believed that there was too little recognition of the spirit of brotherly love and comradely sacrifice in the world, and it seemed to him that if honors were paid to deeds of conscious valor their number might be increased.

Mr. Carnegie was mistaken in his analysis of the psychology of gallant behavior. Authentic heroism has a characteristic quality of abandonment of self. No man ever deliberately set out to win the Congressional Medal. Public rewards have been granted to those who never considered the possibility of winning them. They came unsought and unexpected. The Carnegie medals, likewise, have gone to instinctively brave and generous men and women. But the money awards have aided in the development of the latent capacities of the humbler of these, and have protected the crippled and sick. In certain cases needy dependents of deceased heroes have been secured against poverty and distress.

Mr. Carnegie was an innovator as a philanthropist, and it follows that he made mistakes. His endowment of valor, however, was well worth while, even if it did not create heroes.

WORLD POPULATION.

The Census Bureau estimates that there are 1,932,500,000 people on the earth. If they were uniformly distributed, the land area of the globe would have a population density of 29.2 to the square mile. The actual density ranges from 2,182 in Hongkong to 1 for every 10 square miles in Alaska.

China has a total population of 474,821,000, and is commonly considered overcrowded. But if the Chinese people were scattered over the entire country there would be about 111 of them to the square mile. In Belgium there is a density of 691. The Netherlands has 599, the United Kingdom 489, Germany 353, Japan 347, Italy 343 and the United States only 41.7.

Of course, not all the land area of any country is habitable. There are regions in each in which people can not live in decent comfort. The room to spread is therefore restricted. Just where to put additional thousands of people is one of the major problems of economists and the governments by which they are employed. The world's population rises, but there can be no commensurate increase in desirable land.

In the United States the problem is not acute. Geographers have estimated that eventually there will be a static maximum of 160,000,000 to 180,000,000 people within the national boundaries. Even so, the country would not be the most crowded section of the planet.

One of the difficulties is the tendency of the masses to move from the farming territories to the cities. The result is frightful slums and all the misery and wickedness which a slum existence implies.

There can be no question that education is needed to bring about a reversal of this condition. Industries should be encouraged to locate in suburban neighborhoods, the standards of farm labor should be improved, roads and railroads should be maintained and expanded, credit should be available for the use of families willing to settle in the less productive areas, and the Federal and State governments should cooperate to make country life more desirable. Such a program would be certain to strengthen the Nation. It would take years to put into effect, but it could and probably will be done.

JAPAN'S GAIN AND LOSS.

Even if Japan can retain control of Manchuria there is no great danger that she will become a formidable menace to Western nations as a producer of manufactured goods, with the exception of textiles. Industrial development in Japan has been largely devoted to producing cotton and silk goods; cotton for China, and raw and woven silk looking largely to the American market. In most other lines the limited output of the factories in Japan offers very limited competition either as to quantity or quality.

Half the population of the islands of Japan are engaged in a never-ending struggle to raise enough rice to feed ever-increasing numbers. Nearly 1,000,000 a year are added to the inhabitants, and for them every year an additional 5,000,000 bushels of rice must be found. Japan's endeavors to colonize Manchuria in past years have failed because the cold climate did not attract Japanese farmers, and those who did attempt settlement there were in constant conflict with Chinese authorities.

If the present domination of Manchuria can be maintained the possibilities of Japanese development will be very much greater. There will, of course, be no prejudicial action against such Japanese settlers as can be induced to locate there, and vast undeveloped areas offer opportunity for the employment of modern mechanizing farming that will relieve Japanese from the necessity of competing with cheaper Chinese labor. Also the Japanese would be able to expand agricultural production using Korean and Chinese labor.

The coal and iron resources of Manchuria have been widely heralded as unlimited in extent and as adding greatly to Japan's industrial power. In limited measure this is true, but a large proportion of the iron deposits are of such low grade that they are not comparable with those of the United States; in fact, they rank only with the American ore that is not even counted among the almost limitless deposits in this country. Manchurian coal, too, is of inferior quality, only a small proportion of it being of the coking variety necessary for steel making.

If Japan's hold upon Manchuria becomes as absolute as that in Korea, where she supplies 75 per cent of the imports and takes 90 per cent of the exports, with a rapidly growing Chinese population it will become a highly profitable connection. What the cost may be in lost trade in the rest of China and in many trading centers of the East where Chinese merchants are important factors can not now be estimated. If an awakened national spirit is able to stabilize conditions in China, not only prejudice against Japanese goods, but the development of Chinese industries under her present high tariffs, will cut first and very heavily into all classes of Japanese trade. Complete access to the resources of Manchuria will greatly aid Japan, but it will be a long time before the limited population there can in any measure absorb the exports that Japan has distributed to the rest of China.

CRIME FICTION

From the Knickerbocker Press.

If criminals in real life showed one-half the ingenuity of those in the detective stories the law-abiding portion of the human race would by this time be virtually extinct. Fortunately the diabolic devices for taking life and concealing the manner of it exist for the most part in the minds of the fiction writers, and as they can always see the end from the beginning, they do not have to try out their inventions on living subjects. The only fatalities from this kind of horror story come from the rejection slips of the magazine editors.

It is interesting to learn from Carolyn Wells, expert on murder fiction, that the public taste is turning back to the plain, old-fashioned forms of murder, like shooting and stabbing. Poisoned bugs, venomous spiders, poison-tipped arrows, infernal machines and the like are no longer popular with the better type of fictitious murderers, which will be a relief to a nervous public which has come to dread going to bed of nights.

The best detective stories have depended less on the horror of the crimes committed than on the ingenuity revealed by the detectives who unraveled them. The secret is in making the crime, whether it be murder or something else, appear inexplicable to the reader. The solution may be quite simple; in fact, the simpler it is the more spectacular is the denouement. The very obvious dagger, thrust in the ceiling in plain sight, heightened the dramatic effect of "The Thirteenth Chair," after the audience for three acts had been led through a series of mysterious blind alleys.

The difference between crimes in fiction and those in real life is that in the former the obvious and probable explanation is never correct, while in the latter it usually is. Some day somebody will write a crime story about a man who has apparently come to his death through some very simple accident. The surprise will be that it really was an accident.

You failed the trust men had in you

You'll find you'd rather not have been

That you have played the cheat for

Though not by choice you came to

Though tricksters laugh behind your

If the Vessel Leans Awry, Whose Hand Is to Blame if Not the Potter's?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE theory that everybody is entitled to freedom is pure nonsense.

In a world full of people, one man's rights must end where another's begin. The more people there are in a given area, the fewer the rights of each.

The right to freedom must be earned. And the individual can earn it only by giving evidence that he can be trusted with it.

The human race is young, but in the brief period since the stone age it has acquired much knowledge and wisdom. Of the many truths it has learned, none is more clearly established than the fact that restraint of the individual is necessary for the protection and welfare of society.

No less clearly established is the fact that restraint is impossible without punishment or the threat of punishment. Jails are monuments to human wisdom as well as human folly.

Whether the threat of punishment promises a thrashing, a jail sentence or eternal fire is immaterial. The point is that some threat of punishment is necessary as an aid to virtue.

We all-wise moderns have disregarded the experience of the ages and developed a new method of training youth. It consists in washing our hands of the job and leaving youth to train itself—without threat of punishment and almost without hindrance.

Times have changed, we say. Human nature is different. Modern youth will not submit to discipline.

What, then, of soldiers? They are young, are they not? They are modern. They possess human nature. And they submit to discipline as men in ranks have done since the beginning of history.

When youth reaches maturity it is restrained by fear of punishment. It must surrender liberty of action and conform to the rules or go to jail.

Why, then, should it be denied training in discipline before maturity? Is youth alone competent to govern itself without interference? Is the theory of punishment right for adults and wrong for children?

To test the worth of a theory, discover whether it works. The old way had faults, but they were the faults of the times. Despite its faults, it developed men and women who had respect for law and scorned indecency.

The new way must be judged by its fruits. To approve it you must approve the customs that developed when the old way was discarded.

Prohibition Test Vote.

Kansas City Star.

The test vote on prohibition in the House of Representatives was as had been anticipated, a defeat for resubmission of the question to the States. The wet bloc, composed of both Democrats and Republicans, did not even have enough votes to call the resubmission resolution from the committee.

If the House wet bloc had accomplished that purpose, it still would have faced the necessity to obtain a two-thirds majority of the House for the adoption of the resolution. Beyond lay the barrier of the dry Senate and beyond that the barrier of a three-fourths majority of the States necessary for ratification.

Abolish the Primary.

Pierre (S. Dak.) Capital-Journal.

One of the quickest ways to reduce taxes in this country would be to abolish the primary election system completely, and return to the representative system which prevailed when county and precinct meetings adopted resolutions. Then the people went on record quite generally as expressing their community sentiment. But now we nominate fellows before any expression of sentiment is manifest, even in a State convention.

Too Much Cutlery.

Lexington (Ky.) Herald.

The Democrats never had so fruitful an opportunity to elect a President as now, and never so many knives carried up ambitious sleeves with which to cut opposing aspirants' throats.

Neither Will the Wets.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

The drys, it seems, will never be convinced of the integrity of any referendum that doesn't settle the prohibition question their way.

Sales Tax Logic.

Boston Transcript.

Again we repeat, as we have said many times before, that the people of this country may not be able to visualize the wreck and ruin that would follow a suspicion that the United States Government could not meet its obligations. The dream of the Communist would be realized by such a disaster and the foundations of the Republic would become unsettled. Rejection of the sales tax program is as serious in its implications as that. Otherwise, would the partisans of a Congress whose chief ambition is their own reelection be found standing shoulder to shoulder in support of this proposed impost? Everyone must pay his share of it; the day of class oppression has gone by.

Appeal to Reason.

New York Herald Tribune.

As Senator Robinson pointed out four months ago, all theories respecting the redistribution of wealth must give way to the cold, hard necessity of supplying the Government with an income sufficient to meet its running expenses. Similarly, there should be appeasement of political revolt to the same end. Representative Crisp, in this particular as in his stalwart defense of the ways and means committee's bill as a whole, should be congratulated on his generalship.

If, As and When.

Kansas City Times.

New York now has reported to the State Department at Washington its ratification of the proposed "lame duck" amendment to the Constitution. It is understood, however, that New York reserves the right later to repeal its own State enforcement law, should any be adopted. The country has already conceded to Rhode Island the right not to ratify at all, in its discretion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Saloons Will Come Back if 4 Per Cent Beer Is Restored—A Woman's Testimony on Volstead Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many of the members of the House of Representatives are elected by dry constituents, but there seems to be only a faint murmur in opposition to the demand for 4 per cent beer, apparently because "it will put a million to work," and the tax on beer, "which no one will feel," will find money to put into the place where the reckless expenditure of the last session left such a hole.

Is there only one side of the question to be looked at? Every one knows that when hotels and restaurants are authorized to sell it in bottles, that every eating place will become a drinking place and that many cafes and restaurants will be eating places only for the purpose of being able to sell drinks, and will soon became the low-down saloons that we hope may never come back.

If a million men do go to work they are not producers of any thing that the country needs. It is said that the working man won't mind the tax; but their wives will, just as they did in saloon days. When a woman was asked how she liked the Volstead law, she smiled and said, "Well, I used to have to get along on what was left after the saloon was paid, now I have $60 a week, John has a better job since he's gone straight, and we are all happier."

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Congressman Rainey's Talk Stirs Brooklyn Reader.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At 10:30 p. m. Thursday night Congressman Henry T. Rainey made a radio speech, virtually predicting the worst panic in all history for the coming summer. It was the most pessimistic and poisonous prediction I ever heard over the air and its mesmeric influence must have been far-reaching, as the National Broadcasting coast-to-coast network carried the talk. He spoke as if the country were broke and about to dissolve, predicted the nonpayment of moneys due the country, and, if he had advised people to withdraw their savings from the banks, he could hardly have done more damage.

What he said was utterly false and based on the usual method of politicians. The figures he gave are garbled and misleading. Mr. Rainey forgets that there are billions of dollars in our banks, other billions in vaults, and that the American people could take up a $10,000,000,000 bond issue within 30 days if they found it necessary to do so. If I had ever entertained an idea of voting for a Democrat to succeed President Hoover, it was thoroughly dispelled after listening to the claptrap that came from the lips of the Democratic floor leader of the House of Representatives. Such devastating talks should be kept off the air. The man forgets that the wealth of this country doubles every 30 years, that this Nation will never go bankrupt, as he predicted, and that the business trend is even now on the upgrade. It was a shameful demonstration of ignorance or disloyalty.

It is this type of cutthroat Democracy that wants to get possession of the governmental machinery. God help our country if the Democrats get in power!

Last Word on "Too-Son" Submitted by A. L. D.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent letter, submitted to your paper by the undersigned, regarding proper pronunciation of Tucson, Ariz., we took exception to the way a radio announcer named it, viz: "Tuck-son." We note that Mr. Will C. Barnes questions the pronunciation we gave. In this case the writer happens to be a woman, and, as such, exercises her privilege to have the last word.

Having lived in Tucson for some years, and being identified with Tucson Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, a very active and progressive organization, was very much interested in the proper pronunciation of the name of the city, as well as names of peaks, mountain ranges, &c., in that locality. We were informed by very good authority, and one of the "oldest inhabitants," that the name was pronounced Too-son, or, if Mr. Barnes prefers, Too-sawn, which meant black rock, black earth, or black water, which are found in that vicinity.

During my residence there, I never once heard the name called "Tukson" either by older residents or "newcomers." However, the radio announcer called it Tuck-son, for which there seems to be no authority.

My attention was called to the incorrect pronunciation of Geronimo, when I called it Heronimo, as we were taught in school, and by no less a person than the grandson of the old warrior, who explained that, in Indian, it is pronounced as spelled and the other pronunciation is Spanish, and from the Indian's point of view, incorrect.

However, what difference does it make and "what's in a name," anyway, so long as Tucson continues to be the winter garden spot of the world?

London Bobbies, Will Do Well if They Equal Washington Cops.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: According to an Associated Press item in Sunday's Post, a new regulation calls for younger and taller men on the London police force. Rookies must be not more than 25 years old. Scotland Yard says the aim is not to build up to a force of 6-footers, but, "We are striving only to obtain the best type, and a man of 5 feet 10 can carry the uniform and look the part."

They will be doing well if they enlist a lot of "bobbies" as fine as our Washington "cops." For some time past it has pleased me very much to observe what a good-looking collection of young men are being enlisted in the Washington Police Department.

The Women's City Club plans for the annual life members' tea, to be given this afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock, include a short program of colonial music, to be presented by Mrs. Ralph F. Couch, who will depict Nellie Custis on this occasion.

Entertainment in the day of Washington meant music. For that reason it is said that from Philadelphia came Alexander Reinagle, a musician of high standing, to impart to Nellie Custis the divine art as expressed in singing and playing upon the harpsichord. Mrs. Couch uses the compositions of Mr. Reinagle, Peirre Duport and Joseph Mayden that were no doubt played by Miss Custis.

Members of the program committee will appear in characterizations of well known historical personages depicting the social life and activities of the colonial period. Miss Alice M. Heaven, in costume, will announce and describe the presentations, among which will be Mrs. William Lee Corbin, the president, as Martha Washington, and Judge Mary O'Toole, founder and first president, and chairman of the life membership committee, presenting the colonial spirit of pioneering as of today. At the tea tables in colonial costume will be Mrs. Anna H. Farrar, Miss Adela L. Heaven, Mrs. L. F. Kebler and Mrs. Ada C. Mills Payne.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

The Ever-Enchanting Titian Types.

SCINTILLATING gold and copper beams dancing over her head. The titian type's most definite beauty mark is her hair. Therefore she should do all she can to keep its color and to enhance it, and at no time should her rouge or powder or her clothes take the foreground. This important place in the picture belongs only to her hair.

Elsie Pierce.

Wise is the head that is red and is brushed so regularly that each strand of burnished gold gleams in all its glory. Wise, too, if it is shampooed properly and a henna rinse added if necessary to keep it from becoming drab or dark.

Easy lies the head that wears the titian crown, particularly now when we are told that the platinum blonde is losing popularity and already her throne is being threatened by the red-headed lady.

Fair Skin vs. Freckles.

But let us leave her titian locks and examine her skin. Usually it is of an extremely dry, sensitive and fair variety. And who knows a red-head who does not live in mortal fear of freckles? It is very important for the titian type to protect her skin at all times with creams and lotions before going outdoors, to avoid exposing it to the sun and to use a mild bleach and nourishing cream to keep the skin fair, supple and delicately lovely. My "freckle bulletin" is yours for a self-addressed, stamped envelope. It discusses the treatment for freckles, as well as simple home-made bleaches.

There are two types of titians. The Titian Blonde and the Titian Brunette.

The titian blonde is rare and strikingly beautiful. Her rouge should be as delicate as possible, a pale coral shade, or a light shade, and she should use very little of it, or none at all if she has the least hint of natural color. A naturelle or cream color rouge is usually becoming, and a light lipstick. Her eyes may be accented even in the daytime with a touch of brown mascara, and eye-shadow should match her eyes. Of course, eye make-up must be very subtly blended, particularly by the titian type.

The Titian Brunette—her hair is darker than the titian blonde's and her skin may be a medium tone or fair as a gardenia petal. Her rouge may be deeper in tone, a medium reddish shade, but it should never clash with the shade of her hair. Lipstick must always match the rouge in tone. Her powder may be a special blend between naturelle and rachel. A dark brown mascara may be used in daytime, but should be very sparingly applied and blended. Eyeshadow should match her eyes. A deep peach shade may be used for evening, and a little more rouge, or rouge of a slightly more vivid hue.

My bulletin on hair rinses should be especially interesting to titian types. Send for it. My color chart will also give you interestnig information. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for each bulletin.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

NEW YORK, March 23.—Le choix du bojou est extrememente delicat!

That is true, and before I explain, how about a little French lesson right to start with?

First I want you to notice the similarity between every one of these words and the same word in English. So often this happens in all foreign languages that a fairly intelligent person can about get the meaning of French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, any Latin language, really, whether he has ever learned it or not. For instance, "the choice of jewelry is extremely delicate" above. The only word there that might be obscure is jewelry. Also the exact meaning is not that "choice of jewelry is delicate" but that the choosing of the correct or proper jewelry is a very delicate matter.

And pronunciation is: "Luh-chow-as dew bee jew es extree-me-ment day-le-cah."

The article continues to say that, unfortunately women show very bad taste in their selection of jewelry. That the same jewelry can not possibly be worn with a formal lame gown, and a lace or chiffon gown.

And that is too true. In her choice of bag, gloves, even coiffeur, Miladi seldom errs when it comes to the proper selection for her various evening gowns and their degree of formality. But her taste seemingly dies at her jewelry box, and she decks herself with whatever she happens to have, or whatever is new, or the most valuable, with no regard for the appropriateness of her jewels to her gown in color and fashioning.

With evening gowns, modern metal jewelry is seldom appropriate. Strass, diamonds, emeralds and rubies are best with black or white gowns, especially the elegantly cut ones of Patou or Lanvin or Worth, which show so little decolletage front or back, while beautifully worked antique Persian or Russian influence is best with lame or velvet.

Maggy Rouff offers a delightful spring model in yellow shantung, which I simply had to sketch for you today! The trimming, or call it what you will, is of yellow and black dotted shantung, and we find it lining the jabot and the removable bolero, as well as forming stripe-like incrustations on the outside of the bolero. Short sleeves, black linen gloves * * * and a hat of yellow shantung straw bordered in, guess? Green! The hat and gloves are my choice, and oh, I almost forgot that the lacquered feather on the hat is black, but the shoes are dully yellow.

All the costume slips you want! That is what you can have if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet. Because Dare tells you how to make bias costume slips from one yard of material, and figures that with gorlicious remnants of shadow-proof silk and crepe going for 30 cents to $1 a yard, there is simply no excuse for any one not being properly costume-slipped this summer. Hurry!

'Twas a Lanvin idea, improved upon by Dah-ray with due apologies to Lanvin! The cuffs on bands, of solid and glittery and overlapping silver paillettes, were shown by this couturiere on a white chiffon dinner frock. So Dah-ray suggests that these be removable, so that Mme. Sophisticate may wear them on her black satin afternoon frock, as wrist cuffs.

Au revoir.

CONCEALING INFORMATION.

WHEN two players start out at the Contract Bridge table as partners, each apparently anxious to conceal from the other the essential information to reaching the correct bid and each anxious to play the hand, the partnership is generally doomed to disaster from the start. Many bridge players suffer from various complexes and probably the most annoying complex in a partner is that of insistence upon becoming the final Declarer, regardless of whether that is the best partnership result or not.

Two such partners came together in a rubber game in Philadelphia recently.

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A 10 3 ♡ A K J 8 7 ◇ A K 7 2 ♣ A
♠ K 9 6 ♡ 10 6 3 ◇ Q 10 4 ♣ K Q 6 4	N W E S	♠ J ♡ Q 4 2 ◇ 9 8 6 5 ♣ 9 8 5 3 2
	♠ Q 8 7 5 4 2 ♡ 9 5 ◇ J 3 ♣ J 10 7

THE BIDDING.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs).

North	East	South	West
3NT (1)	Pass	6♠ (2)	Pass
7♠ (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Of course, the correct opening bid is the Forcing bid of two hearts, which discloses rather than conceals the distribution of the hand. The honor count for the Aces is an insignificant item.

2—An equally bad bid. Even a bid of four spades is questionable, but the partners had not learned the value of adapting themselves to each other.

3—A trifle optimistic, but North is to be commended for not bidding seven notrump. His restraint in that was admirable.

When South saw the Dummy, after West had opened the King of clubs, he felt that the contract he had undertaken was unattainable. Winning the first trick with the Ace of clubs, he reasoned that he had no chance of making the contract and hopelessly laid down the Ace of spades. Of course, he later had to lose a trick to the King. Actually South had an opportunity—and only one opportunity—to make his bid and that was to find the exact distribution of the trump suit which existed. After winning the first trick with the Ace of clubs, he should then have led either diamonds or hearts and trumped the third round of the chosen suit, trusting that both opponents had three cards in it. Then the Queen of spades, must be led as the one chance of fulfilling the contract and thus making the best out of a terrible situation, the atrocious Grand Slam bid.

If West holds the exact cards he actually did hold in spades and the diamond and heart suits break favorably, this play will permit the success of the contract. If West does not cover the Queen, then it must be permitted to ride, as if East holds the trumps the contract can not be made in any event.

West's correct play with his holding would be to cover the Queen and South must then return to his hand by trumping the third round of the other suit and lead the spade suit again for a finesse. Thus played, a Grand Slam can be made on the holdings of North and South, while the contract should never have been undertaken.

When situations occur requiring the winning of all the tricks in a particular suit, with such holdings as are shown here, there is no other method by which this result can be obtained. Finding a singleton King would be of no avail as the outstanding cards of the suit include K J 9, and if the King were a singleton there would then exist no finessing situation against the J 9.

After the hand had been played North and South recriminated each other. North asserted that South should not have bid six spades, while South retorted that North should not have opened with a bid of three notrump nor later have bid seven spades. Both were right, as so frequently happens in the sometimes heated post-mortems that follow the playing of a disastrous hand.

TODAY'S POINTER.

One of the keys to successful Contract play is partnership adaption. The object of bidding is to convey information to your partner and to receive information from him. This end is rarely attained by efforts to forestall you partner from speaking.

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

'TIS said that April sees the end of oysters in the fullness of their popularity, therefore we plan for tomorrow, in addition to our cheap and simple codfish turban, a cream of oyster soup. But we plan in addition to our menu, to give the column an Easter touch, candy eggs for the children. The dyeing and decorating of our kitchen variety of eggs is so simple a procedure as hardly to warrant elaborate explanation. We need only purchase the dyes and follow directions, using either hard-cooked eggs or "blown" eggs which leaves only the shell to tint. These latter to be strung up on a ribbon for the purposes of decoration or filled with tiny candies as may best suit the occasion for which you use them. To "blow" the eggs we prick each end with a pin, in a circle, until a little hole can be broken through inside the pin holes. Then, over a bowl (to save the eggs for cookery) we gently blow with the mouth over the hole in one end and out comes the egg with neatness and precision. But the candy eggs are a horse of another color, so to speak, and for these we shall today give a recipe. And, then, tomorrow, of course, we must be busy with plans for our Easter dinner.

Chocolate Easter Eggs

1 cupful water.
Very small pinch of cream of tartar.
1 teaspoonful vanilla.
1 cupful moist cocoanut.

Put the cream of tartar, sugar and water on the stove and stir until dissolved. Put in the thermometer. Wipe away crystals that form on the side of the pan, with a brush dipped in cold water, or a moistened piece of cheesecloth. Cook to 238 degrees, or until a soft ball forms in cold water. Pour on marble or a greased platter and shock immediately by shaking cold water from the brush. Add the vanilla and cocoanut. Allow it to stand a few minutes and then cream with a broad, straight-edged spatula, using long, up and down strokes. When it gets too hard to handle, knead with the hands. Put in the refrigerator in a covered dish to ripen. Mold into shape and dip in melted coating chocolate. Melt the chocolate over hot water, never allow it to get very warm. Dip in a room not warmer than 68 degrees.

FRIDAY'S DINNER.

Cream of Oyster Soup

Bring to the boiling point and add the egg yolks, slightly beaten. Put a layer of cod in a buttered dish, season with salt and pepper and a few drops of lemon juice. Cover with the sauce and continue until both fish and sauce are used. Cover with breadcrumbs and bake in a hot oven until crumbs are nicely browned.

Lemon Fluff Pie.

Filling:
3 eggs
1 lemon—juice and rind
3 tablespoons water
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt

1 cup flour
Ice water
5 tablespoons shortening

FRANCES McDONALD

What a Man!

DEAR Frances McDonald: You have helped so many others, I believe you can help us. Two years ago I met my fiance. It was a case of instant attraction on both sides. We both were on the brink of marriage with perfectly splendid young people, the choice of our families and friends, but we simply felt that we couldn't go through with the marriage and asked to be released. Personally, I can say that this is my first and only love. I have had many boy friends, and, as stated above, was on the brink of marriage, but my feeling for the man I intended to marry was respect and admiration and gratitude for his long faithfulness to me, but even then I did not fool myself that it was love. After we were released, I expected an immediate marriage. I don't know why. I just felt it was the natural thing. My fiance had proposed to me months before we were free and had asked me to break my engagement, and I never doubted for a minute that the reason he wished me to do this was because he wanted me to marry him. But months have gone by, and he keeps putting it off, on one pretense and another—my health, his business, financial difficulties, &c. At first this hurt terribly, but recently it hasn't hurt nearly so much, and I find myself subconsciously planning my life for years in advance and not he—or any other man—is in the picture. Now, he has at last intimated the truth, which is that he is afraid our married life would not be "one sweet dream" owing to a difference in religion, the antagonism of our respective families, and the fact that I sometimes get on his nerves and vice versa. Don't you think a drawn-out courtship for no good reason at all is enough to get on anyone's nerves? Don't think that we always argue. We see a lot of each other and are perfect companions for weeks at a stretch without a cross word—then I suppose I start it by asking when we are going to get married. But I hate to give up so much of my young life to a worthless cause. It would hurt terribly to have to do without him, and he goes so far as to say he couldn't get along without me; still, he is afraid to risk marriage. I have arrived at the point where I seem to want action, one way or the other, either to get married or to stop seeing each other. He seems to think the remedy is to go on for months longer seeing each other in the hope that the thing will work itself out. What do you think? IMPATIENT.

We think he is a weakling who does not know his own mind—if any. He is the type who not only expects to eat his cake and have it but eats it at some one else's expense. Do send him on his way. You may like the color of his eyelashes, but beyond some such fetish you can have little to build upon. You already are discounting him as an individual, ignoring him in your plans. Let him go. The present arrangement suits his purposes perfectly. And your normal and justified objections he silences with a few whines about his nerves and his religion! Do have more grit and more faith in life. He is only one more experience. There will be others. And if life has nothing better than this in store for you we will be surprised. Send him packing. Find a man who thinks first and acts afterward. This one does his thinking a bit in reverse. Clear the decks!

Advice on Gardening

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me whether pansies started from seed last August should bloom this spring.

LAURA McC. A.

Yes, they should begin to bloom at about this time.

I had a beautiful gold-banded lily, a fine bulb. It grew and blossomed one year. The next year the stalk came up but turned yellow. Upon examination, I found the bulb partly rooted and in and around it grew many tiny, fine worms like wire. I took it up, washed the worms off and reset it in another location, but it did not live. This bulb had a partly shady location and a good soil. I should like another one, but if they are hard to grow I will not try again. Can you tell me what was wrong?

MRS. HARRIET W.

You should have thrown a handful of peat into the hole before you planted your lily, and lined the hole with two inches of sand. This would have provided drainage for the lily while it was developing roots and also have prevented insects and worms from reaching the bulb. This suggestion applies to all lilies.

I have a petunia that has flowered most beautifully in a southern window in a window box. Now the flowers are smaller and there are fewer of them. Would cutting the plant back have any effect on it? I am loath to see it die.

ANNE M. D.

I think that cutting the plant back almost to the roots and at the same time removing it to a cooler place for three weeks might cause it to send up new growth, which would in a few weeks begin to bloom.

Please tell how to care for a coleus plant which is in a sunny window with plenty of fresh air and water. I keep water at all times in the bottom of the jardiniere. Yet with this care the leaves persist in falling off.

MADGE R. T.

Water in the jardiniere is no doubt the reason the leaves are falling. Water your plant only every other day until you see signs of improvement.

Do calla lilies require food while in the house? MRS. HOWARD F.

Yes. They are gross feeders and should be given a top dressing of bonemeal or an application of liquid manure every two weeks.

Some of my dahlia tubers are beginning to decay. What do you suggest? MRS. EMORY C. H.

Dahlia tubers which are beginning to show signs of decay should be separated from the healthy roots. The diseased areas should be removed and the wounds dusted thoroughly with powdered sulphur.

Please tell me whether rhododendrons like a limestone soil.

MRS. THOMAS D. W.

No. Rhododendrons require soil which is free from lime. They usually do well in a soil composed of loam, peat or leafmold and sand in equal parts. They need plenty of water and protection from the winter sun. Rhododendrons demand perfect drainage and they must be mulched throughout the entire year with decayed leaves, peat moss or pine needles. For lace-wing fly, their only enemy, spray with five pounds of fish-oil soap, one-half pint of nicotine extract to ten gallons of water. This spray must be used in May, June and September.

Women Attack and Defend Legal Restrictions on Sex

Argue Before House Judiciary Committee on Proposal To Wipe Out Discriminations Which All Admit Exist in Statutes.

(Associated Press.)

The case of Women's Rights versus Man's Law was argued before the congressional bench of 23 male judges yesterday, with feminine witnesses taking both sides.

More than half a hundred from national organizations brought before the mahogany dais of the House judiciary committee the contest of how best to wipe the statute books clean of the discriminations against their sex, which all agreed existed.

The National Women's Party, whose argument was directed by Mrs. Burnita S. Matthews, believed there should be a constitutional amendment proclaiming equal rights with men. The National League of Women Voters, marshaled by Mrs. William J. Carson, of Philadelphia, said such an amendment violated States' rights.

After a brief opening statement by Representative Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, sponsor of the amendment, the proponents began with Mrs. Rebekah Greathouse, assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia. She said the Supreme Court, "in its conservative way," has interpreted the rights of women under the Constitution to be those common law rights of the eighteenth century, and quoted Blackstone's Commentaries to show how "appalling" were the discriminations against women.

"Her husband could chastise her or restrain her liberty," Mrs. Greathouse said. "In short, she was her husband's slave, dependent upon his whims without appeal to any court—and penniless. Remnants of these disabilities still remain."

Mrs. Carson carried the burden of the opposition and said a constitutional amendment was "unnecessary since undesirable discriminations not only can be removed without a Federal amendment but are being continually so removed."

"The League of Women Voters," she contended, "believes in the enactment of measures which in view of the actual, biological, social and occupational differences between men and women, tend to secure for women a true equality. We are not seeking a mathematical equality of the sort we believe to be implicit in this amendment we are opposing."

Others spoke on both sides, but the judges—though they listened attentively—reached no decision.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE FOREMAN'S JOB

THE National Safety Council has acquired the habit of having Dr. H. S. Hulbert talk to its psychology class at the annual convention. For four years he has given one or more lectures on personality and behavior to audiences composed, in the main, of men whose business it is to control other men. In 1931 this consisted of a course of four lectures.

The subjects were: "Normal Thinking: Its Surprising Vagaries Until the Mind Is Disciplined," "Personal Application of Some Mental Hygiene Rules," "The Use and Misuse of Those Innate Tendencies With Which All Men Are Endowed," "Evolution of the Personality. Well Integrated, Heedful of Its Own and Society's Welfare, and of All Reasonable Rules, Including Safety Rules."

A personnel man who thoroughly understands men and why they behave as they do not only will have pretty good judgment as to whom to hire and whom to keep, but will also know how to get the best possible out of men under him. He will know that a certain plan is best for a man with one type of personality and another for one with another type.

Dr. Hulbert started with a statement by Carney: "In these days of mechanical safeguards, 95 per cent of all accidents are due to man-failure. Attention to those interested in safety, therefore, may well be devoted to the mental causes of man-failure." His conclusion was: "I believe mental hygiene, sound and practical, ought to be retailed to safety councils and to foreman groups. It is one thing for your people to know; it is another to get the knowledge where it will do the most good. I believe that clear, honest, self-disciplined thinking constitutes healthy thinking, and healthy thinking means fewer mistakes and, of course, greater safety."

He told of how certain types of personality peculiarities and of bizarre thinking lead to such rather practical results as unemployability and proneness to accidents. What is of even greater interest to us, he told of how certain bad mental habits tended to end in personality and mental disorders. For example: "Paranoids are very dangerous (to the spirit of an organization). When you find a paranoid in your organization get rid of him instanter. There is no room in competitive industry for paranoids." This is very interesting and may be of great value to foremen.

But our interest is greater in Dr. Hulbert's statement that the paranoids develop out of the "comparer" type of mind. A habit of comparing one person with another, or the present times with the past, or the present place with a former one may be allowed to grow until it develops into the paranoid tendency. When a person compares himself with others unduly he may develop jealousy, envy, self-pity, or snobbishness. An exaggeration of this bad habit lays the foundation for fault finding, suspiciousness, and, finally, the delusions which are so prominent among the paranoids.

A foreman who recognizes that a man is of that type may do something to change the influences around the man and to help him to break up his mental habit before he becomes a menace to himself and the working force.

PAMPHLETS ON DISEASE.

H. F. writes: Where can one obtain booklets or information on venereal diseases and cures?

REPLY.

From the United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C. Most of the State and the better organized local health departments have such booklets.

DON'T TAKE TO MOVIES.

A Reader writes: What is the danger of people bringing children with whooping cough into the movies?

REPLY.

The most dangerous of all ordinary contagious diseases under present conditions is whooping cough. It far surpasses typhoid fever, and diphtheria and scarlet fever are of trifling importance as measured by the deaths caused. It is contrary to law for a child with whooping cough to go to the movies. It would be possible to get more open-air privileges for children with whooping cough if public sentiment and private conscience would prevent abuse of the privilege by taking infective children to the movies and other meetings.

RATE IS TOO HIGH.

Reader writes: Have just been through a physical and laboratory examination and find I have metabolic rate 21 points above the normal range. Is this too high?

REPLY.

It is.

A SEVERE OPERATION.

C. B. writes: Can knockknees be operated on and straightened?

REPLY.

Yes. However, the operation is a severe one. For some people the operation is justified. For others it is not.

C. W. writes: I get relief from winter itch by rubbing with carbolated vaseline night and morning until itching ceases, which takes two or three days.

Business Is Urged To Follow Christ

Rotary Club Luncheon Is Addressed by Rector of Epiphany.

Application of Christian ideals to the business problems of today was urged by the Rev. Z. Barney Phillips, of Epiphany Church, speaking at the Rotary Club luncheon yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

"Christ means much to us today, both in the ideals of family life and in the efforts and activities of the individual," Dr. Phillips said. "We must rehabilitate these Christian ideals back to Christ as our standard and strive once more for nobility of thought and action and for the cultivation of patience, tolerance and selflessness."

Dr. Phillips was introduced by the Rev. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's Parish. S. Percy Thompson, president of the club, introduced seventeen visiting Rotarians from other States, including Representative Bernhard M. Jacobson, of Iowa.

Schick Is Named to Plan For Lions Club Banquet

James P. Schick was named chairman of the committee to arrange the annual Lions Club banquet at the weekly meeting in the Hotel Mayflower yesterday. No definite date has yet been set for the banquet.

Miss Mary Frances Glenn and the Rev. Glenn B. Faucett were the entertainers. President Edgar N. Brawner presided. Among visiting Lions present was J. E. Alexander, of Havana, Cuba.

Ancient Shrines of Orient Snapped in Natural Colors

The Imperial City in Peiping from which the Mings and Manchus ruled China is included in the many Oriental places where W. Robert Moore, representative of the National Geographic Society, made photographs during a nine-month survey from which he has just returned to Washington.

Since Peiping is no longer the capital of China the forbidden portions are now open, although still closely guarded. Among the 2,700 photographs taken by Mr. Moore, there are natural color pictures of the buildings and courtyards of the imperial city—the first ever made of them.

Mr. Moore gathered information and took photographs along the China coast, in Japan, Chosen, and the Hawaiian Islands. Last January he went to Paotow, caravan center of inner Mongolia, where he met the Citroen-Haardt Transasia Expedition, with which the National Geographic Society cooperated.

Mr. Moore aided Dr. Maynard Owen Williams, the society's representative on the expedition, in developing the photographs taken along trails which never before had seen a wheeled vehicle or a camera.

Not only his photographs of the Forbidden City but those of other scenes in the former Chinese capital are considered of high geographic value because the landmarks and relics of the imperialistic regime are being allowed to fall into decay by the leaders of the republic.

What Today Means

"ARIES."

IF March 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 1:45 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Astrological influences on March 24 will promote a "nervy" atmosphere and you will feel on pins and needles without any apparent cause. It is a fatal time for social functions, as they will be likely to fall flat in spite of any outside stimulation. Avoid any word battles which might lead to tedious entanglements.

The child born on March 24 will be a quick-tempered little individual, ready to fight any one who dares transgress on its territory. It will be a quick thinker and equally as quick to act. It will have an eye open to opportunities for self-betterment, and will have the ability and pluck to make the most of its opportunities. It should go far in this world.

Born on March 24 you have an active brain, and as long as your interest is aroused are a hard worker. You like responsibilities, the overcoming of difficulties and the learning of the ins and outs of a thing after the battle; however, the conquests of life are tame to you. You are splendid at supervising others and you have the faculty of getting things under your control done. You can both pick your men and handle them. In an emergency you are at your best and are never cooler headed or more resourceful.

You are a pioneer in advanced thought, and many of your ideas about life are too premature for most of your associates to understand. As you grow older you will be both pleased and amused, as others in the world line up with you. Your eccentricities are genuine, and are not mere attempts to be "different."

You do not suffer from modesty, and like to have the world recognize the importance of your personage. You overcome and gain most things in life through the dominance of your will power and the masterfulness of your spirit, more than by simple perseverance. You are not fond of humanity "en masse," but are a delightful, devoted and loyal friend. Only the best is good enough for you and yours.

Successful people born March 24:
Herbert (Otto Henry) Lang, naturalist.
Arthur Bergh, musician and composer.
Andrew Mellon, Ambassador to Great Britain.
John H. McKenzie, chess champion.
John W. Powell, geologist.
Garrett P. Serviss, astronomer and author.

ART SHOW TO HONOR GEORGE WASHINGTON

Mural Paintings and Sculpture to Open Saturday at National Museum.

Exhibition of mural paintings and sculpture commemorating the life and times of George Washington, and notable events of colonial days, sponsored by the National Commission of Fine Arts, and the National Sculptor's Society, will be opened to the public at the National Museum, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with a program prepared by the Bicentennial Commission.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, vice chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, will make the opening address. The United States Marine Band Orchestra will furnish the music.

The National Sculptor's Society obtained as a feature of the exhibition a cast of the statue of George Washington by J. Q. A. Ward, sculptor, regarded as the finest standing figure of President Washington. The cast was especially made with the consent of Secretary Mellon and Mrs. Ward, by the Gorham Co. It has been placed on the steps of the main entrance of the National Museum Building, and will be unveiled by Senator Fess.

There will be about 150 pieces of sculpture contributed by leading sculptors of the country on exhibit. Henry Hering, Ernest Keyser and Ulric H. Ellerhusen, sculptors, are in charge of the arrangement of the figures. As a combined exhibition of the fine arts it is regarded by artists as unsurpassed by any ever held in the United States.

The Mural Painter's Society has prepared a group of large mural paintings depicting the life of George Washington, which will be mounted on the upper panels of the gallery, and will be called the "Bicentennial Frieze."

NATIONAL MUSEUM SCULPTURE COMMEMORATING GEORGE WASHINGTON

Bethesda Police Code Meeting Is Postponed

Because of the death of Mrs. E. J. Murphy, wife of the chairman of the committee on public improvements of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, who had called it, the meeting of representatives of 25 civic bodies, towns and taxing areas in the Bethesda area to discuss a police code, has been postponed indefinitely.

The meeting was to have been held at the Montgomery County Building in Bethesda to discuss adoption of a new police code which would provide police regulations fitting to the urban nature of the section. Notice of the date on which the meeting will be held will be sent out to the interested bodies.

Attack Case Postponed As Woman Is Still Ill

Because Mrs. Anita Doyle had not recovered from her wounds sufficiently to appear in court yesterday, the hearing for Sam Davis, her alleged attacker, was postponed indefinitely. Mrs. Doyle was hacked with a knife and hatchet at her home back of the University of Maryland last Friday and is still in a critical condition at the Washington Sanitarium.

Davis was arrested at his home near the Doyle residence and police said he admitted the assault on Mrs. Doyle. The woman did not suffer a fractured skull, physicians said, but a small piece of bone was chipped from her skull and is pressing on her brain.

Petition Protests Actions of Police

Prince Georges Board to Investigate Handling of Prisoners.

A petition protesting against action of Prince Georges County police who do not take prisoners before the nearest justice of the peace has been signed by nearly all the magistrates in the north end of the county and will be presented to the county commissioners shortly, it was learned yesterday.

The commissioners, who are in control of the county police force, are asked to investigate the practice. It is understood that the petition does not cite any specific instances of prisoners being taken away. It merely protests against their being taken out of the election district in which they are arrested.

The motor vehicle law provides that prisoners shall be taken before the nearest justice of the peace for a preliminary hearing. There is no such provision in the general criminal law, in the opinion of Alan Bowie, State's attorney of the county, he said last night.

Rail Official Prepares For Masonic Gathering

Joseph J. Oslie, assistant general passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, with headquarters in St. Paul, Minn., was in Alexandria yesterday making arrangements for the transportation of Masons who will attend the temple dedication there on May 12.

According to Mr. Oslie two special trains will bring 500 to Alexandria from the Northwest. The assembling point will be St. Paul and members of the party will leave St. Paul on May 8, arriving in Washington May 11.

Mt. Vernon Boulevard Police Force Increased

Police Capt. John S. Arnold has announced that every available member of the Alexandria police department will be pressed into service Easter Sunday to handle traffic on the Mount Vernon Boulevard through the city. The main object will be to prevent reckless driving, also to watch for the drivers who pass cars on the wrong side, and speeders. The patrol work of the city officers will extend north to Four Mile Run and south to Hunting Creek.

This action is to be taken by the police department as a result of the many complaints on Sundays of reckless driving through the city over the boulevard.

Kiwanians to Hear Dr. McIlwaine.

The Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, will present a special Easter program at the Alexandria Kiwanis club luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today at the George Mason Hotel.

POTOMAC DEBATES NEW COUNCIL PLAN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A spirited meeting of the Alexandria Citizens Association was held in the Community Hall in Potomac last night, when a number of parsons spoke in favor of both the council at large plan and the council by wards plan of city government, upon which the City of Alexandria will vote next Tuesday. The former plan provides for the election of seven members of the city council at large, while the latter provides for the election of nine members, six of whom shall be representatives of the six wards and three at large.

Under the first named plan there will be four new councilmen elected, and under the ward plan six will be elected, the mayor, Edmund F. Ticer, and Councilmen Arthur Herbert and Clyde C. Lemond holding over as the members at large until 1934.

Among those speaking last night in favor of the council at large plan were Capt. T. M. Hamilton, who is a candidate for council provided this plan carries; Attorney Harry B. Caton and Attorney Leo P. Harlow. E. C. Davison, of Potomac, urged the voters to choose the plan most favorable to their own interests, while among those favoring the ward plan were State Delegate J. Fred Birrell, who introduced and fostered the bill in the State Legislature providing for the change from the present plan; Edward Birrell, William C. Davis, Mrs. Naomi P. Carver, former member of the town council of Potomac; Dr. Walter H. Janney and several others.

The people of Alexandria are manifesting great interest in the outcome of the referendum of next Tuesday. All members of the present council of five men, the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, the Alexandria Kiwanis Club and many individuals in the older section of the city favor the council at large plan, while those of the annexed territory appear to be practically solid in favor of the ward plan, claiming that they have never had proper representation on the city council.

Assurances have been given by high officials of the Government to the committee in charge of arrangements for the dedication of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple in Alexandria on May 12, that every available military, naval and marine unit will be sent to Alexandria for the dedication.

In addition to the request for the Army and Navy forces which are to participate in the parade, the committee requested the Secretary of the Navy to have the historic Constitution sent to Alexandria and berthed here for the entire week of May 9 to 14. If this is done hundreds of thousands of visitors will be drawn to Alexandria from all parts of the country for several days prior to and following the day of the dedication, and will have an opportunity to go aboard and inspect the famous old craft.

One of the features of the dedication will be the music to be furnished by the three great service bands—the Army, Navy and Marine Bands.

Alexandria Will Hold Rites at Noon Tomorrow

The annual union Good Friday service will be held at noon tomorrow in the Richmond Theater, with the Rev. Dr. Frank S. Niles, pastor of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, as the speaker. Invocation will be by the Rev. E. W. Aaron, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; Scripture readings will be by the Rev. H. B. Brenner, pastor of the Free Mthodist Church, and prayer by the Rev. C. Morgan Compher, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church.

The offertory will be sung by Miss Elizabeth Chamblin, of the choir of the First Baptist Church. William L. Leitch, Scout Master, and Boy Scouts will act as ushers and receive the offertory, which will be for the Alexandria United Charities. The meeting will be presided over by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, president of the Alexandria Ministerial Association, and pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South. Hymns will be thrown on the screen, under the direction of the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

2 Legal Holidays Decreed in State

Maryland Day Observance Is Shifted to Saturday by Gov. Ritchie.

Maryland will have two legal holidays this week, tomorrow and Saturday. Good Friday and Maryland Day both falling on the same day, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie has changed the observance of Maryland Day to Saturday in order that it might be fitly celebrated.

All banks and State and county offices will be closed on both days and most business houses are expected to follow suit. Schools will close today, not to reopen until Tuesday. In issuing the proclamation setting aside Saturday as a holiday, Gov. Ritchie said that it would not be possible to fitly observe Good Friday as Maryland Day and that on Saturday patriotic societies will be able to enter more thoroughly into the joyous spirit of the celebration.

Maryland Day celebrates the landing of the "20 gentlemen adventurers and 300 laborers" who landed on Blackistone Island from the Ark and the Dove on March 25, 1634. Two days later Leonard Calvert purchased an Indian village for a few hoes and axes and a piece of cloth from friendly Indians and founded the City of St. Marys.

Offices to Close Two Days.

Prince Georges County offices will be closed tomorrow and Saturday, and the police court will not hold its regular Friday session in Marlboro. The two-day holiday is due to the fact that Good Friday and Maryland Day both fall on March 25. By proclamation of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, the Maryland Day celebration is to be held Saturday.

FAIRFAX FIRE FORCE PICKS NICKELL HEAD

Department Accepts Offer for Building of New Engine House.

James E. Nickell was elected president of the Volunteer Fire Department of Fairfax, Va., at its regular monthly meeting. George E. Robey was elected vice president; Thomas P. Chapman, jr., secretary-treasurer, and Allan H. Williams, chief. The fire department aids will be appointed at next meeting by Chief Williams.

The department voted to have the chemical tankers removed from the fire engine and a booster tank substituted. A committee consisting of Charles Smith, Lewis Coyner and Allan Williams were selected to take charge of the work and to negotiate the purchase of a small truck to be used as an additional hose carrier.

The department voted to accept the offer of W. E. Carne and will build a new engine house on Mechanics street in the rear of the Fairfax Herald office. The proposed building will be of cement blocks and approximately 28 feet wide and 50 feet deep. It was estimated that such a building could be erected for about $1,500. James E. Nickell, Thomas P. Chapman, sr., and John M. Whalen were appointed a committee to prepare plans for the new engine house and were instructed to present them with estimates of cost at the next meeting of the department.

Vice President Robey told the members of the advantages to any organization of a "healthy" debt, pointing out that the Fairfax department had paid off $8,000 during the past few years for equipment and should be able to repay a $2,000 loan for a new home for the engine and other extra equipment needed within the next year.

Ballston Citizens Ask Arlington Power Quiz

The Ballston Citizens Association meeting last night in the auditorium of the Firemen's Hall adopted a resolution calling upon the public utilities committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation to investigate the low electrical voltage throughout the county.

Indorsement was given by the association to the plan recommended by County Manager Roy S. Braden for a county-wide clean-up campaign. Herbert W. Smith was appointed chairman of the local committee to aid in the project.

Men Not Afraid Held World's Need

Washington Called One of Them Before Arlington Kiwanis Club.

The world needs more men who are unafraid, the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clarendon, Va., told the Arlington County Kiwanis Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Windsor Arms Tea House at which members of the Washington club were guests.

Dr. Mitchell, in expressing this need for the world, said that he was afraid to conjecture what the future might bring. He cited as examples of men who were unafraid, Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Lee, Roosevelt, Wilson. The club was entertained by Madeline Whitlock, musical director of the Washington-Lee High School, and Miss Jane Lang.

John F. Webster, was program chairman, and Amos C. Counse, president of the club, presided. Announcement was made that the annual stag night of the club will be held April 5, at Auth's Meat Packing establishment in Washington when members of the local club will be guests at an oyster supper. Mr. Webster will be in charge of the program.

Drivers Are Freed In Death of Coed

Hyattsville Judge Fails to Place Blame for Fatal Crash.

Drivers of two cars, accused of reckless driving in the death of a Maryland University coed on February 4, were cleared yesterday when Judge J. Chew Sheriff admitted in Hyattsville Police Court that he could not place the blame.

The accused men were Robert Thomas, of Washington, driver of the car in which Bertha E. Wilmeth, of Cottage City, was riding, and John Potter, driver of a milk truck. Thomas also was accused of failing to give the right of way at Riggs road and University drive, and this charge likewise was dismissed.

Herbert Moon, of Bladensburg, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction when convicted of cutting Aberdeen Bartholomew with a knife. Three young men charged with stealing six hens were held for the grand jury on charges of larceny, housebreaking and being drunk and disorderly. They were Albert Foster and Buster Foster, held in bond of $300 each, and George Walker, held in $100 bond. They are alleged to have taken the chickens, valued at $9, from J. P. Sayers.

SEWAGE EXTENSION URGED IN ARLINGTON

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Declaring that Arlington County can never achieve the importance to which it is entitled by reason of its close proximity to the District of Columbia until a county-wide sewage system is installed, the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce meeting last night at Clarendon indorsed a resolution requesting the county board to send County Manager Roy S. Braden to Dearborn, Mich., to inspect the newly installed sanitation system in that city.

The board also adopted a resolution requesting the county school board to provide a recreational center at Washington-Lee High School for use of the entire county.

Another resolution which had the unanimous indorsement of the board was that of calling upon Gov. John Garland Pollard not to veto the Rust bill eliminating the second 5 per cent tax penalty, which, the board feels, is unfair.

President Louis C. Carl, in referring to the first resolution, stated that the chamber is prepared to conduct a campaign for installation of a county-wide sewage system as soon as it can be reasonably assured that the necessary bond issue would meet with approval of the voters.

The Organized Women Voters of Arlington County held their quarterly meeting yesterday at the Cherrydale Methodist Protestant Church, with more than 70 members in attendance. The president, Mrs. Bertha Kelly, presided.

Mrs. Edna M. Coleman, past national president of the American League of Pen Women, addressing the meeting, appealed to the members to become more active and see to it that all women of Arlington County register and cast their votes on election days.

The president announced appointment of the following committees.

Civic committee—Mrs. Jesse Roberts, chairman; Mrs. Olive Odom, Mrs. J. W. Miles, Mrs. A. Dexter Davis, Mrs. Azlie Haley, Mrs. Genevieve Clapper and Mrs. Mary Dudley.

Political committee—Mrs. Jesse Hunt, chairman; Mrs. Vernon Smith, Mrs. Louise Boetler, Mrs. Hugh Reid, Mrs. Alice Garber, Mrs. Marion Hagan and Mrs. Maude Dorsey.

Publicity committee—Mrs. Helen Bardwell, chairman, and Mrs. Julia L. Richart.

Arlington County public schools will close tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock for the Easter holidays and will reopen Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting today at 12 o'clock at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

Cheverly Citizens Oppose School Cut

Adopt Resolution Against Reduction of Salaries of Teachers.

The Cheverly (Md.) Citizens Association supports Superintendent of Schools Nicholas Orem in his stand against cutting the salaries of teachers in Prince Georges County, it declared in a resolution adopted at a recent meeting. Cheverly's action is in line with a series of such resolutions adopted by school bodies.

The consent of the owner of the property at the intersection of Tuxedo and River roads must be obtained before a high bank there can be removed, the State roads commission wrote the association. Members of the citizens' group said that the owner was willing to have the bank, which obstructs the view of approaching traffic, cut down.

The association has also asked that shoulders be built on the Largo road from the Defense highway to Landover, and that the speed limit in Cheverly be cut from 35 to 25 miles per hour. No answer has been received to these requests.

Lack of Funds Suspends Relief Project in Park

Improvement work being done in Magruder Park by the unemployed of Hyattsville was suspended yesterday because the Red Cross funds allotted to the Associated Charities had been all spent. It is expected that the work will be resumed shortly when further funds from the Community Chest are available.

Money received by the Red Cross was allotted to certain other charitable organizations in Prince Georges County to be spent for the relief of the jobless. With the money the Associated Charities received, they paid men for clearing and grading the park. Other organizations receiving funds still have a balance and their work is going forward, it was explained.

Bethesda Will Discuss Portal Plans Tomorrow

Plans for the portal at the District line on Wisconsin avenue will be discussed at a special meeting called for tomorrow night by Joseph F. Wynn, chairman of the committe on roads, streets and bridges of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock at the Montgomery County Building in Bethesda.

Residents of the surrounding Maryland territory have tenaciously favored the oval development of the portal, but the National Capital Park and Planning Commission has approved the split circle plan. This plan will be studied at the meeting.

The 1932 class of staff assistance of the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold graduation exercises this morning at 11 o'clock in the Hall of Service in the District Chapter, 1730 E street northwest.

The graduating class, consisting of 32 of this season's debutantes who have completed the six weeks' course in the origin and work of the Red Cross, will be presented by Miss Mildred Tytus, chairman of staff assistance. Gen. F. R. Keefer, chairman of the chapter, will give an address of welcome; Gen. Robert U. Patterson will award the certificates, and Miss Mabel T. Boardman, director of volunteer service, will present the pins. The Navy Band will play.

At the same exercises Gen. Many of the members completing the course have volunteered as health aids to help with health work each week in various clinics, hospitals and health institutions of the city.

The courses are given as a phase of health education and include practical instruction in such subjects as: Ways of promoting health, hygiene and sanitation in the home; cause and prevention of disease; the care of the well baby and young child in the home; simple procedures in caring for sick in home, such as the convalescent, chronic, and aged; care of common ailments and emergencies in the home and community health. The courses include such practical knowledge as may be useful to the individual in the home.

The classes completed have been composed of members from various club groups in the city, mothers, college girls and members of the personnel group at national headquarters of the Red Cross.

Liquor-Plot Trial Spurred by Court

Government Rests Case; 13 Defendants Given Chance to Testify.

The trial of 13 alleged rum-ring conspirators reached the half-way point in Justice F. D. Letts' court yesterday when the Government prosecutors, Capt. Harold W. Orcutt and James R. Kirkland, rested their case and gave the defendants an opportunity to present their side.

The case has been on trial for eight days and indications are that it will take at least a week more. Because of the length of the trial, Justice Letts has indicated that he would speed up its conclusion by holding court tomorrow, which is the scheduled day for the beginning of the Easter recess.

The defendants are the remainder of a group of 36 indicted on charges of conspiring to violate the liquor law. Twenty-two entered pleas and of that number seventeen were given stiff sentences while five, three of whom were women, were given probation. There are two women in the group standing trial.

Goodyear Tire Men To Convene Tomorrow

A one-day conference for branch and retail store employes and independent tire dealers of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. in the Washington area will be held tomorrow at the Willard Hotel under the direction of Goodrich sales officials from the main offices at Akron, Ohio.

Merchandising and advertising talks will be given by P. J. Kelly, assistant general sales manager; Guy Gundaker, jr., sales promotion manager; H. W. Delzell, technical engineer, all of Akron, and George Sawin, Washington district sales manager. A three-act dramatization of 1932 sales and advertising policies will be another feature.

Stimson's Cold Prevents World Court Testimony

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson has a cold and a sore throat which made it impossible for him to appear yesterday before the Senate foreign relations committee.

This committee through Chairman Borah had asked the Secretary of State to discuss with the committee his opinion of the construction of the Root protocol providing for adherence of the United States to the World Court with reservations. Secretary Stimson wrote a letter to Borah giving his interpretation of the protocol, which was considered by the committee.

Execution of Aldridge Postponed to May 6

The execution of Alfred Scott Aldridge, colored, who was twice convicted of the murder of Policeman Harry J. McDonald, was postponed yesterday from April 8 to May 6 to allow the perfection of an appeal. Justice James M. Proctor directed the postponement.

Aldridge has been tried three times for the slaying of the policeman. At the first trial the jurors disagreed, at the second he was found guilty, but the Supreme Court set aside the conviction because prospective jurors were not queried as to possible race prejudice, and at the third trial a second conviction was voted by the jury.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

A DECISION which became known in Washington yesterday brings Helen Hayes to the Capital in Molnar's comedy, "The Good Fairy," for the week of April 4, at the National Theater—the first stop in a road tour that will include Philadelphia and Boston and will terminate in Chicago following an indefinite engagement in that city.

The return of Miss Hayes to the National, under the direction of Gilbert Miller, erstwhile general manager of the Charles Frohman Co., will have an added sentimental interest for the old-timers in the theater. It will restore the old order under which for decade upon decade the Frohman stars invariably appeared at the famous playhouse facing the Avenue, presided over by Col. William Harriman Rapley and his father before him.

This reversion to the practice of an earlier day is interpreted by many as visual evidence of the healing of the breach that alienated the Gilbert Miller interests from the Erlanger fold, so long trade-marked by the internationally known name of Klaw and Erlanger, conveniently contracted into the familiar initials, "K. & E." The alliance between Charles Frohman and K. & E., during his lifetime, was indissoluble. Many are the Frohman stars whose most brilliant achievements are indelibly linked with the National—Maude Adams, Otis Skinner, Ethel Barrymore, William Faversham, John Drew, Billie Burke, Elsie Ferguson, Kyrle Bellew, William Gillette and scores more in the passage of years.

It is the mention of William Gillette, of course, that instantly recalls Helen Hayes. It was at the age of 14 that she first revealed stellar capability in his support in "Dear Brutus." She now returns to the scene of that earlier triumph—and it was no less than that—in the Molnar vehicle which will serve her until picture contracts call her to Hollywood for the continuance of the new career that was launched with "The Sins of Madelon Claudet" and followed by her appealing screen performance in "Arrowsmith," with Ronald Colman.

And imagine my astonishment when the worthy Mr. Charles Warren McClintock, who has already assumed the duties of cymbal-whanger-in-chief for the road tour of "The Good Fairy," called up yesterday afternoon and proved that he has read this column at least once by admonishing me not to think I am the only one who remembers when Jim Corbett played the Academy in "The Burglar and the Lady," 427 years ago, come Whitsuntide!

"See here, fellow," said Mr. McClintock, "I was the agent ahead of that show and about one more crack out of you as to how long ago it was in hours, minutes and seconds and it's going to be just too bad. I'm tellin' you."

You're telling me? I already know, worse luck!

Mindful of the large following wrestling—or rassiln', if you really go for that gentlemanly form of mayhem—has compiled in the National Capital, Rodney Collier, of the Rialto, calls up to say that beginning today, the Universal Newsreel will include reasonably complete pictures of the recent Madison Square Garden bout in which Dick Shikat, weighing 218 pounds, flattened Leo Pinetzki, that mere babe among the behemoths, who weighed in at only 282 for the encounter!

Both have been seen locally and, no doubt, will be again—in addition, that is, to their shadows at the Rialto.

If it is next week's amusements you are beginning to worry about, the Belasco, beginning Monday night, will present Janet Beecher in a new comedy by Roland Bottomley, "Olivia Bows to Mrs. Grundy," as the sixth and final attraction of the Professional Players' second subscription season in Washington. Devised solely for the purpose of creating laughter, the play is said to be brilliantly written.

It also should be brilliantly played, listing among its principals such competent merrymakers as Taylor Holmes, Sydney Greenstreet, Fleming Ward, Nicholas Joy, Evelyn Carter Carrington, Vernon Rich, David Morris, Sam Wren and Charlotte Andrews. Lawrence Marston directed the piece and Rollo Wayne designed the settings.

At the National next week, but beginning Sunday night, Vivienne Segal and Charles Purcell will be heard in the costellar roles of Oscar Straus' imperishable operetta, "The Chocolate Soldier." Prominent among the supporting principals will be Allan Rogers, the favorite tenor who served so long as master of ceremonies at Loew's Palace Theater here.

The production comes to Washington direct from a highly successful run in Chicago and is said to mark one of the most pretentious revivals this sterling work has ever been given.

The "Dainty Dolls" burlesquers, featuring George Broadhurst and Joan Lee, are announced to hold the boards at the Gayety for the ensuing week, beginning with matinee performance Easter Sunday.

Ed East and Ralph Dumke, the radio team known as "Sisters of the Skillet," featured in the stage portion of the program at the Fox this week, were among those received by President Hoover yesterday noon at the White House.

The President was recently diverted by this pair of comics at the White House correspondents' dinner. Today they will be luncheon guests at the National Press Club, along with Rudy Vallee, of George White's "Scandals" and some repute as a crooner!

Jockeys, entries and post positions for next week's runnings in the motion picture theaters will be about as follows, according to the morning line: RKO-Keith's, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in George Gershwin's "Girl Crazy," and Jack Whiting headlining the vaudeville; Metropolitan, "Explorers of the World;" Earle, Richard Barthelmess and Marian Marsh in "Alias the Doctor," and Rosetta Duncan, of the celebrated Duncan Sisters, headlining the vaudeville; Fox, Joan Bennett, John Boles and Minna Gombell in "Careless Lady," and Fanchon & Marco's "Stars of Yesterday" idea, with Eva Tanguay; Columbia, Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan, C. Aubrey Smith and Neil Hamilton in "Tarzan, the Ape Man;" Palace, William Haines and Madge Evans in "Are You Listening?" and Loew's "Cuban Holiday" revue; Rialto, Charlie Murray and George Sidney in "The Cohens and Kellys in Hollywood."

When Fanchon & Marco's "Stars of Yesterday" opens tomorrow at the Fox, many Washingtonians will be surprised to see Billy Kenney, old-time minstrel star and now guard of the golden stairway on the Senate side of the United States Capitol, performing on the stage.

Mr. Kenney has been around Washington many years and is known to hundreds of newspapermen and Government officials who visit the Senate. He comes from a stage family, his father, mother, sisters and brothers all having been singers and dancers. Back in the 90s he was doing an act with his brother, later joining the Brown Brothers, Tom and Percy, playing vaudeville and the Ringling Bros. circus. This act subsequently became renowned as the Six Brown Brothers, saxophone artists, in vaudeville and with the Dillingham productions.

At one time Mr. Kenney was owner of the famous Silver Dollar Cafe in El Paso, Tex., or is that on the wrong railroad for you?

Most of us, these days, would be satisfied to be owners of a silver dollar!

CAPITAL EXHIBIT SET BY GENERAL MOTORS

Program Aiming to Boost Business Will Open on April 2.

Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of General Motors Corporation, has announced that on April 2 the corporation will launch a gigantic program to stimulate business when it opens simultaneously national exhibits of its many products in 55 leading cities. "Work for many hands" is the theme of the exhibition, which will continue through April 9. In Washington it is to be held at the Washington Auditorium.

Dealers in General Motors products in Washington and vicinity last night gathered in the Mayflower Hotel to outline final plans for the Washington exhibit. The committee which will carry out the plans is composed of E. C. Clark, G. R. Weeks, D. T. Bogart, W. H. Miller, C. B. Amorous, E. C. Scott, Paul Schmidt, W. A. Kolb, H. R. Mason and C. M. Zimmerman.

In every city the largest available auditorium has been engaged. As a whole they aggregate more than 1,000,000 feet of floor space. The exhibits will consist of a representative line of more than 150 different models of General Motors cars, various automotive accessories, household appliances manufactured by the corporation and water and lighting systems for farms.

Mr. Sloan, in announcing the plan, said:

"This program was conceived and has been developed as a direct and aggressive attack upon existing psychology—the prevailing attitude of mind of waiting for something to happen before anything is done. As long as this attitude of mind prevails we are bound to go downward. When it changes we are bound to start upward. There are too many who can afford to buy but who lack confidence or believe it to be the thing not to do. There are also too many who have in mind doing something constructive, but are waiting to do it some time later.

"To my mind, the automotive industry as a whole has shown great aggressiveness and courage in investing tens of millions of dollars in new and progressive products, resulting in by far the greatest values ever offered and probably greater relative values than can be offered for many years to come. If this fact could only be appreciated and capitalized by those who are in a position to do so by purchasing, this industry—the greatest in the country, distributing as it does its purchasing power throughout every State in the Union—would broadcast a wave of increased industrial activity which through its accumulative effect would exert a far flung influence toward reaching the necessary objective.

"General Motors makes its contribution toward this objective in the form of these Nation-wide exhibitions with the firm belief that a better appreciation of the above facts is bound to be a forward step in the direction that we must go."

Doctor Is Exonerated In Suit for $20,000

Dr. William A. Jack, jr., yesterday was given a directed verdict by order of Justice Oscar H. Luhring in a case in which he had been named defendant in a suit for $20,000 damages. Dr. Jack had been accused of negligently performing an operation in 1923, with the result that a second operation was performed on the patient, Miss Alma Godbout, in 1929.

Medical experts testified that in their opinion Dr. Jack had not been negligent in the manner in which he left a drain in the abdomen of the child, who was 11 years old at the time of the first operation. The action of Justice Luhring in directing the jurors to bring in a verdict for the physician exonerated him of any fault in the case.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC DENIED RATES CUT

Railroad Is Refused Slash to Compete With Ships Through Canal.

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Comerce Commission yesterday refused to permit the Southern Pacific Lines to reduce freight rates by rail and water over their Sunset Gulf Route to the Eastern seaboard in an effort to meet water competition by way of the Panama Canal.

The Southern Pacific operates from the Pacific Coast by rail to Galveston and Houston, Tex., and by steamship from these ports to Baltimore and New York.

For years transcontinental service over what is known as the Sunset Gulf Route has been sporadic. The Southern Pacific, claiming competition of steamship lines operating through the Panama Canal, was affecting this trade, asked authority to establish rates between the West Coast and its Eastern piers that would meet canal competition, but which would be lower than rates to or from intermediate points in California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

Examiner William A. Disque, who conducted hearings in the case, recommended that the commission grant the authorization asked.

The commission, however, refused to permit reductions on the ground that it has "not been persuaded that as a whole the rates proposed by the applicants would be compensatory. Such rates as we would feel justified in approving as compensatory would be much too high to attract any substantial volume of this traffic to the Sunset-Gulf route."

"Inasmuch," the commission continued, "as one of the most important restrictions on our power to grant such relief concerns the reasonably compensatory character of the rates to or from the more distant points, and as we have found that the terminal rates here proposed would not be reasonably compensatory, it is unnecessary to consider in detail the other objections to the grant of such relief. It follows that the relief sought by applicants must be denied."

Pennsylvania Railroad Promotes C. D. Young

Philadelphia, March 23 (A.P.).—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today the promotion of Charles D. Young to the vice presidency in charge of purchases, stores and insurance. He succeeds Col. M. C. Kennedy, who retires on April 1 at the age of 70.

Young has been assistant vice president of the department. He is a graduate of Cornell University and had been with the railroad since 1902.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE evident intent of Congress to enact legislation providing a clear channel in the broadcast band for the exclusive use of labor has created much uneasiness among broadcasters. They fear that this action will be followed by persistent demands for similar preferential treatment by other organized groups. If Congress yields to one such group, it is argued, there is a possibility the other groups, with a precedent established, will also be placated, so that the time would soon arrive when Congress would in fact become a Super-Radio Commission. In that event the present Radio Commission would become a mere rubber stamp, and there would be little excuse for its existence.

The Radio Commission is openly opposed to the labor bill, which is sponsored by Senator Hatfield, of West Virginia. If that bill is enacted into law the commission will face a real problem in finding a clear channel to comply with the order of Congress.

Unless there is a new allocation, involving much delay, confusion and expense, the commission must necessarily "kill off" some powerful station now on a clear channel or else convert some regional channel, on which now operate two or three medium-sized stations, into a cleared channel. This would mean, of course, the deletion of several stations which were sharing the regional channel.

The entire third act of "Parsifal," for which Wagner turned to the legend of the Holy Grail, will be broadcast over the WJZ network from the Metropolitan Opera House tomorrow afternoon, 4 o'clock This work, given only at Bayreuth until 1913, by Wagner's express wish, represents the composer's literary and musical gifts in their most mature form. WRC will not carry the "Parsifal" broadcast, but WBAL, WHAM, WLW and WJR will be among those stations affiliated with the WJZ network which will.

In addition to Lauritz Melchoir, tenor, who will sing the role of Parsifal, the cast includes Gertrude Kappel, soprano; Clarence Whitehill, bass; Michael Bohnen, bass; Gustave Schutzendorf, barytone; Siegfried Tappolet, bass; Doris Doe, contralto; Queena Mario, soprano; Louis D'Angelo, bass; Angelo Bada, tenor; Marek Windheim, tenor, and Max Altglass, tenor. Artur Bodanzky will conduct.

ALTHOUGH the suggestion was meant to be serious in connection with the proposal to broadcast Senate proceedings, who could keep his face straight at the thought of a senator wearing a small microphone on his lapel? The microphone would have a lead line of about 30 feet of electric wire "so if a senator wished to walk about during a broadcast he might have a walking area in the shape of a circle 60 feet in diameter."

Harnessed up like this farmer-senators might remind themselves of the old cow tethered in the pasture back home. It might also remind the editorial wisecrackers and the cartoonists of a few things.

One senator inquired, "Who knows whether or not the people want to hear these speeches from the Senate? Who will listen to them?"

If some of the really exciting debate in the Senate when the sparks are flying could be heard, it might be worth listening to, but everyone knows that would be an impossibility. And even if it were possible the senators would be mighty careful what they allowed to go direct to the people. Does anyone think they would want their constituents to hear them get the worst of it in a verbal clash?

Not on your life! A majority of the senators, unless we miss our guess, would rather continue to doctor the Congressional Record, even though there is always the likelihood of the newspapers printing the facts.

So broadcasting from the Senate, if it is ever done, would very probably result in putting a lot of carefully edited, gentlemanlike speeches on the air, which, if anything, would add to the boredom of the radio audience and surely wouldn't be worth the $20,000 or so it would cost to equip the Senate with broadcasting apparatus.

A three-hour Passion service commemorating the crucifixion, to be conducted in Bethlehem Chapel at Washington Cathedral, by Bishop James E. Freeman, will be broadcast over WMAL tomorrow from 12 noon to 3 p. m., During the service, Bishop Freeman will deliver seven addresses consisting of meditations on the seven last words of Christ on the cross. Musical elements of the service will include portions of Sir John Stainer's "The Crucifixion," sung by the Washington Cathedral Choir of men and boys, under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster.

THE Army Band, under the leadership of William J. Stannard, will offer a special Easter program today (WMAL, 4 p. m.), beginning with the processional to Calvary, from "The Crucifixion," by Sir John Stainer.

The second presentation of the band will be "March Religioso," by Chambers. The descriptive "Easter Chimes," by Lake, will follow. The units used include "Lead, Kindly Light," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "The Palms," "Rock of Ages" and "Returning From Church." The band's program will close with the impressive "Sacred March," by Laurendeau.

The Navy Band will likewise broadcast a program today (WRC, 4:15 p. m.) dedicated to Easter.

Rudy Vallee and the Sisters of the Skillet will be guests of the Press Club at luncheon today, from noon to 1 o'clock.

An international organ recital, played on one of the largest organs in the world, will be braodcast tomorrow over WRC at 4:15 p. m. from Breslau, Germany.

Known as the Century organ, it is the greatest in the world inside a closed room. It has 187 voices, 13 transmissions, 15,000 pipes, of which 5,000 can be played at the same time, and is electrically operated.

Otto Burkert, organist, will include in his program "Passacaglia," by Ditrich Buxtehude; "Schmaecke Dich O Liebe Seele," a choral prelude by Bach, and Fantasy and Fugue in C Minor, by Bach.

SPEECHES by governors and other officials at the launching of the S. S. Santa Rosa, at Kearny, N. J., will be broadcast by both net works this morning, 11 o'clock. * * * The United States Marine Band will play a special Good Friday concert over WMAL at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon * * * Elizabeth Connor Lindsay, widow of Vachel Lindsay, will be heard in several recitations this morning (WJZ, WBAL, 11:45 o'clock) * * * "Buddies," written by Gene Brandon, is the play which the Northern Dramatic Company will present tonight, WOL, 7:30 o'clock. * * * The National Council of Jewish Women presents Representative Florence Prag Kahn in a talk on "The Economic and Social Crisis: What Can Women Do?" (WMAL, 2:30 o'clock this afternoon) * * * Franz Liszt's "Christus Oratorium" will be presented by an orchestra directed by Erno Rapee (WRC, 11 o'clock tomorrow morning) * * * "The Life of Christ," as portrayed in Negro spirituals, will be presented by the Dixie Jubilee Singers in a special Good Friday program (WJZ network, 11 o'clock tomorrow night) * * Charles Rann Kennedy's beautiful and pathetic drama, "The Terrible Meek," will be presented by the Radio Guild tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 3 o'clock).

RUDYARD KIPLING'S stories of India are to be dramatized for radio listeners for the first time in a weekly series, beginning tonight (WRC, 9:30 o'clock), by the sponsors of the Sherlock Holmes radio dramas.

Special permission for the radio adaptation of the stories has been obtained from the famous writer, and the tales will be offered complete in single installments, one a week, beginning with "The Man Who Would Be King."

The sponsors will continue the Sherlock Holmes adventures over the WJZ network each Wednesday night at 9 p. m., just as in the past.

Crew Abandons Sinking Vessel

Another Barge Loses Its Rudder While Being Towed by Tug.

Norfolk, Va., March 23 (A.P.).—The barge Ella Pierce Thurlow was abandoned by her crew 34 miles northeast of Frying Pan Shoals this morning, according to a wireless message received at Coast Guard headquarters, and the barge Brina Pendleton lost her rudder and is in bad condition. Both barges were being towed by the tug Susan Moran and were bound from Savannah for New York. The Thurlow was loaded with nitrate and the Pendleton with clay.

The Susan Moran took off the crew of four men on the Thurlow and at last reports was standing by the Pendleton awaiting the arrival of the Coast Guard Modoc, which was dispatched from Wilmington to give any assistance needed.

The abandoned barge at last reports was waterlogged and sinking. The Modoc, if possible, will tow the craft to port, probably to Wilmington.

Liner Talks Halfway Around World.

Bremen, March 23 (A.P.).—While the liner Europa was homeward bound through the British Channel today her radio operator, through an intermediate station, made contact with Bangkok and for an hour the ship talked with the Siamese capital, halfway across the earth. Transmission was excellent.

THE HUMAN TOUCH.

This was what
The book was advertised
As having—
"The human touch."
But in all its tedious pages
The only evidence of it
Which I could find
Was the print of a broad thumb,
With its spiral lines and volutes
Etched in sharp black ink,
That a compositor had carelessly
But refreshingly
Imprsesed on one of the margins.
A perfect Bertillon record,
With grip and masculinity in every whorl.
And in the entire book's pallid anemia
The one bold impact and invasion
Of invigorating and redeeming reality!

Customers Denied Right To List Stocks on Taxes

(Associated Press.)

Customers who buy and sell securities on stock exchanges are not entitled to inventory their securities for income tax purposes, but dealers are entitled to do so.

The Internal Revenue Bureau issued a ruling yesterday to clear up the question. It has been generally the practice that dealers on stock exchanges would inventory their securities on their books, and at the end of the year take depreciation on the inventory the same as done by business men.

The question arose as to whether the same practice could be followed by customers who buy and sell only for their own account. The bureau ruled they were not entitled to the privilege.

The bureau did not say who submitted the question, but it was said that ruling would affect only a few large stock exchange dealers who traded only for their own account.

KREUGER EVENT HITS MARKETS OF WORLD

Match King's Money Affairs Start Selling Flurries on Nations' Exchanges.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Although it will be many weeks before the final audit of Ivar Kreuger's affairs will be available to investors, it has already become apparent that none of the world's principal money markets will escape a severe drubbing when the whole picture is presented.

Kreuger's affairs touched every country in the world and while his match business, the basis of all his operations, was a model of efficient management and modern salesmanship, the posture of the Kreuger & Toll financial affairs apparently leaves much to be desired.

The rush of selling which followed news of Kreuger's suicide in Paris a week ago last Saturday was a hint to the security markets that the too rapid extension of the match fortune into European and South American utilities, had left in its wake a somewhat top-heavy capital structure, but it was not until the details of the financing began to reach the market this week that any real basis for estimating values came to hand.

Issues in United States.

The principal Kreuger & Toll issue outstanding in the United States consists of $50,000,000 in thirty-five-year 5 per cent debentures floated in New York in 1929. Following the request of the Kreuger auditors in Stockholm last week that trading in the match king's issues be suspended on the New York Stock Exchange, officials requested the American trustee of the debentures, the Lee Higginson Trust Co., to publish the catalogue of the original underlying securities deposited under the indenture.

By an odd coincidence, this list was privately circulated in New York on Friday and Saturday of last week, but it was not formally made public to the investing public by the New York Stock Exchange until Tuesday afternoon of this week.

As of August, 1929, the deposited foreign issues represented about one and a fifth times the dollar issue, at par; and the annual income from the deposited securities was estimated at 120 per cent of the interest requirements on the dollar issue.

Trust Indenture Provision.

The trust indenture, however, carried a stipulation authorizing the Lee Higginson Trust Co. to make substitutions from time to time in the collateral portfolio. In making public the original list, the banking firm announced that information concerning such substitutions always had been currently available to the debenture holders at the office of the trustee.

The present outstanding volume of the Kreuger & Toll debentures in the United States is estimated at $48,000,000, some $2,000,000 having been retired under the sinking fund plan.

The following list of original underlying securities suggests the basis of the Kreuger & Toll financing. In return for match monopolies, or other valuable trade concessions, the Swedish interests would advance relatively small loans to foreign governments, out of the match surpluses.

Portfolio Is Expanded.

As the portfolio of these varied direct loans expanded, they were pooled and deposited as collateral for a public bond issue in one of the great money markets.

The collateral for the debentures, held by the trustee, Lee Higginson Trust Co., and by the depositary, Skandinaviska Kredit Aktiebolaget, of Stockholm, follows:

$922,529 Ecuador Mortgage Bank, 7 per cent, 1949.

$22,000,000 Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, 8¼ per cent, 1958.

$6,000,000 Republic of Latvia, 6 per cent, 1964.

$23,848,753 Hungarian Cooperative Society, 5½ per cent, 1979.

Issue in Francs Pledged.

In addition to the foregoing dollar issues, Kreuger & Toll also pledged an issue of 74,900,000 French francs of the Caisse Autonome des Monopolies du Royaume de Roumanie, backed by the Roumanian government. These bonds bear 5½ per cent interest and mature in 1971.

Another part of the security for the American flotation was 55,000 Swedish kroner in German Government International 5½s, maturing in 1965, and approximately 380,000 English pounds in Roumanian Government Consolidated 4s, due in 1868.

Publication of the collateral behind the Kreuger & Toll participating debentures, showing that such high grade security as the French government bonds had been removed, did not serve to brighten that aspect of the picture.

A firm of London accountants was engaged last week to make a complete audit of the Kreuger holdings. When this report is available the approximate real worth of the dollar issues of Kreuger & Toll will be known.

Shifts of Collateral Clear Match Mists

Exchange Report Gives Light on Tangle to Aid Investors.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange announcement today of shifts made in the collateral covering Kreuger & Toll debenture bonds in this market served to throw light on the entire Kreuger & Toll situation, which partly because of its mystery, has been an unsettling stock market factor.

While bankers saw a plausible explanation in the collateral changes to justify past selling of Kreuger & Toll securities, they nevertheless welcomed the new information. For one thing, they said, it would bring the whole situation into the open where it can be fairly weighed by investors without the inevitable misgivings which accompany the unknown.

Since the suicide of Ivar Kreuger, the European situation has been attracting considerable attention, particularly that in central Europe.

The recent impairment of Germany's favorable trade balance has aroused some uneasiness over the Reich's ability to continue to meet payments on its private debts, but most quarters in Wall street feel that payments will be fully met until the Lausanne conference in June, and are hopeful that a satisfactory solution of the German difficulties may come out of the conference.

There is believed to have been some selling in this market of foreign holdings of American securities, as result of the Kreuger situation, which has presumably tied up funds in some centers.

EXPERTS FORECAST SALES TAX RESULTS

Printing and Publishing Pass Unscathed, While Others Will Face Changes.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

An interesting analysis of the effect of the proposed 2½ per cent sales tax might be expected to have on various important divisions of industry has been made by Standard Statistics Co., of New York. It expects that the largest portion of the advertising, printing and publishing would be unaffected.

Intense competition in the low price field might induce automobile producers to pay the tax, it believes, but regarding trucks, business conditions should outweigh the tax factor in determining near term sales.

With regard to parts, the company states, that as most of these are of small value, the effect on consumption would be negligible. In certain instances, however, competition might force absorption of the tax by manufacturers, to the detriment of profit margins.

The addition of 20 or 30 cents per tire would be insufficient to impose a limitation on total business, nevertheless, because of competition, the tax may be absorbed by manufacturers, in which event, profits would be even further depleted.

Given the creation of new financing facilities, the company is of the opinion that expansion in the building industry is likely to occur with business recovery, irrespective of the tax.

Concerning electrical equipment and radio, prediction is made that domestic appliances and machines clearly would bear the brunt of the levy. Sales of heavy equipment, the analysis reminds, are at such low ebb that the possible effect of the tax would be of little significance. Radio manufacturers would be directly and considerably affected.

The regular quarterly dividend of 4 per cent on the stock of Security Savings & Commercial Bank has been declared, payable March 31 to stockholders of record March 25.

Directors of Anacostia Bank declared yesterday the usual quarterly dividend of 5 per cent, payable March 31, to stockholders of record March 26.

Mrs. Wrigley Elected to Board.

Chicago, March 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ada E. Wrigley, widow of the late William Wrigley, jr., today was elected to succeed him as a director of the William Wrigley, jr., Co., at the annual meeting of stockholders.

The directors reelected all officers and declared the regular dividend of 25 cents a share, payable May 1, 50 cents, payable June 1, and 25 cents, payable July 1.

CURB stocks and bonds drifted aimlessly in a dull session.

The consolidated division will be under the general managership of I. J. Reuter, now general manager of Oakland.

Sales of Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac cars likewise will be consolidated under Mr. Reuter, with R. H. Grant as vice president in charge of sales.

Southern Pacific Gets St. Louis Southwestern

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Southern Pacific to take over control of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway on April 13.

The commission issued the order as a result of notice received from the Southern Pacific Co. on February 26, accepting the conditions and terms on which the commission granted authority for it to take over the road.

The commission's order, although made public only today, was voted on March 14.

GLASS BANKING BILL CALLED DANGEROUS

Investment Group President Tells Senate Measure Would Injure Trade.

(Associated Press.)

The Glass banking bill was called "dangerous" to national bankers yesterday by Allan M. Pope, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, at hearings before the Senate banking committee.

Mr. Pope said he had consulted several hundred investment bankers, and "without exception they are opposed to the legislation on the ground that we now are engaged in an attempt to stem the tide of deflation."

He said sections of the measure were "discriminatory" against national banks, and predicted this would force the banks to become State rather than national institutions.

Loan Provision Scored.

Mr. Pope said the provision increasing the interest rate on fifteen-day loans to member banks by Federal Reserve banks was "extremely deflationary and dangerous." He argued it would immediately depreciate Government bonds, as well as all securities.

Mr. Pope protested also against the provision restricting investments in securities as "highly deflationary." He said it would require the sale of "several billions of dollars of securities immediately" by national banks.

The contention that the Glass bill would nullify the benefits of the recent Federal reconstruction measures was expressed before the committee by Harry J. Haas, president of American Bankers Association.

Further Liquidation Feared.

Recalling the formation of the National Credit Corporation, the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and passage of the Glass-Steagall bills, Haas said:

"We are fearful that the proposed bill will, to a large extent, nullify these efforts by causing a further liquidation of securities, which would decrease their market value at a time when the owners are not able to withstand further losses.

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation sought to enable banks to carry investments which are sound but unmarketable except at a substantial loss. The proposed bill would require banks to throw these securities on a market which is yet too weak to absorb them.

"Many large business concerns have mapped out plans for the expenditure of large sums in the employment of labor and the purchase of materials, but we sincerely believe that their plans will be held in abeyance should they be fearful of legislation affecting their business adversely."

Legion's Drive Places 312,897 Men in Jobs

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was informed yesterday the American Legion's reemployment drive—now in its fifth week—had returned 312,897 jobless men to work.

Mark T. McKee, of Detroit, executive director of the campaign, said he placed this figure before the President. He said word just received by the Legion placed the figure for Tuesday's reemployment at 13,393, in 1,791 different towns and cities.

"Although the drive was originally set for one month, "Mr. McKee said, "the Legion intends to reach its objective of 1,000,000 jobs, and will continue the campaign indefinitely."

Mr. McKee said he told Mr. Hoover special emphasis now is being placed upon the "man-a-block" plan, which would have residential districts chip in to provide a full week's work for one man on odd jobs.

STOCK MARKET SAGS IN LISTLESS TRADING

Many Small Losses Result, With Bonds in Decline; Curb Trading Dull.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—Stocks combined somnolence with flabbiness today, and the net result was another list of small declines in one of the year's smallest turnovers.

Business news was hardly of a character to inspire market improvement, and, on the other hand, it contained no surprises. Midweek statistics on the state of trade revealed the now familiar absence of seasonal stirrings.

Stocks dipped at the opening and through the first hour. Offerings dried up so completely on this setback that a period of firmness ensued, but almost as soon as losses had been retrieved the market embarked on a slow downward drift that persisted to the heavy close.

Phone Closes Lower.

American Telephone was under pressure most of the session, especially toward the finish, and closed 2¼ points lower.

Procter & Gamble also traveled out of line, but cut its extreme breaks 4 points to 2¾ net. Special liquidation was held responsible for the break.

Northern Pacific, which joined the growing list of railroads whose dividends are being deferred in hope of improved earnings later, anticipated the directors' action by declining more than a point. On the whole, rails were dull. Norfolk & Western was heavy and there were moderate sags for New York Central, Santa Fe and Baltimore & Ohio. Kreuger & Toll figured in some large transactions, yfelding slightly.

The market's total turnover amounted to 837,728 shares.

The appearance of cheaper money brought better prices for United States Government securities, but had no attraction for the stock market, which long ago ceased to be interested. The obvious meaning of easier rates is that the credit requirements of business are at a very low ebb.

German Bonds Higher.

The bond market was in another hesitant mood and, outside the United States Government list, prices drifted quietly to lower levels. Support was given the Federal section throughout most of the session and five of the Liberty Loans recorded new highs for the year. The 3½s, which are completely tax exempt, touched par for the first time in many months. There were some moderate reactions near the close, attributed to profit-taking, but the undertone of both liberties and treasuries was firm.

Some of the high grade utilities, industrials and railroads resisted flurries of liquidation during the day, but on the whole price changes followed a somewhat narrow range. German Government 5½s rallied around 2 points following denials of rumors that the Reich contemplated a moratorium on interest or amortization payments.

Argentine obligations were notably weak on reports that a maturity of $12,000,000 April 1, would be paid in part and an extension obtained for the remainder.

Sales totaled $9,156,000 par value.

Curb Trade Listless.

The curb market also drifted uncertainly lower in sluggish trading the turnover of roughly 170,000 shares duplicated yesterday's volume.

Utilities were under moderate pressure here and there. Electric Bond & Share again lost a fraction. Commonwealth Edison was off about 2 points, Electric Power & Light second preferred appeared at 32½, off 7½ points, despite announcement of payment of the regular common dividend.

Secretary Mills yesterday invited bids for $100,000,000 in Treasury bills to be received at Federal Reserve Banks up to 2 p. m., Monday. The bills, which will be for 91 days, will be dated March 30, and will mature on next June 29, when they will be redeemed at face value.

The money derived from the sale of the bills will be used to retire $101,000,000 in Treasury bills which mature on March 30.

BETTER TRADE SEEN BY STEEL JOURNAL

Iron Age Weekly Review Predicts Strong Buying by Motors and Rails.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—Based on definite business that seeems to be "just around the corner," the steel industry looks forward to a seasonal rise in activities, and expects that the turn will come within the next two weeks, Iron Age declared today.

Business failed to improve in March, normally the month of peak operations, and ingot production continues at 25 per cent of capacity, the review says.

Expectations of betterment are predicted upon the fact that the Ford Motor Co. must soon release large orders if it is to attain a volume production schedule early in April. Other automobile manufacturers are also expected to release business that has been held back because of restricted output.

Financial aid to railroads through the medium of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is expected to stimulate equipment buying, the review asserts.

Steel at Low Record.

Efforts to strengthen steel prices are complicated at seaboard points because of growing foreign competition, it is stated.

Pending complete establishment of some of the higher prices now quoted, the "Iron Age" finished steel composite price is unchanged this week at 2.04 cents a pound. Raw materials are lower, the composite price for pig iron now being $14.43 a ton and that for steel scrap $8.21 a ton. The pig iron composite is the lowest since September, 1915, while that for steel scrap breaks all records.

Lead Also Lower.

The price of refined lead dropped another notch today to 3 cents a pound, which so far as the records of the metal statistical bureaus are concerned, is a new low price for all time. The previous price, 3.15 cents, evidently had little attraction for buyers except for a brief period early this month, following a reduction from 3.25 cents.

Manufacturers and dealers in machinery and machine tools continue their wait for improvement in general business, says the current issue of the "American Machinist." There are a few sales, a few more inquiries and apparently bright prospects, it is said. Detroit manufacturers are anxiously awaiting a move by the Ford Co.

R. G. Dun & Co., in a survey, see considerable improvement in the basic position in the dry goods trade by reagon of production curtailment in several lines of cotton goods, and greater stability of prices in the wholesale markets.

Merger Joins Knox And Dobbs Hats

General Hat Corporation Will Retain Officers of Both Concerns.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—Announcement of the signing of contracts for the merger of Cavanagh Dobbs, Inc., and the Knox Hat Co., was made tonight by the banking firm of Wertheim & Co., under whose auspices the new combination was arranged.

The two companies are among the oldest in the hat idustry and the merger is expected to create the largest hat manufacturing concern in the United States. The Knox business was established in 1838 and the Crofut & Knapp Co., predecessors of Cavanagh-Dobbs, was formed in 1858.

It is expected that the name of the new organization will be the General Hat Corporation. It will have more than 5,000 retail outlets throughout the country.

Contracts for the merger are subject to ratification by stockholders of the two companies at special meetings to be called in the near future.

Executives of both companies will become officers of the new corporation with John Cavanagh, president of Cavanagh-Dobbs, assuming the presidency. Fletcher H. Montgomery, president of the Knox Co., will be vice president and Frank H. James, treasurer. Chairmanship of the board of directors will not be filled at this time.

COTTON PRICES DROP AFTER EARLY RALLY

May Contracts Sell Off to 6.46; Liverpool Reports General Liquidation.

New York, March 23 (A.P.).—Partial rallies from an early decline in cotton today were followed by a break in the late trading under a renewal of liquidation which seemed to come partly through houses with foreign connections.

After selling off to 6.52 early, May rallied to 6.58 but broke to 6.46, new low ground for the movement, and closed at that figure. The general market closed easy at net declines of 14 to 18 points.

The opening was barely steady at declines of 5 to 10 points under a renewal of yesterday's selling movement promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables. But offerings were absorbed by trade buying and covering, and this demand proved sufficient to steady the market, while the selling became less active after the close of Liverpool.

But the buying was not active or aggressive and prices broke rather sharply during the last half hour under selling which seemed to come partly from abroad and which was attributed to a renewal of liquidation. October declined to 6.85 and closing prices were at the lowest of the day with the active months showing declines of about 70 to 73 points from the high prices touched early this month.

Trading in March contracts ended at midday. There was some last moment liquidation which sent the price off to 6.42 or about 11 points below May, but this was followed by a spurt of covering after the notices, estimated at about 1,500 bales, had been stopped and the last sale was at 6.51.

Liverpool cables reported general liquidation on the fear of labor troubles in Lancashire and said that the demand for cotton cloths and yarns was weaker.

Exports today were 28,973 bales, making 6,673,303 so far this season.

Liverpoool Cables Weak, But Pit Veterans Agree Prices Too Low.

Chicago, March 23 (A.P.).—A remarkable right-about-face action of the grain markets lifted wheat prices more than 2 cents a bushel late today, compared with semidemoralized breaks earlier.

The recovery was due to aggresive buying that set in after wheat had dropped to 49⅞ cents, March delivery, approximating the all-time bottom record for cash wheat here, 48¾ cents.

Much of the buying was based on assertions from trade authorities that upturns were to be expected, wheat values of late having suffered a shrinkage of almost 18 per cent.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛ to ⅞ cent above yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to ¼ cent higher, oats ⅛ to ⅛ cent advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to an equal advance.

At first the dominating factor in the wheat pit was a severe new setback in quotations at Liverpool, where buyers' confidence was described as "extinguished."

Helping to promote subsequent rallies were indications of a revival of export demand for North American wheat, with estimates that 200,000 bushels or more of United States hard winter grade had been bought to be shipped to Europe.

NATS' 6-RUN RALLY IN 8TH INNING BEATS ORIOLES, 10-6;
SAKS DEFEATS J. C. C. IN EXTRA-PERIOD THRILLER, 33-30

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

Biloxi, Miss., March 23.

THE interim between the time when the Nats arrive home, April 7, and when the bell rings on April 11 for the staff of the American League pennant race offers Joseph Ignatius Judge an excellent opportunity to hunt up a soft spot on the Washington bench, for that is where he is slated to perform this season, barring a miscarriage of the first-basing plans of the team.

They may insist that the Nats' manager is open minded on the subject of the first-base position, but observers here at the Nats' camp do not need to peer into the horoscope to learn of Johnson's deep-seated preference for the more youthful Joe Kuhel.

The signs here have pointed unmistakably to this preference for Kuhel. If there is supposed to be a fight for the position between Judge and Kuhel, Judge's supporters are entitled to ask when it will start. Six exhibition games are under the bridge, and Judge has warmed the bench in five of them.

A minor back strain suffered by Judge in batting practice a few days ago has enabled Johnson to omit him from line-ups since with good excuse, but with Judge in condition today, Kuhel again was sent to first, while the veteran of seventeen seasons of sterling play, who has shown little signs of slipping, cooled his heels in the Nats' dugout.

Johnson is most certainly entitled to the course he has adopted on the grounds that he is already thoroughly familiar with Judge's capabilities and that Kuhel's daily presence in the line-up is of an experimental nature, destined to bring out the best that is in the Kansas City youth. But Judge's case can be argued just as forcefully.

It is admitted that few years of topnotch baseball remain in the system of the 37-year-old Judge, but the worst possible course for Johnson would be to allow the veteran to become rusty on the bench when experience has taught that these veterans of Judge's ilk must be in the game every day to insure par performance. They rarely recover from these long idle spells.

Kuhel might crowd Judge to the bench by the very brilliance of his play, but there are several ball clubs who would welcome Judge's presence notwithstanding the fact that he has lost cast with the Washington management.

Take it on the word of Bib Falk, former Cleveland outfielder, who was in Biloxi yesterday as manager of the Toledo Club, Cleveland's farm, the Indians would be glad to talk trade with Manager Johnson and President Griffith if the latter were inclined to dispose of Judge.

The Cleveland Club is now laboring with the awkward Eddie Morgan, a fine hitter, but a shoemaker on first base, and Manager Peckinpaugh is casting envious eyes at Judge on the Washington bench, but overtures made to Mr. Griffith have resulted in no encouragement to talk trade.

The Detroit Tigers have made several overtures to the Nats for Judge's release, but the price has been too high. Economically speaking, Judge's worth to the Nats is still rated dear, despite the fact that he is fated for a substitute role.

The conclusion follows that while

Clothiers' Five Gains A. A. U. Semifinals; Grillmen Win.

St. Stephen's Upsets Eastern Reserves by 20 to 18.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THAT handpicked covey of individual basket ball aces, the Saks Clothiers, triumphed over a basketball team, the Jewish Community Center, last night at Tech High Gymnasium, 33-30, in an extra-period game which knocked 1,000 delirious court fans off their chairs with a demonstration of basket ball unparalleled in the District this year.

The bristling victory sent Saks out into the semifinal round of the District A. A. U. tournament, under the auspices of The Post, in which round they will meet the sensational Central "C" Club Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Wild, woolly, he-mannish, two-fisted, brilliant basket ball packed every second of the game, as the lead changed six heart-pumping times; as the J. C. C. led 16-8 at the half; as Sammy Hook put Saks ahead 28-26 on an electrifying long shot with 30 seconds to play; as Sussman tied up the score at 28-28 with 10 seconds to go, and as that same player let fly an impossible shot from the middle as whistle was sounding, that slipped down through the cords and caused a conference in midfloor; as the Mitchell brothers rightfully agreed that the regulation game had ended before the ball left Sussman's hands, and as the battle went into the extra period.

St. Martin's Wins Crown.

Preceding the feature game, the St. Martin's Midgets, showing a world of teamwork, drilled into them by Coach Madigan, won the 100-pound championship of the city by beating Neighborhood House, 33-15, while St. Stephen's was upsetting Eastern High's reserves, 20 to 18, and Olmsted Grill was forging into the finals of the 145-pound section over the prostrate Boys Club team.

You could not duplicate the second half and the extra period of last night's main event. Going into the last half with a lead of 16 to 8, the Center team was a cocky and exuberant bunch. Their stellar team play, showing the fine old Italian hand of Davey Keppel, had undermined the individual brilliancy of the coachless Clothiers, and Lester Singman, Hirsh and Sussman were making good spectacularly on basket forays.

It was Johnnie Sherman who threw Saks into high gear, as he swept into the game at the start of the second half's hostilities and ripped through the husky Jewish boys to score 7 points almost in succession, which, added to foul shots by Lucas and Jones, sent Saks out to 17 to 16 after eight bruising minutes of play.

Noonan, Hook, Sherman Prominent.

Abetted by Noonan and Hook, Sherman boosted his club to 23 to 17 before the J. C. C., in the person of Lester Singman, rang in its first field goal of the second half, after 13 barren minutes, during which time Saks had clamped an adhesive man-for-man defense on the Center five, which cut down even attempted shots.

Tech Players to Compete Tonight in Post Tourney

Maroon Scholastics Face Clifton; Girls Play for Title.

ANOTHER undisputed District basket ball champion will be crowned tonight at Tech High School Gymnasium in the District A. A. U. court tournament when Benning meets the Highlanders for the junior girls title, at 7 o'clock. The title tussle will put into swing a night of action which has not been equaled this year.

Tonight's curtain will be rung down by Tech High's spectacular Maroon Scholastics, who will atempt to vault into the semifinal round of the unlimited section over the Clifton Barbers, first rate independent team, which already has removed two teams from the tournament, the Phi Delta Zetas by 21-17 and the Y. M. C. A. by 32-21.

One of the choicest games of the entire tournament, the meeting between the St. John's Victors and the Northern Preps, ace 130-pound team, has been moved up to tonight. The game will produce a finalist and the battle for supremacy should be one of the most heated of the tournament. The Victors, during the scholastic season, rang up a tremendous record, winning The Post's prep school tournament and numbering among their season's victims both Tech and Eastern.

The final game of the girls' section tonight matches up two teams who conquered their semifinal opponents with ridiculous ease. The Highlanders put out Park View by a 32-to-9 count, and Benning undermined the Jewish Community Center, 57 to 6.

The girls' teams tonight bristle with outstanding players. Helen Whitney, Jane Abelman and Mildred Hook are the outstanding figures on the Benning Team, while the Highlands

U. S. Defeats France in Tennis

Mangin, New Indoor Champ, Bows to Jean Borotra.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, March 23 (A.P.).—Breaking even in the concluding singles matches tonight, the United States wound up the winner in its international team tennis bout with France, three victories to two. Frank Shields drove home the deciding points for Uncle Sam when he subdued Christian Boussus, 6—1, 6—4, 10—8, in the night's opening engagement.

After that, it mattered not that the 34-year-old Jean Borotra closed the three-day carnival with a spectacular win over this country's newest indoor champion, Gregory Mangin, 6—4, 3—6, 6—4, 6—1.

Borotra Outstanding Hero.

The Bounding Basque, nevertheless, emerged the individual hero of the tournament in scoring both of the tri-color's triumphs. He did more than his share by beating both Shields and Mangin, but he didn't get any help. Boussus bowed to the same pair without much of a struggle, and Borotra was handicapped by a weak partner, Antoine Gentien, in the doubles event against George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn last night.

After Shields had assured the United States the big cup by trimming Boussus and the crowd had nothing to worry about, the several thousand fans converted themselves into a rooting section for the popular Borotra. They cheered the French star almost constantly as he gradually beat down his younger opponent and gave him a regular college cheer as he overwhelmed Mangin in the closing set.

Borotra really won in the opening set, when he rallied after being down, 4-1, and ran off five straight games. He not only broke Mangin's service twice, but pretty well broke the New-ark Boy's spirit right there. The American came back to take the second set and square things, but he didn't have much left after that.

Opening the final set with a rush, Borotra quickly piled up a 5-0 lead and Mangin averted a love set only by winning his service in the sixth game. Mangin, to all appearances, was playing about as well as last week, when he sailed through the national indoor meet. He made a battle of it, as proved by the fact he scored 111 points in the four sets to Borotra's 120, but the French star had the deciding edge in the pinches.

As for Shields, the tall New Yorker scarcely was extended in turning back the left-handed Boussus. The Frenchman appeared still troubled by a leg injury received Monday night and was never able to put up much of a front until the third set.

Carnera Knocks Out Cook In Sensational London Bout

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS.

LONDON, March 23 (U.P.).—Outweighing his opponent 57 pounds, Primo Carnera, Italian man-mountain, knocked out the veteran Australian heavyweight, George Cook, one of the gamest fighting machines ever seen in a British ring, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout tonight before 7,000 frenzied spectators in Albert Hall.

Battered to the canvas for the count of three in the first round, the undersized heavyweight from "down under" staggered to his feet and launched a two-fisted attach which sent the towering Italian back on his heels.

In the second round, the 32-year-old Cook rushed out of his corner, and brought the crowd to its feet as he staggered Carnera with a smashing right to the jaw. He continued to beat the bewildered giant about the head and body, but was unable to put him out.

Carnera Charges Like Enraged Bull.

Recovered during the one-minute rest period, Carnera charged his man like an enraged bull, and a series of derrick-like swings sent Cook to the floor for the count of six early in the third. Again the lion-hearted Australian rose and rushed into the oncoming Goliath, his head crashing into Carnera's chest. Inside the Italian's arms, Cook barraged his opponent's body with stiff right and left hooks, forcing Carnera to break and retreat. Near the end of the round, Carnera floored him again for a short count.

Rice Starts Winning Splurge With Double as Pinch-Hitter.

Crowder Hurls Well; Delaney's Wildness Costs 4 Runs.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH (Sports Editor of The Post.)

BILOXI, Miss., March 23.—Seven successive base hits rattled off the Nats' bats like castanets in the hands of a dancing senorita this afternoon in the eighth inning of the ball game with the Baltimore Orioles here, and thereby hangs the tale of Washington's 10-to-6 victory, their sixth success in seven grapefruit league battles, this afternoon.

The base hits started popping for the Nats with the Orioles holding a 5-to-4 lead, and was an impressive display of the power that betides ill for opposition pitchers when the bell rings for the pennant campaign to start on April 11. The consecutive wallops were pyramided, into six runs for the inning, salvaging a game that young Mike Delaney appeared to have dissipated with a streak of wildness in the inning before.

Alvin Crowder had left the Orioles gasping at the end of his five-inning tenure in the box and had permitted only two hits, with Baltimore's lone run traceable to Cronin's error, but Delaney walked four batters in the seventh, which, with the aid of one hit, gave the Orioles four runs and a 5-to-4 lead.

Rice's Double Starts Drive.

Then the Nats' bombardment started. With one out, Sammy Rice pinch hit for Delaney and doubled to right. Buddy Myer singled to center, Heinie Manush singled to right, Sammy West singled to center, Joe Cronin singled to center, Carl Reynolds singled to left, Joe Kuhel singled to center. And six runs were across in a rally which ended when Bluege hit into a double play.

Jack Hopkins, stellar relief man for the Orioles last season, was the victim of this rally. He was the successor of Lefty Slim Melton, youthful Sally League recruit, who hurled impressively for Baltimore in the first six innings.

The game was a duel between Crowder and Melton until the Nats solved the latter in the sixth. Crowder was in possession of all his speed and permitted only one hit until the fourth, when a walk, Cronin's error on Packard's grounder and Melton's single netted Baltimore a run.

The Nats were able to put their first batter on base in each of the first three innings, but young Melton permitted no further liberties. He allowed one hit in each the first and second, and blanked the Nats in the third and fourth, but Washington scored in the fifth without the aid of a hit when Buddy Myer walked, advanced on a pass to West, stole third and scored on Cronin's infield out.

Attack on Melton Breaks Tie.

Melton saw this one-one deadlock broken at his expense in the sixth, when the Nats scored three runs on a pass to Kuhel, a single to right by Bluege, Heinie Sand's error on Maple's bounder, Delaney's sacrifice and Buddy Myer's second single, which scored two runners.

The game was given into Delaney's hands in the sixth and he survived that inning safely, but was a victim of his own wildness in the seventh.

Petrolle Still 8-5 Choice Against Battalino Tonight

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, March 23 (A.P.).—The grim, and apparently almost futile job of flagging down the old Fargo Express, falls tomorrow night to the fists of another youngster, this time Christopher "Bat" Battalino, former featherweight champion of the world. The fight is scheduled for 12 rounds.

Ever since "Uncle Will" Petrolle, battered of feature and seemingly headed for oblivion, came out of a two-year retirement, these youngsters have been taking turns trying to stop him. But Will, the patient hod carrier of the ring, sidles quietly in his tattered bathrobe, makes as calm and workmanlike a job of it as he can, and sidles out again, leaving the promoting folks to dig up some new and ambitious battler.

Aside from Jimmy McLarnin, who took one fearful beating from Will before coming back to edge out two decisions, Petrolle hasn't faced as rugged a foe as Battalino since resurrecting his ring career after a two-year lay-off eighteen months ago.

Battalino has improved with every fight, beating such feathers as Earl Mastro, Kid Chocolate and Fidel Labarra, stepping long enough into the lightweight ranks to knock out Al Singer in two rounds before forfeiting his title for inability again to make his class weight.

He hovers around the welterweight class now, has steadily growing and may weigh over 140 pounds, Petrolle's best weight, for tomorrow night's tussle. In his most recent engagement Battalino, outpointed, ran in ten rounds.

Battalino, as usual, is the underdog, with Petrolle's favorite at 8 to 5, but the Hartford, Conn., Italian is accustomed to that. His opponents in all his big matches have been the betting choices, but they are still trying to beat him.

In styles, Petrolle has a decided edge, his left hook to the body and right uppercut to the head being more or less designed to stop the shifting, crab-like advance of the former 126-pound king.

60 Horses at Aurora Awaiting Meet in May

Chicago, March 23 (A.P.).—The first installment of thoroughbreds which will race at Aurora in May, about 60 head, was due at Exposition Park today.

The horses, most of which raced at New Orleans, are owned by Antoine Pelleteri, E. E. Major, J. J. McCoole and C. Baldwin, and include Romany Baw, Curmudegeon, Bill Orange, Bright Knot, Marlene, Fiddler and Colonial Belle.

Pa Stribling Is Hurt In Florida Auto Spill

Miami, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—W. L. (Pa) Stribling, father-manager of Young Stribling of Macon, Ga., was injured near Punta Gorda today as his automobile collided with another and both went down an embankment.

Mrs. Edith Stribling, wife of Herbert (Baby) Stribling, another son of Pa Stribling, also was badly shaken up as was a Negro cook riding in their car.

Derby Lottery Salesman Is Held for Grand Jury

Detroit, March 23 (A.P.).—Arthur T. Garret, 61, accused of distributing 150,000 tickets on a Kentucky Derby sweepstakes, pleaded guilty before U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd today to a charge of violating the Federal lottery law.

Postal inspectors said Garret had sent the tickets to his agents through the mails and that each ticket was to have been sold for $1. Inspectors in other cities, they said, are seeking out the agencies and confiscating the tickets.

Mrs. Hill Leading At Southern Pines

Has 81 Card for 2-Stroke Lead in First Round of Medal Play.

Southern Pines, N. C., March 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, toured the wind-swept Southern Pines Country Club course in 81 today to take a two-stroke lead in the battle for the women's Midsouth Golf Championship.

The Western champion went out in 41, despite a bad 7 on the second hole, where she was trapped, and then she whipped the crosswinds on the inward nine for a 40.

Bernice Wall, slender Oshkosh, Wis., star, was in second place with 83. Her 38 on the second nine was the best nine-hole score of the day, but she needed a 45 in going out.

Szabo and Manich Clash Tonight in Strand Feature

Kley, Grobmeier and Wilson Are Also on Program.

JOE TURNER'S rasslers, in the only profession in the country that has not felt the twinge of hard times, play their weekly return engagement tonight, this time at the Strand, where the S. R. O. sign is expected to be hung out to greet the late clients for the match in which Sandor Szabo meets up yith George Manich, to settle a little 30-minute draw the boys put on last week.

The Manich man has been going well here and in other precincts populated by Curley growlers. He held Dick Shikat, conquerer of Leo Pinetzki, to a 45-minute draw and his 30-minute even battle with Szabo was the first time that high priced Hungarian has suffered such an indignity in Washington.

Tried and trusted local favorites fleck the rest of the bill. Fred Grobmeier, his winning streak broken at last at the hands of Strangler Lewis Tuesday night in Baltimore, is back for the umpteenth consecutive time, this time against Frank Speer, barrel-chested gridman.

The rest of the preliminaries look more interesting. Oke Shakima, one of the results of the Japanese-Chinese War, is on the bill, slated to meet tough George McLeod. Fritz Kley, one of the greatest freaks of them all, will permit Jack Hurley to operate on him, and probably flip the gent

Pro Golf Stars Start Play In North-South Open Today

By DILLON GRAHAM.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 23 (A. P.).—Dixie's oldest, and the last golf stake of the winter—the $5,650 North and South open tournament—today beckoned the homeward bound professional brigade for the start tomorrow of the 72-hole medal test.

The first two rounds will be played tomorrow, with the final 36-holes scheduled for Friday. This competition will end the country-wide tour which began the middle of last fall.

As a preliminary to the tournament opening, an exhibition four-ball match this afternoon attracted a large gallery, although the weather was inclined to be disagreeable. Bobby Jones, who retired from competitive golf after making a grand slam of the world's four major titles, teamed with the present open champion, Billie Burke, in a losing four-ball contest with Wild Bill Mehlhorn, unattached, and J. Miyamoto, Japanese champion. The victors won 2 up.

Jones, admittedly not partial to sand greens, was out in 33 strokes, with four birdies in the card, and came back in 36 for a total of 69. Mehlhorn likewise had a 69, made up of a 34 and a 35. The open champion shot 36—38—74, while Miyamoto required one more stroke, 38—37—75.

Two aces were scored today on the championship course. Victor East, of Springfield, Mass., got his hole-in-one on the fourth hole, and James Powers, of Long Island City, N. Y., duplicated the feat on the fifteenth hole.

For two years this tournament has been won by golfers scoring their first major triumph, and tonight the masters of the woods and irons were wondering who would break through to victory in the thirtieth renewal.

Two seasons ago it was a young Arkansan, Paul Runyan, now of White Plains, N. Y. Then came Wiffy Cox, a topnotcher from Brooklyn, who had been a contender for some time, but never before an important winner. Since then Runyan has won the Metropolitan title, the Gasparilla open, and has placed high in other

Willard Planning Ring Exhibitions

Ex-Champ, 49 Years Old, Would Meet Dempsey and Jack Johnson.

Los Angeles, March 23 (A.P.).—Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight champion, today announced that he contemplated a return to the ring to engage in exhibition bouts.

Recently Willard admitted that his various real estate and meat market ventures had failed and that he was earning a mere living.

His managers said he would go into training immediately and that they hoped to match him with Jack Dempsey, to whom he lost the title and Jack Johnson, from whom he won the crown, in four round exhibitions.

The former champion has been away from the ring for some ten-odd years. He is now 49 years old and weighs 300 pounds, about 50 pounds heavier than when he was actively engaged in the ring.

Pat Deck to Head D.C. Muny Netmen

Shepard, Rathgeber and Shreve Other Officers Elected.

Meeting at the Kennedy-Warren last night, members of the Public Parks Tennis Association elected Patrick A. Deck president of that organization for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were Herbert L. Shepard, vice president; Mortimer D. Rathgeber, secretary, and Bill Shreve, treasurer.

The association decided to begin play in the Interpark Tennis League April 30, and a tentative schedule to that effect was drawn up. The decision to revise the constitution of the association led to the appointment of Mr. Shepard as chairman of the committee which will draft new laws.

"Fed Up With Golf," Says Helen Hicks

Chicago, March 23 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, national golf champion, is fed up with the game. For the first time in seven years, Miss Hicks left her home at Long Island, N. Y., for a visit without taking her war clubs along, she revealed today. She is visiting Chicago friends.

"I'm fed up on the game after those tournaments in Florida," she said, "although I believe I am improving."

Meets Palitz in Baltimore Today; Latona Is Eliminated.

Baltimore, Md., March 23.—As expected by followers of the game, Frank Shore, jr., of Washington, will oppose Larry Palitz, Johns Hopkins University, tomorrow afternoon in the semifinals in the junior division of the Evening Sun-Fifth Regiment indoor tennis tournament at the armory.

The defending champion, Shore, slashed his way to another fine victory today in the quarter-finals, his victim being Emanuel Farber, University of Baltimore star, who was seeded fifth. The scores were 6—4 and 6—3.

Anthony Latona, of Western High, Washington, seeded No. 2, was eliminated from the running today in the juniors' fifth round by Clifford Siverd, Johns Hopkins, by 2—6, 6—4, 6—1.

The other semifinal match tomorrow will bring together Maurice Schwartzman and the winner of the encounter between Carl Hartman, Park School, and Morton Lipsitz, Druid Hill Park.

RED FACE WINS 3RD IN ROW FOR NEW OWNER AT ST. JOHNS

Gelding Cops At Odds of 21 to 1

Costing $1,000, Has Won $1,450 in Last 3 Races.

Coots Beaten Three Lengths; John Mill Third.

ST. JOHNS PARK, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—Red Face, the 6-year-old gelding which Joe Edwards purchased for $1,000 at a paddock sale held at Hialeah Park, won his third purse in as many attempts for his new owner here today. The elderly son of Ballot, perfectly ridden and at home in the sloppy going, took a good field into camp without being greatly extended and returned the surprisingly big price of $43.80 for $2.00.

Red Face beat Coots by three lengths, while the latter saved the place by a half length from John Mill. Red Face's three victories for Edwards were worth $1,450, so that the gelding's new owner has already realized a profit of $450 on the deal, not counting any wagers he may have made and cashed on.

Rains Keep Crowd Away.

Steady rains continued to take their toll out of local racing and a very light crowd braved the elements to witness the various events. Races with the claiming clause again dominated the program, with the fifth contest, a mile jaunt for members of the older ranks, serving as the chief magnet.

Montanaro took command after reaching the first bend, with Red Face being held off the pace, close up. Coots moved into the runner-up position in the back stretch. Donny Johnny, heavily played, was shuffled back early and then interfered with by Montanaro at the far turn. Coots and Red Face fought out the final issue, with Apprentice Arthur urging the winner away from his rival in the late stages.

The St. Joseph's Athletic Club will open its diamond campaign Sunday at Richmond, Va., when it stacks up against the strong Everett Waddy Co. Team at 3 p. m. Manager Frank Cinotti plans to send Dr. Jack Farrington to the mound against the Virginians. Others who will make the trip are Orrell Mitchell, Harry Hall, Walter Morris, Eddie Cinotti, "Pepco" Barry, "Cody" Shapiro, Joe Freschi, Joe Much and Dofflemeyer. The team will make the trip by automobile, leaving this city at 8 a. m.

District A. A. U. Title Mat Dates Advanced

The date of the A. A. U. wrestling championship matches has been moved up to Monday, April 11, and Wednesday, April 13, from April 25 and 27, as previously announced. The latter dates fall within the time during which the Jewish feast of the Passover is celebrated, and would prohibit the Jewish Community Center from entering a team.

The Y. M. C. A. mat artists, who won the championship last year, are training diligently for the title meet. The increased caliber of teams entered this year bodes no good for the defenders of the title.

D. C. Netwomen Name Miss Kingsbury Head

At a meeting held at the Women's University Club last night, Dorothy Kingsbury was elected president of the Women's Tennis League for the 1932 season. Mrs. H. Clay Thompson was elected vice president and chairman of the tournament committee, and Frances Walker was chosen secretary-treasurer.

It was voted to begin play in the league Monday, April 18, with the schedule continuing for approximately two months. The annual public parks tournament will be held June 8, and the women's District championship will be decided August 1, at the Columbia Country Club. Captains of the eight league teams elected last night are as follows: Mrs. Doris Miller, Nationals; Mary Ryan, Racqueters; Corrine Morris, George Washington University; Mrs. H. Clay Thompson, Columbia; Mrs. Knauss, Rock Creek; Mrs. Cecil Raver, Bureau of Standards; Mrs. Margaret Graham, Mount Pleasant, and Sarah Moore, Wardman Park.

Unusual interest had been aroused in this bout because Cook is perhaps the most popular British heavyweight. He recently surprised boxing circles by beating decisively the English heavyweight champion, Reggie Meen, at Leicester.

Because Carnera and Cook could not agree upon a referee, Promoter Jeff Dickson announced that if the fight went to a decision, he would let the applause of the crowd determine the winner. British boxing officials objected to this, and a referee was appointed, but his name was not announced until the men were in the ring. He was C. H. Douglas.

Carnera weighed 244 pounds; Cook, 197.

ALEXANDRIA LEAGUE.

Embry and Zimmerman led the Scholastics to an easy 34-19 victory over the Centrals in the feature game of the Alexandria Senior League last night. Embry scored 16 points and Zimmerman 12. The team was never behind during the game which saw the losers make a game but futile rally in the last period.

PRINCETON, at home in the going and forcing a stiff pace from the start, raced QUORUM into submission to take command entering the home stretch and, kept under stout urging thereafter, held QUORUM safe in the late stages. QUORUM, displaying good early speed, saved ground while setting the early pace, then continued courageously when the real test came. NOAJOYCE, close up and stoutly ridden from the start, finished gamely in the final drive. EVERYTIME went evenly throughout. He may have needed this race. JACK HOWE was unable to get to the front and could not seriously menace the leaders. The others were outrun.

CHIEF'S CAMILLE, favored the footing and, having the most speed, sprinted away into a commanding lead at once, saved ground wherever possible and held sway for the entire journey. HARUM SCARUM improved her position steadily and closed gamely. BAAL, badly outrun early, circled his field and closed fast on the outside. BLUE NILE, forwardly placed, held on well for the final drive. MONT JULE closed resolutely. BLANET BAY quit badly after racing in contention in the early racing.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:28. Winner, R. F. Coppage's gr. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOZO, $3.60, $2.40, $2.30; WINNIE JO, $3.80, $2.80; TOP HATTIE, $2.50.

BOZO, hard hustled to take command at the first turn, was steadied along in front while saving ground, shook off repeated bids from COCKRILL in the first mile and, holding on with rare courage in the final test, outstayed WINNIE JO. Latter, a stout factor from the beginning and under pressure, gained a slight lead inside the final furlong, but tired nearing the finish. TOP HATTIE, rated close to the leaders after entering the back stretch, came to the outside for the concluding test and closed gamely under severe punishment. COCKRILL, hard urged from the start, faltered during the final three-sixteenths. SWEEPNET was unable to improve her position when put to a drive. STELLANOVA and others were never factors.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. The Hotel Burbridge Purse. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:54½. Off at 3:55½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOROCCO, $3.60, $3.00, $2.40; WAVE TOP, $7.20, $3.20; OBSERVATION, $3.30.

MOROCCO, restrained off the early pace, slipped through on the inside of the leaders when midway of the far turn, responded willingly when placed to punishment when straightened into the home stretch and, wearing WAVE TOP down after a brief brush, drew out steadily under slight urging. WAVE TOP took command under sufferance in the early racing, raced kindly under steadying restraint, but could not withstand the winner when challenged. OBSERVATION, closer up than usual, weakened during the final quarter mile. JUDGE CAVERLY showed good speed for the first seven furlongs and tired. ANGRY LASS closed a big gap. THISTLE DEE met with no mishaps.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $600; claiming. The Hotel Mayflower Purse. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:24½. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED FACE, $43.80, $21.20, 4.70; COOTS, $5.00, $4.60; JOHN MILL, $4.10.

RED FACE, quickest to get going, was steadied in pursuit of COOTS when the latter was rushed to the front, came determinedly when put to a drive and, taking command in the final furlong, drew out stoutly thereafter. COOTS, caught in a jam directly after the start, slipped through on the inside entering the back stretch to take command, was rated in front, but was unable to stall off the winner when challenged. JOHN MILL, weakly ridden and on the outside early, responded to pressure through the stretch and closed gamely on the inside of the first two. MONTANARO was crowded on leaving the back stretch and could not make up any ground thereafter. DONNY JOHNNY, steered very wide until midway of the back stretch, raced to the leaders, but faltered fast in the final quarter mile. THE BREAK and ROAN ANTELOPE had no excuses.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, easily. Went to post at 4:52. Off at 4:53. Winner, E. B. McAtee's b. g. GIBBY'S CHOICE outran his field to the first turn, was taken under slight restraint when settled on the back stretch, shook off bold efforts from BIG BO and, holding on gamely under strong urging, outstayed DOCTOR BILLY. Latter, outrun for the first six furlongs, swung to the outside when moving into contention, but hung after getting to the winner nearing the final furlong pole. BIG BO, a keen contender in the first seven furlongs, weakened under punishment in the final drive. NOSE GAY, vigorously ridden the entire journey, could not reach the leaders. LAFTAR gained a forward position by slipping through on the inside at the first turn. She met with no mishaps thereafter. HAM quit early.

ON LEAVE, shuffled back going to the first turn, was taken to the outside when reaching the back stretch, displayed good ability in the going to reach contention, wore the leaders down and, kept under pressure, drew into a safe lead in the final furlong. FLYING ATOM worked his way up on the outside and closed with good courage. PARTIES, slow to get going and in the last quarter early, finished gamely, but could not menace the first two. NARDO, kept close up in the early running, weakened when the real test came. SHABBY SHOES raced well. PLAYING began tiring after five furlongs. ROUGH RIDER lacked speed in the early stages. RIVER LEE stopped badly.

—St. John's Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

ST. JOHNS PARK, Jacksonville, Fla., March 23.—Two-year-olds hold the spotlight tomorrow, the featured race being the Bayard Handicap at a half mile, and the large field includes several of the topnotchers among the juveniles engaged in winter racing. There is no mud form on any of these juveniles, as the Florida tracks have been fast since the first of the year virtually all the time until the last two or three days.

MODESTO, Mrs. S. F. Murphy's filly, which set a track record at Tropical Park for a half mile, seems best in this, if she can run well in the mud. MEANY, which was third in that race, probably will be the chief contender. STRAIT JACKET winner Tuesday, will hold the others safe on his public form, but track conditions may cause upsets.

FIRST RACE—CHATTAHOOCHEE, scratched yesterday, is selected to win the opener on his improved form in running second to Wave Top Monday. STUPENDOUS seems back in form and is rated the contender. This veteran was second to Marabou last time out. SOUR MASH is a mudder and may cut a big figure in the race. He should be as good as third. CHIEF'S CAMILLE is a doubtful starter, having won yesterday.

SECOND RACE—BO BALLOT will have to be the dependence in looking for the probable winner. BO BALLOT was closing strongly behind Wrack Royal the other day but was not in the money. WINNIE C. is believed the real contender, but recent races have been unimpressive. BAAL may get third. He is the horse which set a record for high place odds at Hialeah Park, and was third to Chief's Camille yesterday.

FOURTH RACE—LITTLE AMERICA, with top weight, has too much speed for the field. She is quick to leave the gates, and beat General A. in her last start. SINGLE STAR should be the contender. SULTRY, a mudder, may get the show money.

FIFTH RACE—COADY should improve in the mud and is selected to win. The W. C. Weant gelding a short time ago beat Clean Play and was fourth to this horse the last time they met. But disregarding his inconsistency, he should not miss tomorrow, for the competition will be weak. BROOKSIE probably will be favorite, and the race should be between the two. COADY is a better class than this one. ELLICE, not up to form of last year, should get in the money.

SIXTH RACE—TACK should repeat. The Carpenter gelding won easily from Genial Host last week. He will have ULTRA MARINE, a recent winner, to trim. TANTALIZING, in the same class as these, is a mudder, and should be third.

SEVENTH RACE—ROAN ANTELOPE is chosen. His recent victory over Starboard Light should make the selection plausible. GENIAL HOST is rated next best of the field. PLUTARCH, a superior mudder, has the call for show money.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., March 23.—The State finals of the junior American Legion tournament will be played here next August, it was disclosed today. Louis F. Hoy is executive chairman of the State Legion athletic committee, and he is making plans for this event.

Teams from Alexandria, Lynchburg, Roanoke, Danville, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg, Clarendon, Ballston and other Virginia cities will be entered for the play. The Alexandria boys have walked off with honors twice in the Virginia tournament. Once they advanced to the runner-up position in the regional District play at Gastonia, N. C.

Goodwin Signs With Cumberland.

"Coopy" Goodwin, former Washington and Lee High School baseball star, who for the past two seasons has been wandering in the outfield for the St. Mary's Celtics, will play with Cumberland, Md., in the Mid-Atlantic League this summer. Goodwin has signed his contract.

The Alexandria High School baseball team will play all of its home games at Baggett's Stadium. The only stipulation is that the high school club will keep the field in condition for the playing of all games. The "Twins" and the Celtics plan to play a practice tilt soon.

An important meeting of the Del Ray Athletic Club will be held at the home of Edward Von Deck, 1003 Little street, tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

Ladies will be invited to affiliate with the organization. Numerous events have been planned for both sexes.

The opening dance will be held on March 26, at the Potomac Community Hall. Receipts from this affair will go to defray expenses for the baseball campaign.

On Sunday the Yannigan and Regulars of the baseball squad will play a practice game. Manager Miller announces the season will begin on April 3.

Post Tossers Open And Close With Win

The Post Toasties, renowned sports writers team, opened and closed their basket ball season yesterday at the Jewish Community Center by annihilating the Herald Hooplas, 28-27 in a runaway tilt which was not much more than a breeze for the winners. The annual banquet was held last night at Thompson's.

Tony Atchison and Bob Considine played spectacularly for the Toasties, as did three other teammates, who were signed up shortly before the game. No one played very well for the Herald.

One of the best cards of amateur boxing arranged here in recent ring history will be staged at the Potomac Boat Club Saturday night when the club entertains the Quantico Marine sluggers against a mixed team of J. C. C., Boys Club and Georgetown A. C. mittmen.

Mike Tardugno, one of the best fighters ever produced here, meets Anderson, 126-pound Marine in a preliminary. Gus Mirman, Columbus University and J. C. C. slugger, takes on Strouss in the middleweight class.

Athletic memberships to the club may be obtained at the clubhouse.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

MRS. LILLIAN L. DYER is the mother of a school-teaching family. Her husband, who died in 1914, was also a school teacher.

Not only has the Dyer family selected teaching alone as a family occupation, but five members of the family, including Mother Dyer, are at present teaching in the same school in Lamesa, Tex.

In the Shumake High School, where Mother Dyer teaches, her son, Jim Dyer, is superintendent and Mrs. Ruby Dyer is principal.

In addition, Milton D. Dyer and his wife, Mabel Dyer; Reuben Dyer, T. H. Dyer, Wilma Dyer and Norine White, head, a niece of Mother Dyer, are all teaching in the same county—Dawson County, Tex.

"Cap" James R. MacDonald might be called the "man who had two graves."

February 10, 1932, MacDonald was laid to rest in West Lawn Cemetery, Omaha. Close beside the new grave is another smaller stone bearing the inscription, "Leg . . . 1922." This also is his grave . . . the grave of his left leg, which MacDonald buried himself, after losing it in a gun battle with bandits when he was a police captain.

CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE MEETS

Unlimiteds To Confer April 4

Pilots of Nines in Other Sections to Meet Same Week.

Contenders of Last Year Again to Enter Post's Loop.

REPRESENTATIVES of teams planning to compete in the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City Baseball League will meet Monday, April 4, at the District Building, Col. Hjalmar Ericson, newly elected president of the loop, announced last night. Important matters relative to the launching of the 1932 campaign will be discussed at this time.

Managers of the senior teams will convene Wednesday of the same week, junior team pilots will meet Thursday, and the midget representatives are scheduled to confer Friday. The insect teams will not meet until the following week.

Col. Ericson anticipates a banner year for the league. Approximately 60 teams competed for the gold baseballs offered by The Post last season, and the city championships they symbolized. Title holders were decided in five divisions. Judging from the number of queries received concerning the league the sandlotters promise to surpass last season's record.

A renewal of last season's hot rivalries is promised with the return of practically all of the leading contenders for the honors in the various classes. Saks Clothiers, who will assume a new name this season, will be back to defend their District title against the Dixie Pigs, Majestic Radios, Army Medicos and the rest of them. Dick Mothershead will again be at the helm.

The fate of the champion Olmsted Grill nine, of the senior division, hangs in the balance, but it is hoped that the opening day will find the G-streeters on the field. The Miller-Roamers, opponents of the Grillmen in the playoff for the title, have made rapid strides in their plans for the impending season, and again loom as powerful factors in the race. The Franc Jewelers, Acme Printers and Koontz Service teams are included among the clubs scheduled to play again this season. The Schwartz Jewelers, junior champs, and Spengler Post, midget winners, have also signified their intentions of playing.

SCHOLASTIC TEAM IN TOURNEY GAME

have perhaps the greatest basket marksmen of them all—Virginia Jones.

Not to be overlooked tonight is the third appearance of the sensational War Department (A. G. O.) Team in the tournament. Twice now they have turned in spectacular wins, but find themselves faced tonight by the sternest task of all, that of beating the Shade Shop. The A. G. O. beat the St. John's 145-pound team in the first round and followed this up with a thrilling 33-to-32 victory over St. Martin's in the second test, after trailing 17 to 4.

Tech should have plenty of trouble with the Clifton Barbers tonight, and there are those who will take a reasonable bebt that the hair-clippers come through against the Frank Merriwells, of the scholastic outfit. Clifton has two first-rate basket ball players in Andy Gleason, George Washington freshman star, and Whitey Cumberland, Central High's all-high quarter back and former basket ball leader.

Another big gathering is looked for. Tech, with Everett Russell, Waverley Wheeler and Bernie Reichardt firing shots in with their usual electrifying skill, always draws a mob, but tonight's other attractions bear more than casual watching. The usual 25 cents will be charged.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

Fort Myers, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—Connie Mack wielded the pruning knife on the Athletics today and ended, temporarily, at least, the big league dreams of their young pitching hopefuls. Robert Chandler, Eddie Wight Trask and William Brigham, Mack announced, will part company with the rest of the A.'s when they break camp Monday.

Mack said he would try to place the three with minor league clubs, but not with any idea of recalling them in the future. If he finds jobs for them, they will become the property of the teams that take them.

A lapse in the exhibition game schedule reverted the training today to batting and fielding practice. After a three-hour drill Connie gave the boys the rest of the day off.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—Two frustrated attempts to "play ball" in one day were enough for the Phillies today, so they got a good rest.

Their scheduled game with the St. Louis Browns was called off when a furious storm broke. The visitors climbed into buses and headed back to West Palm Beach. An hour later the sun was shining brightly, so Burt Shotton lined up two teams for an intramural game. Came the deluge again after one inning, and the players headed for shelter. Just about the time they had dressed the sun smiled brightly again and the rest of the day was perfect.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—The Boston Braves finally managed to defeat the New York Yankees today, winning the seventh game of their series, 2 to 1, when Ed Brandt and Fred Frankhouse combined to hold McCarty's men to six hits.

Clearwater, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds battled to a 3 to 3 tie in a game played between showers of rain today. The game was called at the end of the first half of the sixth inning.

O'Doul and Wright accounted for all of the Dodgers' runs with homers off Si Johnson.

Babe Herman, recently traded to the Reds by Brooklyn, did not accompany the team from Tampa, but Wally Gilbert and Ernest Lombardi, who figured in the deal, were in the Cincinnati line-up. Stripp, Cuccinello and Sukeforth, former Reds, played with the Dodgers.

Bradenton, Fla., March 23 (A.P.).—Showing their best work of the spring, the St. Louis Cardinals looked a little like world champions as they bombarded two Indianapolis pitchers for 16 safeties and defeated the American Association Indians, 8-1. Flint Rhem's pitching was the bright feature of the game for the Red Birds. He worked five innings and held the Indians to two singles. Ray Starr finished the game and yielded three hits in four frames.

San Antonio, Tex., March 23 (A.P.).—The White Sox today trimmed two rookies from their staff, sending Third Baseman Clyde Bower to Knoxville and releasing John Rosetta, Chicago sandlot catcher, outright. Bower played with the House of David team, of Benton Harbor, Mich., last season.

This afternoon, the Sox beat San Antonio 13 to 5. Ted Lyons made his first appearance and gave no hits in three innings. Frasier, also out for the first time, was wild. He had been ill with influenza. The Sox start North tomorrow night.

Oakland, Calif., March 23 (A.P.).—Led by their sensational rookie shortstop, Joe Burke, Oakland Pacific Coast Leaguers pounded two Pittsburgh Pirate pitchers for 16 hits and a 9-3 victory here today.

Burke cracked out a triple, a double and single in five trips. Ervin Brame, big righthander, started for the National Leaguers and proved easy for the Oaks, who found him for all 9 runs and 12 hits in 6 innings.

The defeat was the first for Pittsburgh in eight games.

Los Angeles, March 23 (U.P.).—Fine pitching by Fitzsimmons and Mitchell held Detroit to seven scattered hits today, and the New York Giants won an exhibition game, 6 to 1.

Bill Terry continued on his hitting rampage, getting a double and two singles in four trips to the plate. His batting average is around .650 now.

Savannah, Ga., March 23 (U.P.).—The first training camp double-header in the history of the Boston Red Sox will be played here tomorrow, when the Rex Sox meet the Hartford club in two games, one of which was postponed from today because of rain.

The Savannah Chamber of Commerce proposed the double-header to Manager Shanno Collins. Shanno, with two complete teams, agreed. Collins will use MacFayden and Donohue in one game and Eddie Durham and Johnny Michaels in the other.

St. Martin's Wins Title In A. A. U. Midget Class

But once Singman had broken through, it proved contagious, and with the end of the game four minutes away, Understein tied it up at 23 to 23 on a throwin shot. Sherman gave Saks a 25 to 23 on a marvelous round-the-ring fake pivot. They swapped fouls for, 26 to 24, and Sussman tied it 26 to 26 with two minutes to goal. Heated furious play followed until, with 30 seconds to go, Hook ripped himself clear of the tangle and shot from midfloor for a perfect basket, 28 to 26. Somehow, J. C. C. gained the ball in those last few trying seconds and Sussman, more through sheer might than anything else, battered through both teams and sank a snowbird amidst a bedlam of noise.

There was time for one more tap-off and Sussman, taking the ball from Center Singman, let it go from midcourt a fraction of a second after the whistle had begun sounding. The shot was perfect and the J. C. C. players milled around Joe and Orrel Mitchell, both of whom agreed that the basket did not count.

Sherman and Jones, with a potshot and a foul, gave Saks a 31-28 lead at the start of the overtime period. Sussman made good on a foul, for 31-29, and Milton Singman was given two shots when Noonan fouled him. He made the first, for 31-30, but the second sidled off the edge and there was just time for Beckey, Noonan's substitute, to reach one in as the conflict ended.

St. Stephen's Five Upsets Eastern Reserves, 20-18

Registering one of the biggest of the many upsets which have developed in the tournament, the St. Stephen's 130-pounders eliminated the Eastern Reserves, 20-18, and entered the semi-final round. The Scholastics led, 18-16, with only two minutes to play and appeared to be sure winners. At this stage, George Joray, sitting on the St. Stephen's bench, suddenly decided that his place was on the floor.

Leaping up from his seat, he advised the scorekeeper that he was entering the game. His manager said no; and, when the youngster insisted, threw down his scorebook and left the bench. Joray must have "known something," however, for he almost immediately knotted the count with a seemingly impossible one-hand shot.

During the next minute and a half, both teams missed a number of shots by inches in their mad scramble to break the tie. Then Pick Walker shot a long one through the hoop and the game was over.

Eastern started off with a 5-1 lead but the Saints managed to knot the string at 7-all at the half, missing many others by a small margin. From then on, it was a ding-dong affair, with Joray and Walker doing their stuff to give the Saints the verdict right at the very end.

Walker and Sullivan, of the winners, and Bassin, of Eastern, were high guns with 6 points each, with Joray having 5 to his credit.

Olmsted Grill Downs Boys' Club Five, 51-27

Bearing out the promise which was born of its play in the earlier rounds of the tournament, Olmsted Grill defeated the Boys' Club tossers, 51 to 27, earning the right to meet the winner of the War Department A. G. O.-Shade Shop game for the championship of the 145-pound class. The defeat of its 145-pound quintet left the Boys' Club without a single representative in the tournament which only a few years ago they dominated.

Mike McNally, 140 pounds of greased lightning, paved the way for the downfall of the Boys' Club. He tallied nine times on a play that required perfect teamwork to execute. It culminated in a pass to a player directly under the basket. Dave Dantzig and Ed Wills were important cogs in the Olmsted victory. Their floor play was of high order and both proved capable hands at adding to their team's score. Warring and Peccarelli were best for the losers, but their work went for naught before the powerful attack of the Grillmen.

St. Martin's Boys Win 100-Pound Court Title

Running wild against their opponents after a hotly contested first quarter, St. Martin's 100-pound courtmen defeated the Neighborhood House quintet, 33 to 15, to win the 1932 District A. A. U. championship of their class. The victory marked the coronation of the first champion in the tournament. St. Martin's will be rewarded for its triumph along with the other winning teams at Tech gymnasium Tuesday night.

The Schwaner brothers staked Neighborhood House to a 6-2 lead at the start of the game, but this advantage was wiped out by Billy Boyle, who tied the score with a couple of neat long shots. Vincent put St. Martin's in the lead immediately after with an easy snowbird. From then on it was all in the Saint's favor. The score at the half was 18-9. Neighborhood House was held scoreless in the third period, and all but four minutes of the final period had elapsed before the eventual losers could penetrate their opponents' defense. Farrell's stellar floor play was outstanding for the winners.

A. A. U. RING SEATS ON SALE

Special Inducement to Those Buying Tickets Early.

THOSE attending the third annual championship boxing tournament sponsored by the District A. A. U. at Ritchie Coliseum on Wednesday and Saturday nights of next week will find it to their advantage to buy their tickets early. All seats are to be sold on a first come, first served basis and are priced at $1 flat. Consequently those applying early will receive choice reserved ringside and stadium accommodations.

The advance sale opens today at Spalding's, 1338 G street.

Added to the field of outstanding entries in the impending bouts is Frank Nebel, formerly of Tech High School and now an athlete at Penn State. Eliminated by the mighty right hand of "Mickey" O'Connor a year ago, Nebel declares he will turn the tables on the defending champion next week.

Since showing on the receiving end of O'Connor's knockout punch in 1931, young Nebel is said to have progressed mightily. Having polished his boxing to a marked degree, he also has developed a two-fisted attack that promises much.

O'Connor, incidentally, may be showing in the amateur classic for the last time, and consequently is determined to successfully defend his title. The Southeast youngster is considering a tempting offer to turn professional at this time, but declares his present aim is to retain the amateur crown that he annexed in such sensational fashion last year.

Hitting The Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE last laugh is usually the heartiest, and the last bowling record the most authentic. At least, that seems to be the attitude of the members of the Georgetown Church League, for they hung up three new marks at the Arcadia Alleys last night.

Boss Glossbrenner was responsible for two of the records, and his team, Covenant, attended to the other. Boss rolled a grame of 177 and then took an awful tumble, finishing with a set of 387. Even at that, the latter was better than the former individual set record of the loop. The team cashed in on its 609 game, another record, but like Glossbrenner was unable to continue its good work and wound up with a set of 1,544. The three-game total, however, was just another bowling score.

Speaking of records, the Lightnin' team, in the Amos 'n' Andy League, scored 100 per cent in its match at Lucky Strike. The lunchroom attendants rolled a high game of 573, and finished up with a high set of 1,581, a couple of marks likely to survive months and months, and even years and years of wear—that is, if the league runs true to form. Belt's 140 game and Burns' 349 set topped the individual scoring.

Nolan's 120 and Kelly's 309 were the best individual scores recorded in the Commission and Miscellaneous League at Lucky Strike. State Tax (What's this, another tax?) sopped the team honors with its 500 and 1,379.

Some of the powder in the Dynamite League failed to explode at Lucky Strike last night, but the boys thoroughly enjoyed themselves just the same. Rice's 130 and Jones' 357 were high among the individual prize seekers. The Lab Katz howled loud enough to topple 561 pins for team game honors, and the Tobacco Scraps picked off 1,600 sticks for set money.

Miss Dodson stole the show as Takoma took the odd one from the John Blicks in a Ladies District League match at Arcadia, when she rolled a 117 game and 326 set. Takoma polished off the Johnnies with a 504 game and 1,427 set.

Optimists must be some bowlers, judging from the way Ross went after those pins in the Civics Clubs loop at Arcadia. He managed to get away with a high game of 140, but Rose, of the Newcomers, was more consistent than his rival, and he captured the set honors with 374. Reciprocity took the team laurels with a 552 and 1,569.

It was "B. T. U. Night" in the Bureau of Standards League at Columbia. The three letter boys waylaid Industrial and relieved the latter of a trio of games, turning in a high game of 571 and night's total of 1,632. Cragoe, of the same team, bagged individual honors with his 160 and 372, drew the deuce in their matches with The Engineers, Mimeos, and Chemists Technologists, Ceramists, and Files.

In the background the unfinished Capitol can be seen. This section of the city didn't seem to be very popular, from the looks of the picture. The streets are of dirt and the trees are in the road instead of in the parkways.

Where the shacks are in the picture, next to the church, is now the parish house and the two occupy the whole block from C to D streets.

TWO MEN ARE HURT WHEN PURSUED CAR CRASHES INTO TAXI

Three Are Arrested After Chase of Alleged Stolen Auto.

SKULL OF ONE VICTIM BELIEVED FRACTURED

Patrolman States Vehicle Tried to Force Him Into Curb.

Two persons were seriously injured last night when an allegedly stolen automobile, which was being chased by a policeman, crashed into a taxicab at Third street and Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Those injured are: Edward Sherwood, 26 years old, of 3317 Seventeenth street northwest, the taxicab driver, and a passenger in the cab, Pasquale Gesuero, 22 years old, of 408 Kentucky avenue southeast, a student at National University Law School. Both are under treatment at Casualty Hospital for head injuries; the latter is believed to have a fractured skull.

Three Abandon Auto.

Three colored men, who abandoned the car after the crash, were seized by Patrolman R. A. Cunningham, of the Traffic Bureau; Stewart McGill, of 429 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and a few pedestrians.

Those under arrest gave their names and addresses as: Richard Miller, 19 years old, of 1707 Marion courts northwest; James Johnson, 18 years old, of 1426 Ninth street northwest, and Robert Withers, 18 years old, of 440 N street northwest.

Car Reported Stolen.

The chase started at Third street and B street northwest, when Patrolman Cunningham observed the speeding car and recognized it as having been reported stolen Tuesday night from Rodger King, 140 Eleventh street northeast. At Third street and Pennsylvania avenue, according to Cunningham, the driver of the car attempted to crowd him into several parked cars.

The car sped north on Third street through the red traffic lights which had been set against them. Several attempts were made, Cunningham said, to force him to the curb. At Third street and Massachusetts avenue the taxicab was struck and overturned.

Flood Peril Study Planned in District

Planning Board and Parks Office Will Conduct Joint Survey.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks will soon conduct jointly a survey of flood conditions and flood control in the District, according to an announcement made yesterday.

It has been pointed out that certain parts of Potomac Park and other water-front sections of the city are so low that unless adequate protection against unusual rises of the river is provided there is a possibility that Pennsylvania avenue might be inundated as it was several years ago.

The office of the District Engineer for the War Department keeps the records of floods on the Potomac River for a number of years back. The staff of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission will cooperate with the District Engineer's office in studying these records in an attempt to anticipate what Washington may expect in floods in the years to come.

Soviet System Old, Educator Asserts

Dr. Strakhovsky Tells Optimists Idea Dates Back to 1819.

"The Soviet system and the five-year plan in themselves are not original of this century," declared Dr. Leonid I. Strakhovsky, professor of European history at Georgetown University, in an address before a luncheon meeting of the Washington Optimist Club yesterday afternoon.

"The Soviety system," he said, "is an adaptation of the plan of political reorganization of the Russian state by Michael Speransky in 1810, while the five-year plan is a development of the industrial revolution vigorously sponsored by Count Witts in the early nineties."

Dr. Strakhovsky pointed out that there is no real basis for the study of Soviet Russia, because all data on present conditions is unreliable, and it is impossible to discuss present-day Russia without drawing in the background the achievements of Imperial Russia.

Bus-Truck Freight Monopoly Hinted

Slowly Gaining Control of Traffic, Farquharson Tells Trainmen.

"The bus and truck traffic is gradually but surely assuming a monopoly of the industry, often encroaching on other lines and running parallel to the steel rails of a railroad," James A. Farquharson, assistant to the president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, told the members of the Robert E. Lee Lodge, No. 418, at their meeting Tuesday, in a discussion of the labor problems of trainmen.

High-pressure freight traffic, inadequate crews on large train hookups and disregard of employes by operators were also topics of discussion.

PRECINCT HEAD GREETED

RHEEM HOME FACES SALE FOR $75,000

Royal Danish Legation May Rent House if It Is Not Disposed Of.

The 22-room home once occupied by Edmund D. Rheem, former executive head of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., probably will be sold for a cash consideration of $75,000 in the near future, a report filed before Justice Peyton Gordon, in District Supreme Court, yesterday indicated.

George C. Shinn, appointed receiver of Rheem's assets following an adjudication of involuntary bankruptcy, filed the report through Attorney William E. Richardson, who is officially representing the receiver in a legal capacity.

The Rheem home, situated at 2343 S street northwest, has been vacant for a year, the report showed, and is depreciating in value thereby. The court was told that interest on the first trust is overdue, that back taxes are overdue, that the Bureau of Internal Revenue has a "jeopardy assessment" of $12,000 on the house and the trust will have to be renewed.

Mrs. Rheem, it was said, has indicated she will part with her "inchoate dower" rights for $15,000. The remainder of the purchase price would be applied to Rheem's debts. The bankruptcy petition is being appealed by Rheem and this further complicates the transaction, for there is a possibility that the higher courts will reverse the bankruptcy finding.

The Royal Danish Legation, it was understood, had made a tentative proposition to Mr. Shinn to rent the place in the event it is not sold. No recommendation as to what should be done with the property was filed with the report, and Justice Gordon took under advisement the sanctioning of one of the two officers.

51 Seek Concession For Parking Space

Highest Would Pay $1,300 for Government Triangle Vacant Blocks.

Fifty bids submitted to the office of Frank A. Birgfield, chief clerk of the Treasury Department for the concession of operating the new parking space, which will soon be available in the 104,000 square feet of ground bounded by Fourteenth street, Thirteen-and-a-half street, Ohio avenue and C street, were opened yesterday, and a high bid of $1,300 was noted.

C. A. Tanner, 619 Nineteenth street, entered the high bid, and will be awarded the concession if he is in the position to operate the concession acording to specifications. The land from which all the structures have been razed, preparatory to construction of new Government buildings will be available for parking for a year, according to Birgfield, and will be ready to accommodate parking withfn a week or ten days.

A plan whereby Government employes working in the District Building, Commerce, Treasury and Post-office Departments would be granted preference in parking is considered. Space for each department will be assigned, but on Sundays, holidays and at night the general public will be admitted. An estimated space accommodation for between 500 and 695 automobiles in the new space is expected to alleviate parking conditions on the surrounding streets. Day parking for Government employes will be provided at a $2 charge a month.

Title Law Recovered 125 Autos.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer reported yesterday that 125 automobiles had been recovered through the workings of the title law. The cars were recovered between July 1, 1931, and March 1, this year.

CAPT. MARKS IS PAID HONOR AT RECEPTION

Veteran Policeman Lauded at Anacostia Citizens' Group Meeting.

Capt. S. J. Marks, of the Eleventh Police Precinct, was honored last night at a reception given in recognition of his appointment to command of the Anacostia precinct by the Anacostia Citizens Association at the Masonic Temple, Fourteenth and U streets southeast.

Glowing tributes to Capt. Marks were paid in short addresses by Dr George C. Havenner, president of the association; Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District; Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Commissioner of the Fire and Police Departments, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police; Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel of the District; Col. James A. Moss, president general of the U. S. Flag Association; William W. Bride, corporation counsel of the District; George S. Watson, chief of the Fire Department; L. I. H Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, and Inspector E. W. Brown.

Capt. Marks has been a member of the Washington Police Department for the last 27 years. He was appointed captain on January 1, 1932. He served four years in the Navy before joining the force and worked with Gen. Crosby in the Philippines While still a private Capt. Marks served as a motorcycle officer for ten years.

Three surviving members of the original No. 15 Engine Company, the first fire engine house erected in Anacostia, attended the reception last night and were presented with George Washington Bicentennial tokens by William Martin, chairman of the association's fire and police committee. Mr. Martin also gave a brief history of the old engine company.

Dr. Havenner presided and presented a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Marks.

A program of entertainment was furnished under direction of the following committee: Robert Thompson, chairman; Mrs. Carrie G. Smith, Mrs. D. C. Smithson, Mrs. Alice L. Smith, Miss Eugenia L. Fera, Lorenze Thompson, F. Tracey Campbell, William Martin, Mrs. Louise Tucker, Mrs. Lincoln Roberts, F. I. Bartlett, Ledry Koontz, George Williams and L. N. Burch.

Applicants for Aid Double in Capital

Salvation Army Declares More Meals Dispensed This Year.

Continued increases in the number of homeless, transient men applying for aid feature the report of the Homeless Men's Department of the Salvation Army for February. The distressing feature of the report, according to officials, is that there has been no decrease in February, a month in which a normal decrease has been usually experienced.

More than 100 per cent increase in the number of meals served during the first two months of 1932 as compared with the first two months of 1931 is shown in the report the Army serving 35,244 meals this year as compared with 16,304 meals in January and February of 1931.

Medical inspection for all men applying to the army has been installed. Physicians have examined 1,953 men, finding that 655 suffered from bronchitis or bad colds and 38 were transferred to hospitals for treatment.

No indication of any decrease in the number of these homeless men could be foreseen by Mr. Decker.

BLAINE BILL CALLED INADEQUATE TO END SECURITIES FRAUDS

District Bankers' Spokesman Says It Would Harm Home Owners Also.

CITY INSURANCE HEAD ALSO CRITICIZES PLAN

Others Back Bowman Measure Alternative Before House Committee.

Charges that the Blaine "blue sky" securities bill contains loopholes that would permit sale of worthless issues and work undue hardships on District home owners were preferred last night by Francis G. Addison, jr., legislative chairman of the District Bankers Association, at hearings before the House District judiciary subcommittee.

Although hearings were on the Bowman bill to regulate security brokers by excluding from practice those convicted of fraud, Mr. Addison launched an attack on the Blaine measure, which has already passed the Senate. The House has yet to make its choice between the Blaine and Bowman bills, in no ways similar.

Inadequate Hearings Charged.

Mr. Addison, who is president of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, charged Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, author of the "blue sky" bill, refused adequate subcommittee hearings, despite requests of those opposed to the measure.

Under provisions of the bill, permitting local sale of securities listed on recognized stock exchanges, F. H. Smith Co. issues, listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange, and other issues since found of little value, could have been marketed here, he declared. He indorsed the Bowman bill.

Herbert L. Davis, District superintendent of insurance, also compared the two types of legislation to the disadvantage of the Blaine proposals. He said the latter "would cost ten times as much as the Bowman bill to administer."

Periodic Inspection Asked.

M. D. Rosenberg, president of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, indorsed the Bowman bill but asked that provision be made for periodic inspection of local brokerage houses.

Others who appeared for the Bowman measure included Gen. John A. Johnston, former District Commissioner; W. Gwynn Gardiner, local attorney; Paul Keyser, representing the Investment Bankers Association, and John A. Petty, secretary of the Washington Real Estate Board. O. H. Brinkman, local attorney, who assisted Senator Blaine in drafting the Senate measure, asked to be heard in opposition to the Bowman bill at additional hearings.

Two Injured as Car Hits Parked Truck

Driver of Latter Vehicle Is Arrested on Charge of Not Using Lights.

Two persons were injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a truck parked on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, near Laurel, Md.

Dudley Rains, 34 years old, of 4000 Cathedral avenue northwest, who was driving the machine, said the truck was unlighted and he failed to see it in time to avoid the accident. Both he and his companion, Miss Virginia Yeager, of 1301 Sixteenth street northwest, were thrown violently against the windshield by the impact.

The couple was taken to the office of Dr. B. P. Warren, at Laurel, where it was found Rains suffered a broken left arm, two fractured ribs and multiple cuts and bruises. Miss Yeager was treated for a fractured left leg and severe lacerations. Both were later brought to Emergency Hospital, where Miss Yeager was admitted in an undetermined condition. Rains returned to his home.

Philip Wilcox, of Baltimore, who, police said, was operating the truck, was arrested and charged with parking without lights. He was released in the custody of his employer.

BLACK WILL REPORT MERGER BILL SOON

"Assured" Cuts in Personnel and Wages Not to Result From Combine.

Chairman Loring M. Black, jr., of the House District utilities subcommittee, will favorably report the House traction consolidation bill at a meeting of the full District committee next Thursday night, he announced yesterday.

His announcement was made following a meeting of the full committee yesterday, when Representative Black announced he had been "assured" that no cuts in personnel and reductions in wages would result from the merger.

To Oppose Taxi Operation.

The "assurances" followed published reports yesterday that he would hold up the bill if personnel retrenchments were planned by the merged company. Mr. Black will say only one major change in the bill. Like the Senate District committee, he thinks the companies should be excluded from taxicab operation.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District committee, was presented with an ivory gavel by the National Committee on One Thousand Democratic and Progressive Women at yesterday's meeting, in recognition of her service to her party.

Her Work Is Praised.

Miss Patricia V. Dorn, who presented the gavel, commended Mrs. Norton for introducing a bill locting to enfranchisement of the District.

A favorable report on the proposed amendment to the District child labor law, which would permit girls under 18 and boys under 16 to appear on the professional stage at night, was ordered by the committee.

The committee also approved the bill to create a board of indeterminate sentence and parole for the District. An amendment was incorporated, however, to fix the minimum time of parole at one-third of the maximum sentence, instead of one-fifth.

Traffic Victim Dies; Inquest Is Tomorrow

Charles B. Pearce, 50 years old, of 617 Maryland avenue northeast, died last night in Casualty Hospital from injuries received on January 1, when he was crushed by an automobile which skidded into the rear of an ice truck on which he was standing. The accident occurred at Second street and Massachusetts avenue northeast.

Pearce died from internal injuries and a compound fracture of the left leg. The automobile was operated by Frank M. Harris, colored, 26 years old, of 1704 Vermont avenue northwest. An inquest into his death will be held tomorrow at the morgue.

Elizabeth Gardner, 5 years old, of 15 Rock Creek Church road, was slightly injured yesterday when knocked down in front of her home by an automobile operated by James B. Locraft, 55 years old, of 617 Otis place northwest.

The child was treated at Garfield Hospital for contusions to the body and legs.

Book Studied By Lincoln Is Given Library

The book from which Abraham Lincoln learned the fundamentals of the English language has been presented to the Library of Congress and it may be seen in the same case that contains Lincoln's family Bible.

The book is Kirkham's Grammar, and it was presented to the Congressional Library by Jane Hamand, of Iowa, who had obtained it from the survivors of the Rutledge family. Lincoln came into possession of the grammar while working in Denton Offutt's general store in the village of New Salem, after walking twelve miles to get it.

Lincoln memorized the book by open fire light, and then presented it to his sweetheart, Ann Rutledge. Lincoln was boarding at the Rutledge tavern at the time. In presenting the book to Ann, who was the third child in a family of nine, Lincoln wrote on the fly leaf: "Ann M. Rutledge is now learning grammar."

The little grammar remained in the Rutledge family after Ann's death, and became the property of Robert Rutledge, brother of Ann. Miss Hamand, who has made a life-long hobby of collecting Lincoln relics, learned, after exhaustive investigation, that a son of Robert owned the book. The son loaned the book for Miss Hamand's collection, and later told her she could keep it. Miss Hamand decided that the only appropriate resting place for the famous school book was the Library of Congress.

Van Duzer Warns Of "Dead" Permits

2,000 Have Expired in '32, He Says in Citing Drastic Penalty.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday announced that 30,600 expired automobile operators' permits have not been renewed and issued a warning describing the drastic penalty involved for such negligence.

Nearly 12,000 of the permits have been "dead" since 1929, it was said. In 1930, 34,030 expired, while in 1931, 12,930 went out of date. So far this year 2,000 permits have expired.

Conviction on a charge of driving without a permit, the charge placed against those found driving with expired licenses, carries a maximum penalty of a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment, or both.

Woman Will Seek To Identify Youth

Goes to Baltimore Today to See Patient Suffering Loss of Memory.

A young man, believed to be Leonard M. Beattie, a brother of Mrs. Edith Jordan, of 1916 Seventeenth street northwest, is in the Baltimore City Hospital under treatment for loss of memory. He had appealed to Baltimore police for aid.

In his pocket was found a letter, believed to have been written by Mrs. Jordan, who last night said her brother, whose description fits the hospital patient, had visited her on Friday and she had sent him a letter Tuesday.

Mrs. Jordan said last night she will go to Baltimore today in an attempt to make an identification of the youth.

Taxi Driver Stabbed In Dispute Over Fare

An argument over a taxi fare last night resulted in knife wounds to William Torilla, 36 years old, of 6331 Thirty-first street northwest, the driver, and the arrest of Henry Jackson, 35 years old, colored, of 1518 Corcoran street northwest, the alleged assailant.

The alleged assault took place in front of 1330 Harvard street northwest. Torilla went to Garfield Hospital, where he was treated for knife wounds to the face and back. Jackson was arrested by Patrolman W. E. Dungan and charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

LAW PRACTICE BILL IS URGED BY M'COY

King Measure Supported at Hearing Before Senate Subcommittee.

Remedy of alleged abuses of legal functions, through regulatory legislation of a type by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, was asked yesterday by Walter I. McCoy, former chief justice of the District Supreme Court, at hearings before a Senate District subcommittee.

Hearings were on the King bill to deny attorneys the right to list themselves as lawyers in the District unless admitted to practice before the District Supreme Court. Judge McCoy cited instances where trust officers, not members of the District bar, exercise legal functions.

Others appearing for the bill included F. W. Hill, jr., former president of the District Bar Association; Mrs. B. S. Matthews, of the Women's Bar Association; David A. Pine, president of the Barristers; Thomas E. Lodge, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations, and George E. Sullivan, local attorney.

E. C. Blanchard, member of the United States supreme Court bar, opposed the measure on the ground that lawyers admitted to the highest court in the land should be permitted to list themselves as lawyers, although they do not belong to the District bar. Others opposing the measure were John M. Savage and Mrs. Myrtle de Montis, of the American Equity Association, and F. A. Maltby, attorney.

Oscar, Famous Turtle, Now in New Quarters

Oscar, who has been in the Government service as chief turtle in the Bureau of Fisheries for 41 years, yesterday moved to his new office in the Department of Commerce Building. He has neither soft rugs nor mahogany furniture, however, being content with some nice, fresh, warm water in one of the floor tanks in the basement.

Oscar is not an ordinary turtle, being one of the diamond-back variety which costs $2 on a plate. In his new office he is not alone, but will reign over six smaller cousins and five alligators. In the old Bureau of Fisheries Building he shared the large pool with Spencer, the well-known sturgeon. The chums were separated when the bureau moved, and Spencer was provided with a private tank and a mate.

Capital Visitor Shot Walking Near River

Ralph T. Bunkelman, 37 years old, of New York City, was shot in the right thigh yesterday while walking on the banks of the Anacostia River near East Capitol street. He walked to Gallinger Hospital, where he is being treated.

Police believe that the shot was fired by boys who frequent the river banks.

Delivery Boy Tells Of Faking Holdup

Youth Admits Tying Himself to Truck After Hiding Grocer's $61.

Ralph Davis, 19-year-old delivery boy, of 1433 Monroe street northeast, who Tuesday night told police that he had been robbed of $61 by two bandits, lashed to the steering wheel of his truck, and left near Bates street northeast, admitted yesterday, after continued questioning, that he faked the holdup.

He was found sitting in the truck near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks, at Bates street, by two Fifth Precinct policemen, with his hands bound to the wheel by heavy wire.

The youth told police that he had been working at the market for about a year, and that his pay was cut recently from $18 to $16 a week. He related to detectives how he had hidden the $61 under a washtub in his home, made a pair of handcuffs out of some heavy wire and then drove to the scene of his "alleged" holdup. Davis was later released, as the proprietor did not care to prosecute.

SPREAD EDUCATION ON SOCIAL HYGIENE, PLEA OF DR. SNOW

MAKES TALK AT DINNER OF WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Banquet Is Held in Honor of Dr. White, Head of St. Elizabeths.

Reaching the unknown thousands of diseased persons through a program of mass education is the next essential step in the war against social diseases, Dr. William F. Snow, nationally known authority on social hygiene, told the Social Hygiene Society of Washington at a dinner last night, at the headquarters of the American Association of University Women, in honor of Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital and president of the society.

In the last quarter of a century the groundwork for this task has been laid and the problem now is to bring the unkown diseased under diagnosis and to teach the masses to protect themselves from contracting such diseases, Dr. Snow said. Social societies are in a position to carry on this work through cooperation with doctors, he pointed out.

Urges Sex Knowledge.

Another important phase of social work cited by Dr. Snow is the teaching of sex knowledge and social hygiene among families, with a view particularly to reaching the adolescent. He referred to dance halls and other amusement places where boys and girls are exploited as one of the most serious social problems.

The speaker denounced "charlatans" who advertise "sure cures," victimizing men and women out of large sums of money. Such evils, he added, can never be eradicated until the public is more thoroughly educated to the dangers of the diseases and the ease with which they can be contracted.

Suggests Less Legislation.

Dr. White expressed the view that social hygiene could be further advanced through less legislation and elimination of most lawyers. He recited his early experiences on Blackwells Island, describing them as "a sad and dreary series of experiences."

Dr. Snow was introduced by Dr. White, and the latter was introduced by Herbert S. Wood. Paul L. Benjamin, executive secretary of the District Social Hygiene Society, told of the work of the society, and brief talks were made by Surgeon General Charles Edward Riggs, of the United States Navy, Mrs. Otto L. Veerhoff and Miss Katherine Lenroot, of the United States Children's Bureau.

Police Informer Attacked Getting Numbers Evidence

A "special investigator," who is employed by the vice squad to help get evidence against speakeasies and gambling houses, was attacked and beaten yesterday by some prospective investigative subjects and delivered to police headquarters.

Henry Durand, 28 years old, colored, was aiding the vice squad. His particular objective was to place a "numbers" bet in an establishment on O street, near Fourth street northwest. He was to use marked money. Then the police were to crash the place and arrest the inmates, hoping to get the marked money as evidence.

After Durand entered, the vice squad waited outside. Nearly an hour passed and their "assistant" failed to appear. They searched the place and found no one in it.

A few minutes later Durand was delivered at headquarters in a taxicab. He said three colored men assaulted him and brought him to headquarters. Then they disappeared. Durand is now in Freedmen's Hospital. His left arm is broken and he is badly bruised.

Wolter, in 24th Day of Fast, Says He Is Growing Weaker

Letters from all sections of the country, some encouraging him, others denouncing him, continued to pour into the tiny room at the Salvation Army where Dr. Frederic Wolter yesterday entered his twenty-fourth day on a self-imposed fast.

Dr. Wolter, who is 47 years old, says he is steadily growing weaker, although he has had no craving for food since the third day of his "hunger strike." He has refused pleas of social workers to end his fast and is determined to continue until suitable employment is offered him.

After a brief walk in the sunshine yesterday, Dr. Wolter found it almost impossible to climb the three flights of stairs to his dingy bedroom. He said his fast was in protest against an industrial age that has no place for the educated worker.

Dr. Wolter is a German-born scholar. He spends his time surrounded by books by famous authors, and each night reads by a dim light until he becomes exhausted and falls asleep. He has lost 24 pounds since the first day he refused food, an average of one pound a day.
